U. S. GRAIN LOSS IS COMPARED TO SILVER BUYING

Old Timers Recall Expensive Scheme.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13.—[Special.]—Old timers in the national capital are recalling that the present drain on the federal treasury to bolster up the price of wheat and cotton represents by no means the first costly attempt by the central government to enhance the returns of a particular group of producers.

The case of silver is offered as analogous to that of wheat and cotton. Just as the government has yielded within the last three years to the organized pressure of the agrarians to buy wheat and cotton with public funds for the purpose of boosting the prices of these products, so has the government yielded at various times in the last two generations to the demands of the silverites for measures to enhance the price of silver.

Make Mine Owners Rich.

With about 200 millions of dollars invested in wheat and 100 millions in cotton purchased far above the present market price of these commodities the government is faced with an enormous loss, just how much is anybody's guess. It may in the end rival the cost of the experiment in buying silver which made millionaires of silver mine owners at the expense of American taxpayers.

Just how much the measures to enhance the price of silver cost the country in the aggregate is a matter of controversy. Estimates by champions of the gold standard vary all the way from several hundred millions to several billions of dollars while the silverites contend that the experiment never cost Uncle Sam a penny.

At any rate after it was all over and the country had been placed definitely on the single standard of gold the vaults of the treasury contained half a billion silver dollars which the government could have got along without, but the mere existence of which enabled the silver interests in more recent times to procure another public subsidy of their product.

Voice of Bimetallist Again.

Once more the voice of the bimetallist is being heard in the land. Silver, now a mere commodity as it became once before by virtue of the "crime of '73" has declined to a price of 27 cents an ounce and the silver producing states are clamoring for government aid as they did when they enlisted under Bryan's banner of sixteen to one. This time they have sought unsuccessfully to induce President Hoover to call a world conference of silver using countries to adopt measures to stabilize prices.

The senate, which of late years has been the stronghold of the silverites, backed the plan, but Mr. Hoover gave it the cold shoulder. Senator William H. King [Dem., Utah], silverite leader, said it was "because the President is a monometallist."

The story of the subsidizing of silver begins with the seventies. Silver had not been in circulation for a generation and congress in 1873 omitted silver from the list of coins to be coined. That was what the silverites called the "crime of '73."

Unlimited Coinage of Silver.

Silver was declining in value while the production of the metal, particularly in Colorado, was increasing enormously. The silver mine owners joined hands with the inflationists, who were demanding an increased volume of currency and bore down upon congress with a scheme for the unlimited coinage of silver.

This campaign came to an end in 1877 with the passage of the Bland-Allison silver act wiping out the "crime of '73." The silverites didn't get all they were after, but they got a good deal. The house passed the Bland bill for the free and unlimited coinage of silver, but the senate tacked on the Allison amendment limiting the purchase of bullion to not less than two millions and not more than four millions of dollars a month.

The government then began buying silver as it has been buying wheat and cotton. The more silver it bought the more there was produced and, instead of rising, the price of silver declined, just as has happened in the case of wheat and cotton. The silverites again put the screws on congress to buy more silver, but they failed by a narrow margin to get their free coinage bill through the house in 1886. President Cleveland stoutly opposed the silver purchase experiment, which he regarded harmful and costly.

Under the succeeding Republican administration, however, the silverites

Husband Is Pharaoh in Church Operetta.

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 13.—[Special.]—Aimee Semple McPherson, pastor of Angelus temple and sponsor for the "Four Square Gospel" preached with unusual vigor this morning.

Her subject was the story of Ruth. She was dynamic beyond the usual and her hearers packed into every seat of the vast auditorium, sat enthralled and rocked with emotion in response to her words and gestures.

"There is no happiness in the wickedness of the world," she cried as twenty-five converts came forward.

Tells Her Congregation.

Then Mrs. McPherson made an announcement which electrified the 5,000 who crowded the vast auditorium. She suddenly interrupted the ceremony to announce:

"Every one else has a husband and now I have one."

She revealed the secret of an early morning trip by plane to Yuma, Ariz., and her marriage to David L. Hutton, baritone singer in the Angelus choir.

Photographers were summoned and the Mrs. McPherson that was and Mr Hutton posed for the press with their arms entwined.

The Rev. Mrs. McPherson then explained to the congregation that the marriage would make no difference in her connection with the church.

"I took our board of elders into my confidence and talked this over with them some days ago," she said. The Rev. Charles A. Shreve, assistant pastor, said that her step was sanctioned by the church board.

Soon the news reached the worldly ones outside the church and reporters scampered about to learn what details they could.

Mysterious Call at Airport.

They learned that about 2:30 o'clock this morning a telephone call came to the Century Airways airport here asking that a speedy plane be immediately prepared for a long hop—destination to be announced later.

Robert Cantwell, head of the airport, was called from his bed, and a woman's voice at the other end of the line requested that he personally act as pilot.

Half an hour later a plump woman, her face veiled and partly hidden behind the brim of a large hat and accompanied by a man in business attire, and several other persons drove up in an automobile.

Arrive at Yuma at 4 a. m.

The plane reached Yuma a little before 4 a. m., and the party took a suite in San Carlos hotel. They called up D. B. Wiseman, clerk of the Yuma county court, had him come to the hotel rooms with marriage license blanks.

On the marriage blank Mrs. McPherson gave her age as 33 and her occupation as a minister. Hutton gave his age as 30 and occupation as concert singer.

Miss Harriet Jordan, dean of the Angelus Temple Bible school and an ordained pastor, said the words of the marriage ceremony as Mrs. McPherson and Mr. Hutton clasped hands, standing by the steps of the airplane. Immediately afterwards they flew back to Los Angeles.

Calls Him Splendid Man.

On her announcement in the temple Mrs. McPherson was beamingly delighted to discuss her romance.

"I have been taking voice lessons from Mr. Hutton for some time," she said. "He is a splendid man. I am a lucky woman. We are going to be gloriously happy. His voice lessons have much improved my speaking voice. I still will be known as Aimee Semple McPherson in public life."

She confided that the choir singer has been pressing his suit for the last three months, but said it was only recently that "I had given serious consideration" to Hufton's wooing.

Falls in Love with Voice.

She said the romance was quickened by "the wonderful work Mr. Hutton has been doing in helping to present the Temple musical works." She smilingly confessed she fell in love with his deep baritone voice.

Hutton played the part of Pharaoh in the pageant, "The Iron Furnace," which Mrs. McPherson has been staging before Sunday congregations from the Temple stage.

According to Mr. Hutton, a roly poly, beaming, curly haired, round faced man with twinkling dark blue eyes and a slight limp, "someone else will have to decide if it was love at

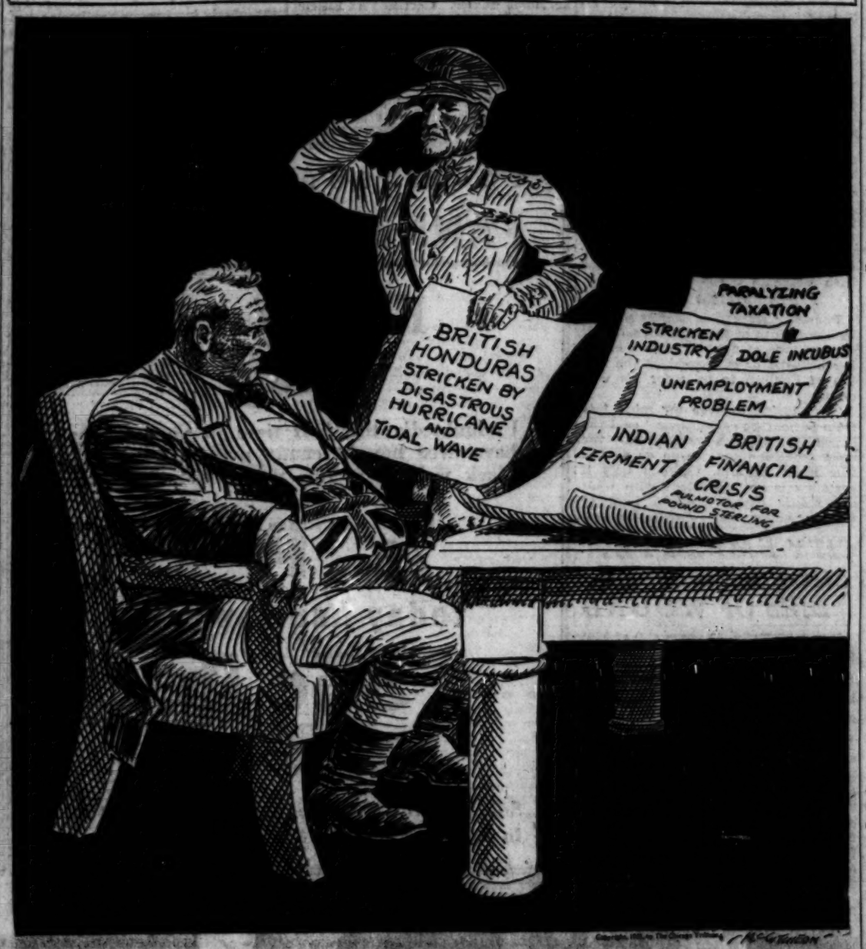
JOHN BULL'S DARK HOUR



AUSTIN THEATER BOMB TARGET IN OPERATORS' WAR

No damage was done to the theater, the bomb being thrown in the center of the alley. Windows in the apartments of Alex Laurinaitis and Samuel Zemansky, both of 22 South Central avenue, were shattered and many families were aroused. Jack Peters, an imported operator from Minneapolis, was asleep in the theater at the time of the blast and Policeman Albert Nelson was on guard at the front.

The bombing was the fourth attributed by police to the dispute between the operators and the theater owners. The other blasts were at the Ridge theater, 1550 Devon avenue; the Ray theater, 2638 East 75th street, and the Olympia theater, 4619 South Ashland avenue. On last Friday Judge Marcus Kavanagh issued an injunction restraining the union from picketing or otherwise molesting houses employing imported operators.

2 GUARDS BEATEN BY CONVICTS IN STATEVILLE CELL

Two prison guards were severely beaten yesterday by a group of rebellious convicts in the Stateville penitentiary near Joliet.

The guards are Capt. Taylor Davis, 40 years old, and George Davis, 30. They are not related. Both were taken to St. Joseph's hospital in Joliet, where it was found that Capt. Davis' left arm was broken. George Davis suffered a broken nose and numerous body injuries and cuts.

Prison officials issued no details of the disturbance. It was learned, however, that the trouble originated when Guard George Davis caught a prisoner in a cell section not his own and ordered him out. The convict refused to move, and Davis called his superior, Capt. Davis, who repeated the order.

The convict and five of his companions leaped upon the guards. The shouts from onlooking convicts attracted other guards and the attackers were quickly subdued. They were placed in solitary confinement.

Youth Is Found Near Death in Loop Hotel; Gun by Side

Earl H. Mahacek, 18 years old, 3325 Prairie avenue, Brookfield, was found unconscious in his room in the Hotel Sherman last night with a bullet wound in the right temple. A revolver lay on the floor. He was taken to St. Anthony's hospital where it was said he probably would die. Detective James Reidy found a note in Mahacek's room, which he had engaged only a few hours before. It asked that William Dopp of Brookfield, a family friend, be notified. Police were told that Mahacek was despondent because he had no funds to continue in school.

Flies 386 Miles Per Hour; Sets World Record

RYDE, Isle of Wight, Sept. 13.—Great Britain today won permanent possession of the Schneider cup and took over the world's seaplane speed championship for itself. Two pilots of the Royal Air force toyed with their lives over Ryde this afternoon in the midst of swirling gulls and carried to completion the eleventh and final trial of this air speed test along the 31 mile course in record time.

It was wholly a British event. Flight Lieut. J. N. Boothman broke the record for the Schneider cup event by flying 217 miles at an average speed of 340.08 miles per hour, although at one time his plane attained a speed of 343.1 miles per hour, and Flight Lieut. G. H. Stainforth established a new world's record speed of 386.1 miles per hour, or 6.4 miles a minute.

In establishing the record Lieut. Stainforth sped over the course in four laps at speeds of 372.8 miles per hour, 404.2, 377 and finally 390.1. The previous world's speed record was 357.7 miles per hour and was set by Squadron Leader A. H. Orlebar in 1929.

[The world's land speed record is held by Adjutant Bonnet of France with 278.8 miles per hour.]

Cup Goes to Britain.

The pilots in this world's speed test wheeled and turned their machines, each weighing at least a ton, at a terrific speed as they swirled around the orange pylons and kept to the course through the "discus" atmosphere. They earned a title which no government and no private flying club in the world is able to challenge.

Lieut. Boothman today flew alone over the triangular course over the Spithead and the Solent and captured once and for all the Jacques Schneider trophy, a prize first presented in 1913 by a Frenchman, for the British.

America had won the trophy from the English over the very same sheltered water crossed this afternoon by a lone British pilot. Lieut. David Rittenhouse of the United States navy won off Cowes, England, in 1923. The following year none was ready to challenge the American possession, and the Yankees "big-heartedly" postponed the contest for a year when they might have flown around a course in the United States and claimed the trophy that year as the British have done today.

Doolittle Hung Up Record.

In 1925 the Americans won again. Therefore, had the United States flown the course in 1924, it would have held possession of the cup forever instead of England.

Little Jimmy Doolittle sped 232.57 miles per hour at Baltimore in 1925, which was 88.37 miles per hour faster than any speed previously.

There is no denying the show put on by the British aircraft engines and pilots in this afternoon's test. Boothman carried out the most difficult test in the Schneider cup flight by carrying a full load, ascending 150 feet, landing, and then ascending again in the midst of a blinding spray which prevented even lateral vision because of the cramped cockpit of the racing plane.

Piers Tremble and Shake.

Then Boothman took off and with machine-like precision flew the most difficult course any man ever completed. He lifted the frail machine into the air and streaked down the course over the gay bunting of expensive yachts, and thundered over the Ryde pier across the starting line toward the first pylon. Lieut. Boothman thereafter completed 21 turns on the course. He skimmed the surface of both sea and land at an altitude of 100 feet in order to gain greater power from the denser atmosphere near the surface of the earth.

As he passed thousands of spectators felt the vibrations as his motors thundered their revolutions and the lightning speed of the propellers agitated the air so that the piers on which the spectators stood trembled and shook.

BULLETIN.

HORTA, Azores Islands, Sept. 13.—The Junkers airplane D-2072, which is flying over the Atlantic, passed over Fayal at 12:47 p. m. (Chicago daylight time) today. Local weather was favorable. A slight southwest wind prevailed.

JUNCAL DO SOL, Portugal, Sept. 13—(AP)—Willy Rody and Christian Johanssen, German airmen, with Fernando Costa Viega, Portuguese pilot, took off from an improvised flying field here on a projected non-stop flight to New York at 9:30 a. m. [4:30 a. m. Chicago daylight time] today.

The flyers hoped to reach New York within 40 to 42 hours. They were undecided as to how long they would remain there, but expected to return by air by way of Ireland.

Ships that might sight the plane would be unable to speak to them because the flyers carried no radio equipment.

Map Alternate Courses.

Their course was mapped out in a southerly direction if bad weather, against which they had been warned, persisted. Otherwise they would endeavor to fly to Newfoundland, which would be the shorter route.

As the sun broke through gray skies the heavily laden Junkers all metal aplane, D-2072, left the ground after a run of nearly a mile. Johanssen was at the controls. He pulled the plane into the air in a long climb straight into the wind before attempting a turn. Within a few minutes the plane was lost to sight.

The three flyers arrived at the field at 6:30 a. m. and spent some time inspecting the plane, which had been there since Friday.

Crowd Watches Takeoff.

Additional gasoline was pumped into the wings and the flyers consulted their navigation charts. Although the field is a lonely spot on the left bank of the Tagus river, about 30 miles from Lisbon, over broken roads and streams, a crowd arrived in automobiles to see the flyers off.

Just before the takeoff the plane was christened with the name "Esa," after Rody's bride, by Laura Viega, sister of the Portuguese aviator, who smashed the traditional bottle of champagne on the propeller.

After shaking hands around, the airmen climbed into the cockpit and waved as Johanssen said: "Don't let the wind die down."

The plane rose easily in less than a minute, despite its four ton load. She carried 635 gallons of gasoline and 165 pounds of oil, sufficient for 48 hours of flying at an average speed of 93 miles an hour.

THREE WOUNDED AS GUNSHOT GOES THROUGH WALL

The accidental discharge of a shotgun at Duck lake, a Lake county summer resort near Ingleside, yesterday sent a charge of buckshot through the wall of a cottage, wounding two men and a child. One of the men, Louis Kozekuh, 28 years old, 5428 North Kimball avenue, is in a critical condition from wounds in his head, it was said at the Victory Memorial hospital in Waukegan.

J. T. Frait, 33 years old, 5417 South Turner avenue, who was handling the shotgun when it was discharged, was locked up in the county jail at Waukegan as a material witness. He was released later on bonds of $3,000.

The charge from the gun passed through the wall of Frait's cottage and struck Kozekuh and his brother, Joseph, who were playing cards on the screened porch of a cottage next door. Some of the slugs went through the wall of that cottage and struck Joy, 4 year old daughter of Joseph Kozekuh. She and her father were not seriously hurt.

THREE STATES HUNT CLEWS IN YACHT MYSTERY

Entry in Log Gives Solution Hope.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 13.—[Special.]—Mrs. Benjamin P. Collings said tonight at her home in Stamford, Conn., that she was certain she could identify the gray haired, bushy eyebrowed old man who threw her husband overboard from his yacht, Penguin, last Wednesday night in Long Island sound. She said he was the same man who subjected her to indignities in a canoe while ferrying her across 12 miles of windswept water.

The Long Island police meanwhile were working on the theory that the supposed pirates who boarded the Penguin while it was anchored near Oyster Bay were an escaped lunatic and a youth in the power of the madman.

See No Other Explanation.

There is no other explanations to the actions of the two men, it was said at Mineola police headquarters. The entire adventure of the Collings family is so fantastic that only a madman could have acted in the manner in which at least the elder of the invaders did, it was pointed out.

Inspector Harold King of the Nassau county police, however, did not place any great confidence in the lunatic theory. He explained that Collings would have undoubtedly acted differently if he had suspected either of the pirates of being insane. If the old man, Inspector King said, had been alone, the lunatic theory might fit. "As it is, I doubt that it can be explained in that manner," he said.

Meanwhile investigators in three states were delving into possible clews, and Mrs. Collings was adding new bits of information about her sea-loving husband. In New Jersey, forty miles from where the Penguin bobbed the night Collings was tied up and dumped overboard and his wife was subjected to indignities in a fragile canoe, a body was found in Northport bay.

Body Proves False Clew.

It resembled the pictures of Collings and for several hours hopes were held that the yachtsman's disappearance had been solved. It was not Collings' body, however, and another clew went glimmering.

A rumor that Collings, a man of mystery so far as his finances are concerned, might be the "tip-off" man for a band of rum runners gained strength when baby Barbara was quoted as saying "My father lost his job and went into the water with his clothes on." Inspector Harold King of the Nassau county police, however, said there was no evidence to connect Collings with bootleggers.

The statement from Mrs. Collings that she could identify the elder of the two pirates and the Springfield leads were the only tangible things in evidence tonight. A photostatic copy of the page in the register from Hotel Charles was obtained by the Long Island police. The name "F. E. Collingbourne and wife, Stamford, Conn.," leads the page. The date was Aug. 2, 1930.

There was a notation in the Penguin's log dated Aug. 4, 1930, which read:

"M..... came abroad today with Lillian."

Lillian is Mrs. Collings' first name.

Information from Springfield tonight stated that a man named "Marring" registered an automobile in the Blue Ribbon garage there on Aug. 2 of last year. No initials were available at the garage.

Blanket from Same Hotel.

When Mrs. Collings was found in the small motorboat anchored in Oyster Bay harbor the morning after her misadventures she was wrapped in warm blankets, one of which bore the stamp "Hotel Charles." She has told the police the man who placed her in the boat after acting in a fiendish manner gave her the covers because he feared "she would be cold in a light dress."

Mrs. Collings declared she could throw no direct light on the connection between the blankets and the Hotel Charles registration. There is no Collingbourne residing in Stamford. It is an unusual name, just as Collings is rarely seen in directories. The young wife insisted she never had been in the Hotel Charles and did not believe her husband had.

The handwriting on the hotel register was compared with the signature of Collings in the log of the Penguin. It was a different style. Collings wrote his log in a vertical, rounded script. The writing in the register has a pronounced slope. Inspector King said it was improbable that Collings was the man who registered in Springfield, but other authorities held that the registration might have been in the handwriting of a companion.

Will Follow up Clew.

Mr. King pointed out that the phrase "and wife," which was crowded into the line, was hardly the way an educated man would register even if using an assumed name.

Nevertheless the fact that Collings and Mrs. Collings were in different localities at that time and that it would have been entirely possible for the yachtsmen to have kept an appointment in Springfield continued to occupy the attention of the investigators.

The other link in which a pair of male hitch hikers figure also includes the marked blanket. They passed the night in the hotel several weeks ago and a blanket was missing the morning they went away. The possibility that they were the two canoe pirates and the blanket they stole was the one thrown around Mrs. Collings did not receive verification tonight. The Springfield police were asked to obtain more detailed descriptions of them, one report having described them as being elderly men and acting queerly. The manager of the hotel was out of the city and the hotel records were locked in the safe over the week-end.

Says She Can Identify Him.

The Nassau county officers told reporters this afternoon that Mrs. Collings had seen the intruders too vaguely for her description to be of any value. Mrs. Collings, at her home in Stamford, a few hours later, was certain she could identify one of them.

"I am sure I could identify the elder of the two men if I were to see him," said the young wife. "He was a man I had never seen before, but it would not be hard to pick him out. He was about 50, 5 feet 11 inches tall, quite heavy and had close-cropped iron grey hair and bushy, black eyebrows. I paid little attention to the boy. They were both dressed like workmen, but they spoke in low tones and did not use profanity. I think the boy was afraid of the old man. He seemed glad to get out of the boat and wade ashore. I don't know why the man gave me the blankets after he had treated us as he did."

Mr. King told what he had learned of Collings' financial status when the question of bootlegging and the fact that Collings had retired from active business several years ago on a very limited income was brought up.

Discards Bootlegging Theory.

"Mr. Collings," said the inspector, "had an income of from $1,800 to $2,000 a year. Neither he nor his wife carried insurance. They lived frugally aboard the yacht. I understand his father is well-to-do. There is no reason to believe there is a bootlegging slant to this case. There was no liquor nor narcotics on the Penguin. We did not find even a whisky glass or ash trays. Neither Mr. nor Mrs. Collings drinks and Mrs. Collings does not smoke. It was a clean little boat in every respect. No, Collings was not mixed up in the liquor racket."

The inspector was asked if he had questioned Mrs. Collings about sighting other boats, possibly coast guard vessels, the night of the trouble.

"Yes," said the inspector, "we did. There is a lot of traffic on the sound even in the middle of the night and I consider it peculiar that she did not see other vessels. But she says she did not. The only mention she made of rum runners was to explain why she had not called for aid when first put in the anchored boat in Oyster bay.

Feared to Call for Aid.

"She said she was afraid to scream because rum runners might be in the vicinity. We thought this odd, but then everything connected with the story is fantastic. Mrs. Collings has told one story all along and has not changed it materially, although from time to time she has embellished it considerably. She is under no suspicion and we are not watching her home. She is free to see any one or do anything she wishes to do."

Mr. King said his men had discovered no "past" in the lives of either of the Collingses. He was asked if he had ascertained the whereabouts of Helen Collings, a sister, or the other members of the Collings family on the night of the yachtsman's disappearance. King said he had not looked into the matter and did not intend to.

There was no insurance slant, no "family skeleton"; in fact, no motive of any kind for the attack on the Collings yacht and its occupants, Mr. King said.

Maitress Incident Doesn't Fit.

He shook his head sadly when asked about the pneumatic mattress incident as related by Mrs Collings in her original story. The mattress, she said, had been dragged from the cabin and flung into the sound despite the pirates when she saw her husband floating in the water.

Today the mattress rested in the tender attached to the Penguin. It was there last Thursday. Only about a foot has been touched by the water and the salt stain is clearly visible. It could not possibly have been entirely in the water, observers said.

"Last night," said the inspector, "we put Mrs. Collings aboard the Penguin and cruised until after midnight in the sound. I wanted to get her reaction and to see if it would be possible to hear conversation above the sound of the engine while below deck.

"Was it possible," the inspector was asked?

"Well, I couldn't hear anything but the engine," he smiled.

Told of Overhearing Conversation.

Mrs. Collings has told of hearing her husband and the two pirates talking on deck and of the melodramatic manner in which Collings bulletined the things they were doing to him before the old man said "Don't tie him too tight." She also told of hearing the splash of the body.

Mr. King said Mrs. Collings returned to her home about 2:30 a. m. aboard the private yacht of William B. Leeds, the wealthy young sportsman who owns an estate nearby and who has been aiding in the case.

Failure to Fight a Puzzle.

Inspector King was frankly puzzled by the failure of Mrs. Collings to put up any kind of fight to protect either her husband or baby, and by the failure of Collings to fight for his wife or baby.

"I'm trying to keep my mind free from premature conclusions," said the inspector, "because we have only the most fanciful things to go on so far. The story as Mrs. Collings tells it certainly is not consistent with what one would expect from a man or woman under such circumstances."

AUSTRIAN TROOPS QUELL "PUTSCH"

Map shows towns where revolt of Austria's Fascist Heimwehr, an armed political organization, rose at dawn yesterday and was quelled by regular troops by evening. The disturbance was confined to the province of Styria. Two persons were slain in Kapfenberg when the rebel forces opened fire in a clash with police.

AUSTRIAN TROOPS QUELL DAWN TO DUSK REBELLION

Fascist Heimwehr Revolts; Two Are Killed.

BY EMIL MAASS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Sept. 13.—Austria's armed Fascist political organization, the Heimwehr, today arose in the revolt which its members have been plotting for over two years. Dr. Walter Pfriemer, a lawyer and close associate of Adolf Hitler, Germany's Fascist chieftain, seized public buildings in Kapfenberg, Bruck, Judenburg, Knittelfeld, Loeben, Pernegg, and other towns in the province of Styria.

The revolt began at 1 a. m. and by dawn Dr. Pfriemer had proclaimed a Fascist dictatorship for all of Austria under himself. For seven hours his "Fascist government" displayed authority in Styrian towns and villages. But by noon the rebellion had ended and at 5 p. m. the Heimwehr forces had evacuated the buildings and had retired.

Two Killed in Clash.

During the brief uprising machine guns and rifles crackled, and at Kapfenberg the rebel forces stormed the secretariat of the Social Democratic party and opened fire when police dispersed them, killing two workers and wounding twelve others.

Three hundred uniformed members of the Heimwehr collected in a trench near the town of Bruck at 1 a. m. The Socialist Republican defense corps, also an armed political organization and bitter enemies of the Heimwehr, informed the government in Vienna. Sixteen motor buses, packed with regular troops, were rushed to Bruck from Graz, the Styrian capital. Other detachments came from Vienna and neighboring garrisons and forced the Heimwehr to flee.

Standing beside machine guns and stacked rifles in a field near Wartberg, a group of Heimwehr men were surprised by troops and fled. At Bruck, the arrival of infantry in steel helmets sent the Heimwehr forces scurrying for cover.

Troops Recapture Buildings.

The revolt began at Judenburg, Dr. Pfriemer's home, and spread quickly. At Murzzuschlag, troops recaptured public buildings without firing a shot. Rebel forces also were routed in Schlaming, Judenburg, and Zeltweg. At Puchberg, 15 miles from Vienna, a force of 700 insurgents surrendered when 50 regular soldiers appeared from the garrison at Klosterneuberg. All were taken prisoner.

The government, upon receiving reports of the revolt, immediately ordered the arrest of Dr. Pfriemer and Count Lamberg, second in command in the Heimwehr, on charges of treason. According to reports late tonight the government has arrested hundreds of the rebels.

Dr. Pfriemer late tonight issued a manifesto declaring that he was quitting the "putsch" and ordered his followers to return to their homes.

Leaders of the Heimwehr in Vienna have declared that they had no knowledge of the Styrian "coup." Prince Starhemberg, national head of the organization, announced that he had no connection whatever with the movement.

The war office tonight announced that it had received reports that government troops had forced the rebel forces to surrender at all centers of the disturbance.

CITY EMPLOYE, SHOT BY ROBBER, DIES OF WOUND

Frank McNally, 40 years old, of 5305 Emerald avenue, a clerk in the city collector's office, died early this morning in the German Deaconess hospital of a revolver wound received Sunday when he was too slow in raising his arms at the command of three holdup men. His companion, James Carey, also 45 years old, 5256 South Halsted street, was shot in the chest at the same time and is now in the hospital fighting for his life. McNally and Carey were accosted by the bandits at 53d street and Emerald avenue.

RESTAURANT CASHIER ROBBED.

Two robbers, one of them armed, held up Joseph Pandolis, 4710 Fulton street, cashier in the Rakilos restaurant at 174 West Jackson boulevard early yesterday morning, and escaped with $100.

ASK INDICTMENT OF MISSING HEAD OF BANK TODAY

Ariani to Be Accused of $144,395 Theft.

Savario Ariani, missing president of the closed First Italian State bank, 1201 Taylor street, is to be charged today with embezzlement of $144,395 of the bank's funds. Assistant State's Attorney Henry E. Ayers yesterday said he will ask the banker's indictment before the grand jury or get a warrant for his arrest.

SAVARIO ARIANI.

At the same time State Auditor Oscar Nelson will seek to determine whether all deposits accepted were properly recorded on the books of the bank. This investigation is to be made by examining bank books of depositors. This was decided upon when auditors reported the bank records showed a "surprisingly good condition."

Early Arrest Expected.

Prosecutor Ayers expects Ariani to be arrested within the week. The banker is believed to have fled to the east. Officials are of the opinion that fear of violence from depositors prompted the alleged theft to finance the banker's flight.

Mrs. Mariana Ariani, wife of the banker, who was cashier of the bank, and two sons, Carlos and Romolo, are in technical custody of the state's attorney's office. They were unable to give bond of $20,000 set by Judge John Prystalski of the Criminal court in a habeas corpus action brought in their behalf. The writ will be heard today.

Additional auditors for the state's attorney's office are to begin today the examination of banks closed in 1929 in the inquiry on closed banks. Prosecutor Ayers requested the additional men because the statute of limitations on possible criminal charges in connection with the closings is elapsing. He has announced the earlier closings will be investigated first.

Continue Waukegan Inquiry.

The Lake county grand jury is to reconvene today in the investigation into the closing of the Waukegan State bank. The jury will meet today, Wednesday, and Friday. State's Attorney A. V. Smith said no indictments will be returned until late in the week.

Samuel Hastings, former mayor of Highland Park, and Lucius Teter of Lake Forest, stockholders of the National Bank of the Republic, of which the Waukegan bank was a correspondent, have been subpoenaed to testify today. The Chicago bank is now merged with the Central Trust company as the Central Republic Bank and Trust company. Joseph Stenger, cashier of the Waukegan bank, and his brother, Carl Stenger, former chairman of the board, are also to be witnesses. State Auditor Nelson is to reappear before the grand jury Wednesday.

EVANGELIST WED IN YUMA

Mr. Hutton was born at Dawson, Ill. He formerly was connected with a radio station in New York and has taken part in several national evangelistic campaigns. He was for a time a director at a minor independent motion picture concern here. He conducts a vocal studio in Hollywood. He is slightly crippled in both legs as result of infantile paralysis.

"We are due to appear together in an evangelistic meeting at Ventura tomorrow night and we are scheduled to start an evangelistic campaign at Portland, Ore., next Friday," said the bride. "So we decided on a simple immediate ceremony.

"A wait of three full days, required by California law, would have made it impossible to start the Portland campaign in time."

Following this engagement, Mrs. McPherson said, they will leave on an extended honeymoon, probably in Hawaii.

A Marrying Family.

Mrs. McPherson's 18 year old son by her second marriage, Rolfe McPherson, was married by his mother to Lorna Dee Smith, 17 year old Oklahoma heiress, a few months ago. Last June the Rev. Mrs. Minnie "Ma" Kennedy, Aimee's mother and former business manager, contracted a marriage in the state of Washington with Guy E. Hudson, "what-a-man" husband, which resulted in the coming forth of two other wives and near-wives of Hudson.

Mrs. Kennedy obtained a marriage annulment in Los Angeles one month ago, but later became reconciled to Hudson again.

The marriage is the third in the life of Mrs. McPherson, her first husband, Robert Semple, leaving her a missionary's widow in China in 1909; and her second husband, Harold McPherson, obtained a divorce from the evangelist in 1921.

RIVAL COPS WAVE GUNS IN WAR TO RUN BROOKFIELD

Two rival bands of policemen, armed with pistols and sawed off shotguns, fought a battle of words last night for the control of the police station at Brookfield, a southwest suburb, on the Burlington railroad. A crowd of townspeople watched the battle.

The defenders, all adherents to the cause of the veteran chief of police, E. J. O'Connor, who has refused to be fired by Village President James F. Mansfield, held onto their strategic position. Nicholas Ferdinand, who has been appointed by Mansfield to succeed O'Connor, and whose title is declared void by Chief O'Connor and John T. O'Brien, chairman of the village police committee, retired with his followers without resorting to violence after an effort to seize the station in the town hall.

Sergeant "Uses His Noodle."

When the Ferdinandites appeared, riding in the automobile of President Mansfield, they were met at the door of the town hall by Lieut. Stewart Schultz of the police reserve with three of his men. Desk Sergeant James Fitzgerald phoned Chief O'Connor at the latter's home and reported to him that Chief Ferdinand was attacking the station.

"What shall I do?" asked Sergt. Fitzgerald.

"Use your noodle," said Chief O'Connor.

Then Sergeant Fitzgerald, with his sawed off shotgun, went to the door.

"You men had better go away from here," he said to the Ferdinandites, "and you had better go peaceably or you will go otherwise."

When Chief Ferdinand announced he was only obeying the orders of the village president to take the village hall he was informed by Lieut. Schultz and Sergt. Fitzgerald to get an order from Trustee O'Brien.

No Place to Put Prisoners.

Then Chief Ferdinand went back to the village president's car and took up the work of patrolling the town for evildoers even if he had no place to put prisoners if he should catch any.

A little earlier President Mansfield had warned the citizens of Brookfield not to allow themselves to be arrested by any O'Connorites—that Chief Ferdinand was the only genuine chief in the village, and that Chief O'Connor and four of the old police force of eight were out for good.

"I fired them for inefficiency," Mansfield asserted. "The village board, on July 22, voted to call for their resignations. The president has the sole right to hire and fire policemen. I may appeal to the courts."

Denies Mansfield's Power.

The power of the president to remake the police force is denied by Trustee O'Brien.

"He has one vote in seven on the matter of appointments," said Mr. O'Brien. "Four of the board members have voted against the Mansfield faction. He can't fire these men without our sanction and he can't get that. There was never any demand made by this board for the resignation of Chief O'Connor and his men, who are honest and efficient and won't let bootleggers from Chicago or Melrose Park do business in the village."

The O'Brien-O'Connor faction assert that Ferdinand and his men are strangers to the village and that President Mansfield got them in Chicago "around 16th and Morgan streets." The Ferdinand followers are going through all the motions of police work except occupying a police station. They report by telephone to the O'Connorite desk sergeant, who hangs up on them.

Shortly before midnight a delegation of county highway policemen went to Brookfield from the Willow Springs station and obtained an agreement of the factions for a truce.

President Mansfield said last night that he might call a special meeting of the village board for tonight.

The election in April showed the choice of E. B. Graham as president of Brookfield, but a recount seated Mansfield. There has been friction between him and the board.

Hunt for Gang Cemetery, Fear Ex-Chief Buried There

A gangland burial ground near the Warrenville cemetery in Du Page county will be sought today by police in an effort to find the body of Rocco Passarella, former chief of police of Melrose Park, who is believed to have been slain and buried by his murderers.

Passarella for two years conducted an active campaign against west suburban bootleggers, coöperating with federal authorities. He disappeared June 15, after being lured from his home by a phone call, and since then neither his wife nor his twin brother, Daniel, fire chief of Melrose Park, has heard from him.

Several days ago information was given to State's Attorney Chauncey Reed of Du Page county that Passarella had been murdered and buried in a plot of ground which, it was intimated, might contain the bodies of other gangland murder victims. He advised Lieut. William Blaul of the Cook county state's attorney's office, and together they started an investigation. The gang cemetery is supposed to be just south of the Warrenville burial ground.

Acting on secret information last Saturday, Blaul, several detectives and deputy sheriffs, raided a combination cabaret and beer parlor near Warrenville, seized four men, and confiscated two stills, each of 3,000 gallon capacity. The prisoners, Tony Russo, Mike Killacci, and Frank and Michael Roda, were taken to the jail at Wheaton. Lieut. Blaul said last night the place was raided on reports that it was there that Passarella had been held captive since June.

Ex-Chief Passarella coöperated extensively with federal authorities in drying Melrose Park in 1928. He was ousted by the village board in January, 1930, but later he was restored with the rank of lieutenant at the behest of federal officials.

Shortly after Passarella was ousted as chief, he disappeared for a week, and at that time it was thought he was a gang victim. He returned, announcing he would continue his war on bootleggers.

Last November he was again ousted from the police department.

Introducing
ESTELLE B. HUNTER
Educational Director, The Better-English Institute of America

Miss Hunter is the author of the Institute's famous "See it—Hear it—Say it" course in PRACTICAL ENGLISH AND EFFECTIVE SPEECH. She is also the creator and writer of every "YOUR ENGLISH" broadcast since the inception of the feature more than three years ago, including those presented over stations WGN, KYW, WIBO, WMAQ, WTMJ, WLW, KDKA, WBZ, and eighty-one other stations which the Institute has used in its national better-speech campaigns. Her rare ability as an author of practical educational material has attracted nation-wide attention.

The 1932 edition of Practical English and Effective Speech will be presented in the Goodman Theatre on Tuesday evenings at 6:15 o'clock, beginning tomorrow, September 15. Reserve your seat today and enjoy fifteen zestful periods of profitable self-improvement.

Language is the dress of thought; every time you talk your mind is on parade. Does your English sparkle with vitality, or do inadequate expressions and slovenly speech habits dull the effect of what you say?

The famous "See it—Hear it—Say it" course, combining illustrative stereopticon slides and intensive oral drills with the instructor's lecture, was originated by the Better-English Institute of America three years ago. It is more than a single course in English; it is a complete review of English speech essentials, comprising:

Vocabulary Development — Elimination of Speech Faults
Correct Pronunciation — Grammatical Correctness
Clear Enunciation — Effective Expression

The course also covers certain points which are essential to one's poise and ease in social circles, such as the correct pronunciation of menu French. Exquisite colored slides and extracts from masterpieces of literature add to the cultural tone of this thoroughly tested and basically sound course of instruction.

William D. Saltiel, lawyer, business man, scholar, and nationally famous orator, will conduct the 1932 presentation of this extraordinary course.

It is infinitely wise to make an economical, sound investment toward the improvement of Your English. You pay dearly for handicapped ability.

FUNERAL PYRES BLAZE AS RUINED CITY BURNS DEAD

Death Toll in Hurricane Rises to 1,200.

BELIZE, Honduras, Sept. 13.—(AP)—[via Pan American Airways radio.]—Huge clouds of black, stench-laden smoke hung over Belize today as cremation was resorted to in disposing of bodies of victims of the tropical hurricane which took an estimated death toll of 1,200 lives and caused enormous property damage to this Honduran capital.

Scores of bodies were burned on five vast funeral pyres almost in the center of the devastated city yesterday and today as government officials attempted to prevent the spread of disease.

The bodies, cremated on open fires, were in addition to more than 700 counted as they were placed in crude graves dug in the city cemetery by prison labor.

Clear Away Wreckage.

Meanwhile squads of volunteer laborers worked ceaselessly under the direction of Honduran soldiers, clearing away the tangled wreckage of homes and business houses that until Thursday made up the capital of British Honduras.

Hundreds of persons injured in the storm and tidal wave that accompanied the blow continued to receive medical aid rushed here by airplane and ship.

Every manner of business has been paralyzed. Residents, many of whom lost their homes and all their belongings, turned willing hands to aid in carrying on the relief work. To them the shock of the storm has just begun to be felt.

Relief work by the U. S. S. Swan was augmented today by the arrival of the U. S. S. cruiser Sacramento. Officials believe that danger of food riots apparently has passed and that relief measures now are in hand.

Cremation Ghastly Spectacle.

During the cremation, bodies of the victims were dumped on the five huge funeral pyres without ceremony as the city fought against disease. The spectacle was ghastly.

From the air Belize appeared as a conglomerate mass of wreckage. An airplane which arrived from Miami, Fla., today flew over the city for an inspection of the damage and its occupants saw no building left undamaged.

More than a dozen sea going boats were piled up on land along the waterfront, some as far as 50 yards from the water's edge.

The American consul's office reported that ten Jesuit priests apparently were the only Americans to lose their lives in the storm. That office is making up a list of American destitute who will be provided with funds sent by the Red Cross.

Wrigley Factory Destroyed.

Almost every family in the city has been affected in some way by the death toll.

Philip Woods, member of the staff of the Clarion, Belize newspaper, which was destroyed, lost his brother and the latter's wife and two children, all British subjects, in the storm.

The Wrigley company's building, headquarters for the chicle industry in this section, was demolished. The customs house was left standing but it is badly damaged.

The British ship Danae is enroute here with additional supplies. The plane which arrived today from Miami brought 50 pounds of serum picked up at Havana.

United States marines and sailors took over enforcement of martial law tonight as an accommodation to relieve local soldiers who are exhausted from long hours on duty. The marines arrived here on the Sacramento.

Recover Body of American.

The body of Rudy Lewis, an American, whose home address was not learned, was recovered from the water today. He was killed with 23 others in St. George's bay, nine miles northeast of Belize, where the hurricane struck before hitting the mainland.

Many persons lost their lives when water from 5 to 16 feet deep swept over them as they lay pinioned by timbers or walls of buildings blown down by the storm. Heavy timbers were hurled through numerous stone buildings by the force of the wind.

St. John's college buildings in the southern section of Belize were razed. Houses in the residential section are standing askew, across the streets or in wreckage. In Sandor, near here, many small vessels sunk. Masts are sticking above the water and hulls of other ships are exposed.

Burning of wrecked buildings by authorities continued today as a means of disposing of the debris.

Many of the residents here are faced with food and water shortage. They are depending on rainwater for drinking purposes and no rain has fallen since Thursday afternoon, the day of the storm. Incoming vessels are expected to relieve the food shortage situation.

U. S. Consul Flown to Tela.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13.—(AP)—Giles Russell Taggart, American consul at Belize, British Honduras, was flown today to Tela, Honduras, for medical attention. A dispatch to the state department said that while first reports showed Taggart's injuries to be slight, examination at the United Fruit company hospital in the Honduran city had revealed the 61 year old official was suffering from pneumonia, broken ribs, and bruises. He was flown to Tela in a marine plane.

Lower California Hit.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 13.—(AP)—Efforts to communicate with La Paz, capital of the southern district of Lower California, were fruitless today, and it was thought here that last week's hurricane must have damaged the radio station there, which was the only means of communication.

RUSH APPARATUS TO FIGHT BELIZE FIRE FROM N. Y. BY PLANE

New York, Sept. 13.—(AP)—An airplane sped southward from Newark airport late today with an bundle of odd-looking gadgets which may save the city of Belize, Honduras, from destruction by fire. The bundle contained spark plugs, a magneto and nozzles for Belize's two fire engines, damaged so badly in last week's hurricane and tidal wave as to be useless without immediate repair.

A wireless message to the New York News said the engines were out of commission and the ruins of the stricken city were in flames. The New York fire department was given a description of the Belize fire fighting apparatus and scouts combed supplies here for the needed parts. It was the chief of the Mamaroneck, Westchester, department who finally located them, the equipment here being of other types.

At 3:35 p. m. Pilot W. L. Jamieson loaded the 33 pound bundle into his mail plane and soared away. The plane, after stops at Richmond and Atlanta to change pilots, load and discharge mail, and refuel, is scheduled to arrive in Miami at 1:45 p. m. tomorrow. Standing on the Miami airfield will be another plane, of the Pan-American Airways, into which the bundle will be shifted and hurried along to Belize.

OPEN ARGUMENT TODAY ON CANAL GRAFT CHARGES

Will Decide if Crowe and Ex-Aids Go to Trial.

Arguments are scheduled to start this morning in Superior Judge Joseph B. David's courtroom which will decide whether Timothy J. Crowe, former president of the sanitary district during the "whoopee era," and eight other former trustees and officials of the district are to go to trial on graft conspiracy charges. The charges have been pending in the courts for nearly three years. The defense attorneys will argue that the indictment is faulty and should be quashed.

T. J. CROWE. [Walinger photo.]

First Assistant State's Attorney John E. Northup, who has devoted virtually all of his time to the investigation and preparation of the case against the politicians, said that in the event the indictment is quashed this time he would give up the fight and not seek a new indictment against them.

Other Defendants in Case.

The other defendants under indictment are James M. Whalen, John J. Touhy, Frank J. Link, John K. Lawler, and August Miller, former trustees; John T. Miller, a former official; Timothy Connolly, fugitive purchasing agent, and Martin Edelstein, former real estate agent for the district.

The sanitary district investigation was originated in 1928 by Attorney Frank J. Loesch as a special prosecutor. The inquiry later was taken over by the staff of State's Attorney Swanson after he had succeeded Robert E. Crowe and Northup was brought from the staff of United States Attorney George E. Q. Johnson to take charge of the case.

An indictment against the defendants was voted in 1929. The case, after long delay, was assigned to Judge David. Last June he ruled that three of the nine counts in the indictment were faulty and should be quashed. Prosecutor Northup dismissed the entire indictment and went before the grand jury and obtained a new one.

To Argue on Indictment.

The legality of this indictment is to be argued today. The prosecutor said that the pending indictment is substantially the same as the original document, except that it is believed to cover the points which made the three counts of the first indictment faulty.

Prosecutor Northup said that he is prepared for an immediate trial if Judge David sustains the indictment. The defense attorneys have not signified their intentions. All the defendants except Connolly, who has been a fugitive for several years, have announced themselves in court as being satisfied to have Judge David preside over the trial.

It was pointed out that the defendants have a right to waive a jury and may ask Judge David to hear the evidence. A case is now pending for decision in the State Supreme court as to whether the state can demand a jury even though the defendant waives the right. A decision is expected from the Supreme court at the October term. The prosecutor said that he might be willing to wait for this decision in the event the defense does not want a jury trial.

FALL FATAL TO AGED WOMAN.

Mrs. Agnes Whisner, 75 years old, 6044 Champlain avenue, died yesterday in the country hospital of pneumonia which developed after she fell in her home Sept. 5.

PLANE CARRYING STORM PICTURES CRASHES; 2 DEAD

Vero Beach, Fla., Sept. 13.—(AP)—Two men were killed and a third was believed to have met a similar fate as an airplane carrying pictures of hurricane scenes in Belize, British Honduras, crashed in a citrus grove at Oslo, near here.

The bodies of G. R. McBroom and George H. Gibson, pilot and co-pilot, were found in the wreckage. The body of E. A. Edwards, Miamia newspaper photographer, who was believed to have been on board, was not found.

The plane was making a chartered night flight from Miami to Atlanta when the crash occurred.

SERIOUSLY WOUNDED IN ROBBERY.

Peter Hendrickson, 25 years old, 5452 South Peoria street, was in a serious condition in the Washington Park hospital yesterday as a result of being shot by one of two colored men who attempted to rob him earlier in the day in Washington park near 58th street.

Mississippi River Falls 4.5 Feet in Last Ten Days

Quincy, Ill., Sept. 13.—[Special.]—The Mississippi river here has fallen 4.5 feet in the last ten days, so far as is known a record drop for September. The river this morning was .1 of a foot below low water mark. Every indication points to the river reaching the lowest mark ever recorded here unless heavy and continuous rains fall above here.

LOST! 37 Pounds of FAT in 5 Weeks

Well Known Battle Creek Woman Jubilant—Reduced Hips Six Inches, Reduced Bust Four Inches—Feels So Light and Full of Pep!

Suppose you weighed 250 pounds, and every time you looked in a mirror you were so discouraged as you gazed upon a huge double chin, heavy arms and legs, large hips and bust.

And suppose this over-fat condition made you too heavy for your own feet—until you felt constantly all dragged out, stomach upset, gas pains that made you cry out with pain, and tremendous appetite.

And then you tried one thing after another—and you're all ready to give up in despair.

Such was the dilemma of Mrs. Elizabeth Barrett, 23 Barney St., Battle Creek, Mich. Her druggist recommended Bonkora to her, which he knew to be the one safe, natural way to take off excess poundage by cleansing wastes from the intestines and removing moisture from fatty tissues. But let her tell her story:

"Every meal brought acid belching, gas and heaviness. With all this, my weight increased until I tipped the scales at 250 lbs. Relief seemed impossible until I tried Bonkora. It has corrected severe stomach distress and constipation, and made me feel like a new person—and when I had used five bottles I stepped on the scales and, behold, I had lost 37 pounds, and can now wear dresses four sizes smaller."

You may not lose 37 pounds in 5 weeks. But if you have excess fat you can lose it in the famous "3 easy stages," as shown in this picture. For the next week, before meals, take a little Bonkora, the new Battle Creek treatment, in half a glass of water. No need to starve. Eat as much as you want. The big secret is selecting for each meal the proper combination of foods that do not clog the system and turn to fat. An almost endless choice of appealing dishes, showing you how to select the correct combination of foods you probably like best, furnished free.

Bonkora, the safe and effective method to reduce—recently perfected by a skilful chemist—contains only the choicest and most efficacious medicaments of Nature. NO thyroid or other drug that may jeopardize your health.

Simply set a bottle of Bonkora, the new Battle Creek treatment, with free list of anti-fat food combinations at Walgreen's or Economical today—unhealthy fat will quickly disappear and with it blood, gas and other stomach ills. You'll look younger, yes, you'll look younger, with those bright eyes and that clear skin and stunning, youthful figure which only perfect health can impart.

Ald. Nelson's Daughter Aids in Rescue.

Hurled into the deep waters of Fox lake during a severe but brief rainstorm—perhaps the harbinger of further rains that are expected to rout the long heat spell today—six Chicagoans were rescued late yesterday afternoon by occupants of other boats who risked their own lives.

All six were in a small boat powered by an outboard motor and owned by Joseph B. Sweeney, 3655 Drake avenue, an employé of the Commonwealth Edison company. They were nearly two miles from shore when a sudden squall, accompanied by lightning flashes and torrents of rain, swept over them.

The little boat was capsized. Sweeney, his wife, and their guests, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Prosser, 4210 North Mason avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. Neil Van Hoeven, 2158 Berteau avenue, were tossed into the water.

Alderman's Daughter Aids Rescue.

As they clung desperately to their submerged craft, their plight was witnessed by Frank Gans, of McHenry, and also by Miss Dorothy Nelson, daughter of Ald. Oscar Nelson of Chicago, a summer resident at Fox lake. With Miss Nelson in the alderman's power launch were her fiancé, Wallace Alstrin of 1606 Massasoit avenue, Robert Marquett of 1011 Thomas avenue, Forest Park, and George A. Randall, 143 North Mason avenue.

Both rescue boats started simultaneously for the one that was overturned. Mrs. Sweeney had loosed her hold and her husband also had let go the boat and was struggling to keep her head above water. Without ceremony Gans noosed a rope about Sweeney's neck, tied it to his boat to hold Sweeney's head above water, and then plunged in to rescue Mrs. Sweeney.

Choked by Rope on His Neck.

Sweeney's four guests made their way to the Gans boat and almost swamped it climbing in. Miss Nelson and her companions arrived in time to pull Gans and Mrs. Sweeney from the water and to take the four guests into their larger boat.

It was found that the rope around Sweeney's neck had choked him and he became unconscious after being dragged in. He and his wife were taken to the National Athletic club boathouse on the lake, where they were given medical treatment. The others were taken to Ald. Nelson's cottage.

The rains to the northwest were the only ones reported in the Chicago area and temperatures continued high, a maximum of 92 being reached at 3 p. m. At midnight an unofficial reading was 82 degrees. Today's official forecast is for some cooling off and moderate temperatures are looked for tomorrow.

High winds blowing from the south yesterday caused several boats trouble on Lake Michigan and coast guardsmen rescued the occupants of six of them. The largest of the craft to become disabled was the Helene, a 50 foot motor cruiser owned by W. C. Tackett, 230 East Delaware place. The Wilmette guards towed it to Chicago and turned it over to Capt. John O. Anderson, who docked it safely at Navy pier.

Off the Oak street beach a canoe and a sailboat, each occupied by two men, were overturned. Coast guards went to the rescue. Off Navy pier Charles Angel, 17 years old, 8348 Chauncey avenue, and Steve Cwian, 1253 East 93d street, were thrown in the water when their sailboat capsized. They were taken aboard a passing motor craft.

DIES OF STAB WOUNDS.

An unidentified Mexican, about 35 years old, found stabbed in a vacant lot at Froquer and Des Plaines street yesterday, died at the county hospital without regaining consciousness.

PRUSSIA TO FIRE 10,000 TEACHERS TO SAVE MONEY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Sept. 13.—Fifty million dollars will be saved for the Prussian budget through new economies which will be enforced under an emergency decree. Details revealed by the "German Officials' union" show there will be drastic cuts in educational expenditures. Ten thousand teachers will lose their positions, and the remaining teachers must give more lessons. The children, however, will receive less instruction, while the size of the classes will be increased to 48 pupils. Simultaneously, special payments to teachers will be reduced.

Towns, districts, and councils will be given drastic powers to balance their local budgets. They must discharge all dispensable officials and workers, shorten the working hours, and cut salaries and wages.

Further measures include the stoppage of promotion of officials and the forbidding of any increase in salaries for two years.

LIST 5 DEATHS IN COUNTY FROM AUTO INJURIES

Four Men and Woman Are Victims.

Four men and a woman died in Cook county yesterday as a result of automobile accidents, increasing the motor toll since Jan. 1 to 848.

Mrs. Stina Swanson, 79 years old, 9719 Avenue M, died at the South Shore hospital of injuries suffered on July 21, when she was struck by an automobile driven by Louis Kaufman, 4805 Burleigh street, Milwaukee, an undertaker. Kaufman was ordered to attend the inquest today.

Driver Flees from Scene.

The death of Charles Sundvik, 70 years old, 4347 Maypole avenue, who was injured when he was struck by an automobile near his home on March 12, occurred at the county hospital. The driver of the car failed to stop. Sundvik had been an invalid since the accident.

Frank Piper, 58 years old, an inmate of the Salvation Army shelter at 509 North Union avenue, died at the county hospital of injuries suffered on Friday when he was struck by a commercial vehicle at Grand and Union avenues. Adam Smith, 1817 South Michigan avenue, the driver, was questioned by the police and released.

Victim of Crash Dies.

Clarence Simpson, colored, 50 years old, 241 North Paulina street, died at the county hospital yesterday of hurts suffered on Saturday. One of two automobiles which collided at Paulina and Lake streets turned over on him and pinned him to the pavement. The drivers in the crash were Joseph Adams, 2643 West Lake street, and Vincent Zokeski, 1353 North Ashland avenue.

Fred Lyons, colored, 25 years old, 2648 Massachusetts avenue, Gary, was fatally injured when an automobile which he was driving was struck and overturned by another car at 35th street and Parnell avenue. Joseph Sidell, 23 years old, 3824 Lake Park avenue, was the driver of the other automobile.

Probe Death at Crossing.

Investigation of the death of Thomas J. Murphy, 51 years old, 3943 Janssen avenue, who was killed only a few hours before the victims named above, disclosed that he lost his life in a futile attempt to start his car after it had stalled on the Milwaukee railroad tracks in Morton Grove.

Mrs. Helen Onyett, 1336 Jarvis avenue, who was with him, saved herself by leaping out. Murphy, when his attempt to start failed, also tried to leap, but was struck by a train before he completed the effort. Murphy was a retired garage owner.

BOARDMAN MAY ATTEMPT FLIGHT ACROSS PACIFIC

Marion, Ind., Sept. 13.—(AP)—Russell Boardman, holder with John Polando of the world's nonstop long distance flight record, said tonight he was "considering the possibility" of a flight across the Pacific ocean next spring.

Boardman has no definite plans, he said, but in the event the distance record is broken in the meantime, he and Polando might make the trans-Pacific flight in an attempt to regain it. They set the present mark in a flight to Istanbul, Turkey.

Holland Asks 500% Raise on Duties to Halt Dumping

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

THE HAGUE, Sept. 13.—The rapid growth of foreign competition, particularly in the increased importation of Russian wheat, has caused the Dutch government to present an anti-dumping bill to parliament. The bill authorizes an increase of 500 per cent in import duties on certain products.

CANCER CLINIC TO TEST NEW DRUGS FROM KEROSENE

Entirely New System of Compounds Found.

New York, Sept. 13.—(AP)—Alkaloids newly discovered at the University of Texas in crude kerosene will be tested at the University of Pennsylvania for possibilities of new medical properties.

These products, different from anything hitherto obtained from a natural source, are classified as hydro-aromatic bases, in which are included such well known plant drugs as quinine, morphine, cocaine, and strychnine.

The coöperative research was announced here today by Dr. J. R. Bailey, professor of organic chemistry at the University of Texas. The petroleum alkaloids will be tried out in the cancer research institute of the University of Pennsylvania. The head of this institute, Dr. Ellice McDonald, issued a statement that "these new substances are a great and promising field in medicine and biological research."

New Types of Compounds.

An unusual feature is that these substances derived from petroleum represent new types of compounds, previously unknown to the chemist. Hitherto the plant kingdom alone has furnished alkaloids. Interesting also is the fact that these novel alkaloids do not exist already formed in petroleum, but result from breaking down of more complex molecules in the refining process of crude oil.

All of them contain a single nitrogen atom united with numerous carbon and hydrogen atoms to form molecules of the general shape which chemists call "rings" or "cyclic molecules."

They differ from the plant alkaloids in that they contain no atoms of oxygen. No one can foretell how far these slight differences may go toward producing important effects upon disease. But it would be an upset of chemical history were there not encountered in this vast domain of organic nitrogen compounds one or more substances of exceptional medicinal value.

Can Be Purified Easily.

An advantage of the petroleum alkaloids is the fact that they can be distilled, and thus be highly purified. Plant alkaloids cannot be distilled.

Scores of the new substances have been found by the eleven University of Texas scientists working with Dr. Bailey. He says there are probably hundreds more.

The Union Oil company of California also has distilled for the University of Texas 25 tons, a carload, of cottonseed meal. Already, in small quantities of this cotton product, the Texans have found alkaloids closely resembling those from petroleum. This investigation has been hampered by lack of facilities to distil the meal at the university. The Union Oil company also has furnished the petroleum alkaloids, obtaining them by distilling kerosene for the university.

Mother Drowns in Lake - as Son Fishes Nearby

While her son fished for perch nearby, Mrs. Pauline Kawalski, 53 years old, 2137 Armitage avenue, slipped into the lake from the concrete breakwater just south of the Navy pier yesterday and was drowned. The first that the son, Casmer, 27 years old, knew of the tragedy was when he saw his mother's body floating in the water.

AND A GUARANTEE THAT MEANS SOMETHING

• AS ADVANCED AND MODERN as when the first one was produced, the General Electric "No Service Expense" refrigerator is the one refrigerator that assures you against being saddled with obsolete equipment. Home-owners, tenants, landlords, all prefer it. Ultra-modern in appearance and appointment—down to the latest detail of shelves that slide in and out, easily and conveniently, like a drawer.

• SAVES MOST. Whether you be landlord or tenant—whether you own your home or rent—you will find General Electric is literally the least expensive electric refrigerator. "No Service Expense" has been associated with General Electric since the beginning. Most guarantees cover replacement of defective parts. General Electric unconditionally guarantees you against service expense of any kind, on any model, for three years. Check this matter of guarantee.

• NOTHING TO GET OUT OF ORDER in a General Electric. The entire mechanism is hermetically sealed—in a lifetime supply of oil—in the modern Monitor Top. A General Electric Oil Conditioner keeps the oil as it should be—always at a running temperature. General Electric never needs oiling. No exposed moving parts to collect dust and dirt—to tempt children or amateur mechanics. No danger of injuring the spotlessly clean porcelain "Super-Freezer" when removing ice cubes or frozen desserts.

• BUILT FOR HARD USAGE. General Electric all-steel, turbine-construction cabinets will stand all kinds of "wear-and-tear". No wood to sag, warp and decay. Have a General Electric representative point out to you the advantages of these enduring all-steel cabinets over inferior types of construction.

Over 54,000 apartments in Chicago hotel and apartment buildings—rentals ranging from $32.50 to $2000 a month—equipped with General Electric refrigerators exclusively. Why should you experiment? Talks to U. S. Over Radio; Fascinated by "Mike."

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

LONDON, Sept. 13. — Mahatma Gandhi, India's Nationalist leader, today made a definite bid for the support of the world's public opinion, particularly America's, in his fight for independence for India, the next phase of which begins peacefully over the round table here tomorrow, in a half-hour speech especially broadcast in the United States. The address was not heard in Great Britain.

It was the first time in his life the mahatma ever talked over the radio and he seemed to enjoy the experience. Prime ministers and presidents have been right on time when they go on the radio a prominent radio official who supervised arrangements pointed out, but Gandhi simply would not interrupt his supper of goat's milk and oranges.

Keeps on Eating.

"Mr. Gandhi, please, it's time now," pleaded radio men as the seconds ticked off. The "holy man" went right on eating.

Miss Madeleine Slade, a British admiral's daughter, and Gandhi's close associate, came to the rescue and offered to say a few words. So did Muriel Lester, director of Kingsley Hall settlement, where Gandhi is occupying a room.

Miss Lester filled in the gap until it was finally impressed upon Gandhi what valuable time he was losing.

Finally he came, hitching up his loin cloth, and squatted before the microphone.

He grabbed the microphone as if it were a toy and for 30 seconds radio officials gritted their teeth nervously. There was a complete silence. Gandhi looked at the microphone, fascinated. But not a word came from him. The people in the room almost collapsed.

"He's got radio fright," an official whispered.

"Mike" Fascinates Gandhi.

Then, hitching his feet up under him, Gandhi started to talk. His sharp eyes stared at the center of the microphone. His voice was low, but distinct. He said later that he was not nervous in the least, but that the microphone and the idea that it was carrying his frail voice across the ocean to millions he has never seen fascinated him.

Gandhi admitted that the American interest in his revolution is based on its peculiar nature.

"The world is sick of blood spilling," he said. "I personally would wait for ages rather than attain freedom through bloody means. I flatter myself that India's unique method—non-violence—may show the world the way out from all the violent turmoil.

"I have, therefore, no hesitation whatsoever in inviting all the great nations of the earth in giving their hearty coöperation to India in her mighty struggle.

"It must be a sight worth contemplating and treasuring, that often millions of people have given themselves to suffering with retaliation, in order that they might vindicate the dignity and honor of the nation. I have called that suffering a process of self-purification.

"I am painfully conscious of our own weaknesses. We represent in Indian all the principal religions of the earth, and it is a matter of real humiliation to confess that we are a house divided against itself; that we, Hindus and Moslems, are flying at one another's throats.

Speaks of Untouchables.

"It is a matter of still deeper humiliation to me that we Hindus regard several million of our faith and kin as too degraded even for our touch. I refer to the so-called untouchables. These are no small weaknesses in a nation struggling to be free, and hence you find that in this struggle through self-purification, we have assigned a foremost place to the removal of this curse of untouchability and the attainment of unity amongst all the different classes and communities of India, representing the different creeds.

"Unfortunately for us, when the East India company, by means which I would prefer not to describe, destroyed the supplementary village industry of cloth, the millions of spinners who had become famed through the cunning of their deft fingers, for drawing the finest thread, such as has never been yet drawn by any modern machinery, found themselves one fine morning with their noble occupation gone, and from that day forward India has become progressively poor, no matter what may be said to the contrary.

"May I not then, on behalf of these semi-starved millions, appeal to the conscience of the world, to come to the rescue of a people dying to regain its liberty."

Refers to "Evils of Drink."

Gandhi, who has long harbored the belief that prohibition in the United States is a great success because many drys have assured him so, also spoke about the "evils of drink and drugs." He blamed the British government largely "because it encourages drinking in order to procure a source of revenue."

The mahatma said tonight he will attend the opening meeting of the federal structures committee tomorrow, but will maintain his usual Monday vow of silence. This began after his broadcast tonight. That will not prevent him from communicating by written notes when he desires to present his views.

Gandhi had a long conversation with Prime Minister MacDonald last night at the Dorchester hotel in the rooms of Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru, an Indian delegate and a moderate. It is understood that Gandhi intimated that if the government is prepared to discuss the independence demands in principle as laid down at Karachi by the All-India national congress, he would be prepared to continue negotiations, but that otherwise he could see no purpose in further discussions. The details could be left to experts, he is reported to have stated.

RUSSIA PADLOCKS MONEY USED TO STIR RED RIOTS

Don't Ask for Funds, Agents Abroad Told.

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, Sept. 13.—Communist parties in Europe and America will not receive increased subsidies for agitation purposes this winter and leaders of foreign Reds must cease petitioning headquarters in Moscow for more funds, according to a circular letter addressed to all communist parties abroad. The letter was found by the Latvian political police during local raids in which 10 communists were arrested.

The letter states that the Ikki—the executive committee of the communist party—may grant additional funds in special cases, but it censures foreign agents for linking bright prospects of stirring up trouble in their countries with requests for larger remittances.

Urges Dues Be Raised.

Ikki believes that through increased membership dues and more intensive work by agitators the desired demonstrations by the unemployed, strikes and open conflicts with police, can be arranged. The letter adds that additional letters are being prepared which will contain further instructions from Moscow.

A copy of the letter addressed to the Latvian communists said that the comintern is forwarding a small extra remittance for use in the approaching Latvian parliamentary elections, but warned that unless the local Reds succeeded in keeping the cash from being confiscated by the political police further remittances will be discontinued. Since the first of the year, the police believe, they have captured almost 60 per cent of the comintern's appropriation for Latvia, and close cooperation with Lithuanian and Esthonian police has resulted in paralyzing comintern activities in the Baltic states.

Additional light was thrown on the Ikki letter by a report received from the Latvian representative at Moscow. He reported that the political bureau of the communist party met last week at the Kremlin to discuss the world economic crisis and the future policy of the comintern.

Need Credits More Than Riots.

Dictator Stalin reiterated his policy that the five year plan to industrialize Russia is more important than the subsidization of foreign communist parties, and that the soviet government needs credits a great deal more than Red uprisings abroad.

The dictator referred to his speech of 1927 in which he declared that the cause of the world revolution was best helped by making the Russian revolution a success, and that if the soviet government can make living conditions in Russia better than in any other country revolutions will automatically develop without any more financial assistance from the comintern.

The political bureau unanimously decided to support Stalin and refused to grant the comintern's request for more funds for foreign agents.

MICHIGAN AVENUE TRAFFIC IMPEDED

LINDBERGHS FLY TO OSAKA; MISS LASH OF TYPHOON

OSAKA, Japan, Sept. 13.—(AP)—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh slipped into Osaka today between the lashes of a typhoon. Storm signals were still flying at various places on the island sea over which the Lindberghs will pass en route to China after several days at Nara and Kyoto.

The Lindberghs arrived at Kitsugawa airport after a three hour flight from Tokio. They were greeted by airport officials and officers of the Japan Air Transport company. After the formalities Col. Lindbergh called upon Gov. Shibata and Mayor Seki. Later he and Anne rode about Osaka on a sightseeing trip. Then they motored to Kyoto.

Osaka had planned an elaborate one day program for the Lindberghs, with a luncheon, tea, and dinner, but Col. Lindbergh pleaded that they were pressed for time and the functions were canceled.

KINGSFORD-SMITH TO ATTACK LONG FLIGHT RECORDS

JOHN J. PERSHING HOME IN LINCOLN ON 71ST BIRTHDAY

Reaffirms Confidence in Nation's Prospects.

Lincoln, Neb., Sept. 13.—(AP)—Gen. John J. Pershing today celebrated the 71st anniversary of his birth and prepared for a three week visit with his sister, Miss May Pershing, and his son, Warren.

Weary from extensive travel abroad and a train trip halfway across the continent, at 71 the leader of America's expeditionary force in the world war was still straight and soldier like in a gray suit. The pose he struck for the photographer was something very like "attention." He carried a cane.

Declines Public Appearances.

As usual in Lincoln, he declined public appearances, statements, and interviews.

Since his teaching days at the University of Nebraska, Gen. Pershing has regarded Lincoln as home and found rest here from war, travel and administrative duties. Looking on him as a favorite, as well as a famous son, the people of Lincoln have respected his desire for treatment as a private citizen. The city council sent a large floral piece to the home today. Mark W. Woods heads a Nebraska committee to raise $25,000 for endowing a large salon as the Pershing room in a memorial building at Paris.

Warren, now a student at Yale university, spent much of his boyhood in Lincoln and was prominent in public schools here. This summer he has been getting exercise playing golf.

Chats with 13 Year Old.

One Nebraska boy was happy today after an interview with the war leader. He is Fred Pershing Ramge, whose thirteenth birthday anniversay is today. Introduced to the general during the train stop yesterday at Omaha, the lad sat by his side and held his hand.

A photographer's flashlight bulb failed three times and made Pershing somewhat impatient.

"If our guns were like that we wouldn't have much of an army, would we," he said to Fred.

Also he dropped a remark about the business depression.

"There's nothing vitally wrong with the country," he said. "Anyone who says we're on the rocks doesn't know his country. We'll come out of it. The depression can't last."

'ONE ARMED CAR' DRIVERS CALLED PUBLIC MENACE

"One armed" drivers are responsible for a constantly increasing toll of deaths and injuries in motor accidents, the Chicago Safety council warned in a bulletin to be sent to its members today. "It is difficult to restrict the human instinct of affection," the bulletin states, "but the driver who uses only one hand to drive his car while the other is draped around the shoulders of his companion is one of the worst enemies known to public safety. In case of emergency it is impossible to control an automobile with one hand."

FARM LEADERS TO OPEN CO-OP PARLEY TODAY

A group of agricultural officials, including Arthur M. Hyde, secretary of agriculture; James C. Stone, chairman of the farm board, and directors of agricultural extension work in the state agricultural colleges, are to open a two day session on coöperative marketing in the Hotel Sherman this morning.

The conference was called by Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau federation, who has expressed concern over the attempts being made by organizations and individuals antagonistic to the government's program of farm marketing to "undermine the valuable work of our county agents."

Plans will be considered, O'Neal said, for uniting the forces in land grant colleges with those of farm organizations "to guarantee the success of the agricultural marketing act." Special attention will be paid today, it was said, to "the efforts which opponents of the coöperative movement are making to weaken and destroy the county agent system."

Loop Candy Store Robber Holds Up Another Place

The tall, emaciated bandit, who has committed nearly sixty robberies of loop candy shops within the last few months entered a shop at 53 East Adams street yesterday and took $20 from the clerk, Miss Amy Lamasney. At one time police had patrolmen posted in fifteen different shops in the loop in an attempt to trap the robber, but he eluded them. The robbery yesterday was the first he had committed in several weeks.

PLANES TO SHOW BATTLE TACTICS AT FT. SHERIDAN

An airplane exhibition and polo show will be held on Sept. 27 at Fort Sheridan, it was announced yesterday.

Eighteen planes from Selfridge field will participate. Machine gunners in the war planes will demonstrate battle tactics with real bullets. Targets on the fort rifle range will represent the enemy and the planes will swoop low, as in regular conflict, and fire at the targets.

In the polo show their will be a game between the Fort Sheridan team and a Chicago all-star team to be selected from the best civilian players. Proceeds of the plane exhibition and polo show will go towards paying the cost of the new polo field.

Slain When She Shields Him from Mate's Bullets

Julius Nickels, 53 years old, a farmer, shot and killed his wife, Alvina, 52 years old, near Wheeling late yesterday when she stepped between him and her son-in-law, Arthur Hynes, at whom Nickels was shooting. The tragedy occurred on Hynes' farm, also near Wheeling, during a quarrel over Nickels' drinking.

FORMER SENATOR FRANCE HERE IN PRESIDENCY RACE

"If I were President of the United States right now congress would be in session working with me to meet the unemployment emergency which is of as great importance to the country as was the war emergency," said Dr. Joseph I. France, former United States senator from Maryland, who has announced himself as a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination in 1932. Dr. France made the statement yesterday as he passed through Chicago on his way to North Dakota, where he expects to open his campaign in the presidential primaries to be held there in February.

The former senator said he is for immediate repeal of the 18th amendment and the repeal of the Volstead law as a start towards restoring to the people the right of self-government.

He is a farmer, he said, operating dairy farms at Port Deposit, Md. He was a practicing physician when he was elected to the state senate of Maryland in 1904. In 1916 he defeated the governor of Maryland for the Republican nomination for United States senator and was elected, serving one term and being replaced by a Democrat.

TAX DELINQUENTS SET HIGH RECORD FOR COOK COUNTY

541,000 Property Owners Behind on Payments.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The estimated number of delinquent real estate tax payers in Cook county has reached 541,000. The records indicate nothing like this as far back as the great fire of 1871, when the tax books were burned.

J. B. McDONOUGH. [Wallinger Photo.]

The delinquents on general property taxes totaled 396,524 when the 1929 tax sale started last Wednesday. In addition it is estimated there are 145,000 property owners who are unable to pay the yearly installment on the cost of a sidewalk in front of their homes, or a pavement, a sewer, or a water main.

The failure to pay for these improvements results in the sale of the property for the special assessment due. About 250,000 of these installments were not paid last year. It is estimated that about 145,000 property owners are represented by these 250,000 delinquent installments.

The Collections Slump.

After the city collector had gathered in all the special assessment payments he could last year, he turned over 193,621 delinquent items, calling for $11,893,408, to the county collector. This official, in turn, collected only $5,691,333, leaving $6,202,075 unpaid.

In the country towns last year the county collector was handed 424,265 special assessment installments to collect for a total of $8,932,002. But he gathered in only $3,141,424, leaving an uncollected balance of $5,790,578. This, with the $6,202,075 uncollected in the city, made a total delinquency for last year of $11,992,653.

"This year looks as if it will be worse than last," County Treasurer McDonough, who is also county collector, said yesterday. "The people haven't the money or they would pay. I think Mayor Cermak showed good judgment in curtailing the amount of local improvements for this year. It is a tough job to plaster an incumbrance on a home because the owner hasn't the money to pay one installment on a sewer or a water main."

Payments Slower This Year.

This year the city collector passed on to the county collector 219,477 unpaid installments for a total of $12,116,482, and the county towns turned over to the county collector $21,141 delinquent installments for another estimated $12,000,000. The county collector's office reports that the payments this year are much slower than last year, so that at the end of the year the total estimated delinquency for city and country towns is expected to be in excess of $14,000,000.

This is 10 times the delinquency on special assessments four years ago. In 1927 the county collector obtained all the installments except $273,004 within the city and all the installments except $1,010,637 in the country towns.

In 1928 the property owners were even more prompt in payment for improvements. In that year the county collector was asked to get $11,207,002 in special assessments throughout the county, and he obtained all of it except $399,153. The uncolectable total in 1929 was about $4,800,000 and last year, as shown above, it jumped to $11,992,653.

Assessments and Taxes.

Special assessments have not been regarded locally as a tax, but in other communities they are so classed. In certain eastern states the amount of special assessments is published by the state tax authority so that the public may know the total of taxes assessed and collected.

No such data is collected or published in Illinois. There is no official statement anywhere of the total special assessments levied and collected in the various cities, towns, and villages of Cook county.

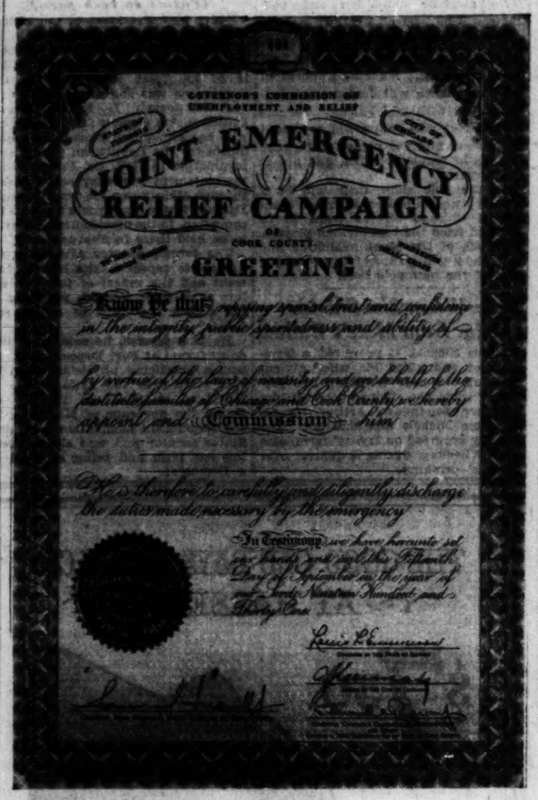
Some of the special assessments in Chicago were looked upon as political spoils during the last city administration. In some instances improvements were started over the vehement protests of the property owners affected, and the objectors sought the aid of the courts to protect their rights.

Now apparently many property owners cannot pay the annual installment on the improvements they did not want.

HIT BY PLASTER; DIES.

Glenn Dehm, 50 years old, an employé of the Ridgemoor Country club at Nagle and Lawrence avenues in Norwood Park, died yesterday at the Southwest General hospital of injuries received a month ago when plaster fell on him as he was repairing a ceiling on the clubhouse.

Commissions for Relief Workers



Facsimile of certificate sent to citizens who have been selected to aid in campaign to raise funds to care for the unemployed this winter.

317 Enrolled

Commissions similar to those used in the army have been issued to 317 Chicago business men who will be assigned to various divisions of the joint emergency relief fund. The papers, official appearing documents carrying the gold seal of the commission on unemployment relief, are signed by Gov. Emmerson, Mayor Cermak, Edward L. Ryerson, chairman for the state, and Samuel Insull Jr., chairman for Cook county.

"The work of perfecting the organization for the campaign is proceeding rapidly," Mr. Insull said yesterday. "A large number of Chicago's leading business men have enlisted for the drive. The public solicitation for funds will start about the middle of October, and we hope the response will be liberal and that the task can be finished in record time."

The amount to be sought by public subscription is $8,800,000, for use in combating unemployment conditions during the winter.

SCAN INSURANCE BOOKS FOR NEW SOURCE OF TAXES

The board of assessors has turned its attention to $40,000,000 worth of fire, marine, and inland transportation insurance written in Cook county last year by companies incorporated elsewhere, it was learned yesterday. The first steps toward assessing this volume of business for personal property taxes will be taken today.

The total increase in taxes which such an assessment will bring to the county is said to be about $750,000. This figure and the estimated value of the premiums were arrived at by insurance experts who perused the reports published by the state department of trade and commerce.

Under the law foreign insurance companies pay to the state 2 per cent of their gross receipts in the state for the right to carry on their business in Illinois. In addition to this they are liable for personal property taxes just as the companies incorporated here. The latter companies are taxed on their annual statements.

The assessors say they expect a legal battle by the insurance companies who are opposed to the new schedule.

SHOT DURING STREET FIGHT.

DANDRUFF! how to get rid of it

Quickly . . Pleasantly . . Inexpensively

IF your scalp itches or burns, if your hair is thinning or you are troubled with loose dandruff, begin using full strength Listerine, systematically, as an antiseptic shampoo. Simply douse it on and massage the scalp as vigorously as you can.

Literally tens of thousands have rid themselves of a dandruff condition with Listerine. They are simply amazed by the speed with which it gets results.

In cases of dandruff the fat glands about the hair become overactive throwing off a disgusting greasy whitish substance known as sebum. This forms in crusts and scales.

Neglect is dangerous

The hair, meanwhile, seems literally to be stifled. It grows lustreless, lifeless, falls out. The scalp feels hot and itchy. If the condition is not treated promptly, eczema and baldness may follow, and often do.

At the first symptom of trouble, the fight against loose dandruff should begin. Consider Listerine's effectiveness against this condition.

If infection is present on the surface of the skin, Listerine attacks it. A powerful germicide, it kills bacteria in 15 seconds, the fastest killing time accurately recorded by science.

Listerine helps to dissolve oily crusts and quickly removes them. And Listerine quickly relieves that burning, itching sensation. It soothes inflamed or irritated areas of the scalp.

If scalp is excessively dry, a little olive oil may be used in connection with the Listerine shampoo, or independent of it. The oil aids in dissolving crusts and scales and keeps hair from drying out. Lambert Pharmacal Company, St. Louis, Mo., U.S.A.

2 DAYS' FOREST FIRE IN MICHIGAN CHECKED BY RAIN

Many Farms Laid Waste by Flames.

Houghton, Mich., Sept. 13.—(AP)—Rain this afternoon brought under control forest fires which had burned for nearly two days in Baraga county, laying waste numerous farms and forcing hurried evacuation at Aura, a farm settlement near Lake Superior.

Showers last night and this morning checked fires in Ontonagon county, which had destroyed a colony of seven summer cottages on the Iron river, and in Marquette county.

Battalions of fire fighters were kept on the job to guard against new outbreaks, but the fire menace was believed past, for the time, throughout this portion of the upper peninsula.

Relief for 300 Homeless.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 13.—(AP)—With conditions in northwestern Minnesota improved, work was concentrated today on providing relief for nearly 300 persons whose homes and belongings were destroyed in grass, brush, and timber fires Friday night and Saturday, when two persons were killed and half a dozen injured.

A heavy downpour of rain south of Warroad and a light shower in the Grygla district during the night aided fire fighters.

The Red Cross chapter at Thief River Falls was active today in arranging food and shelter for the homeless in the Grygla district, where Marvin Myrold, 29, and Alfred Bogan, 60, died during grass and brush fires. Reports of a third death could not be confirmed.

Six persons injured in the Grygla fires still were in a hospital at Thief River Falls. Three may not recover. Nearly thirty families were destitute around Grygla and a like number in the Warroad sector. Numerous homes south of Beaudette also were burned, with the greatest loss around Hay creek, 15 miles southeast of Beaudette.

60,000 Acres Burned Over.

For a time Saturday night fears were felt for the safety of 40 residents of Wayland, an isolated community, 140 miles south of Hay creek which had not been heard from since Friday night. Several residents of Wayland, however, finally brought word of the village's safety.

In South Dakota more than 60,000 acres in the Black hills forest, 20 miles south of Deadwood, had been burned over today as the result of a forest fire which started Thursday.

Conditions were somewhat improved today and one thousand fire fighters were able to confine the flames to the vicinity of Custer peak. A northwest wind turned the blaze toward Hanna and Spearfish cañon. The Dumont and Nahant fires were nearly burned out.

SEIZE GUNMAN IN MICHIGAN FOR POLICE SLAYING

Jack Lawrence, 28 years old, was arrested in Holland, Mich., yesterday by Policeman Peter Fitch of Cicero and Sergt. Michael D. Casey of the state's attorney's office on a charge of slaying Policeman John Nerad of Cicero, who was fatally wounded July 16, 1929, when he sought to arrest two gunmen. Nick Bunonica, 21 years old, who confessed to the shooting on his arrest a week ago, named Lawrence as his companion.

Lawrence was known to have moved to Holland last April. He was arrested as he stepped from a train. Lawrence denied part in the shooting. At his home police found a quantity of dresses, lingerie, and other apparel, which they believed had been taken from Chicago stores. Lawrence declared he will fight extradition. His wife is being held. Lawrence has the scar of a bullet wound in his left shoulder. One of Nerad's slayers was wounded before the policeman fell.

A DITCH DIGGER IS SECRETARY OF UNIVERSITY

Hollywood, Cal., Sept. 13.—[Special.]—Earle Swingle, who last week was a pick and shovel ditch digger, now holds the enviable position of executive secretary of the University of California at Los Angeles. His extraordinary change in position was made possible by Dr. Ernest Carroll Moore, president of the University of California at Los Angeles.

It came about when Dr. Moore was searching for some one to fill the vacant post of executive secretary, a sort of ambassador between all departments of the institution. The day laborer was recommended to the board of regents as a man well capable of holding the position. After being duly questioned and examined Swingle was notified of his selection to the post.

Report Improvement of Addison's Disease Patient

Mrs. Andrew Nelson, 44 years old, 4193 North Overhill avenue, Norwood Park, has an even chance for recovery in her fight for life against Addison's disease, it was stated last night. She is at the Billings Memorial hospital. "She has about an even chance for continued improvement," Dr. John M. Van de Erve said last night. The disease from which Mrs. Nelson is suffering causes progressive anemia and prostration. Since last Wednesday physicians have been administering cortin, a new serum obtained from cattle.

Pastor Recognizes Check Swindler; He's Arrested

Evanston police yesterday arrested Paul Sandegren, 27 years old, of Rockford, as the writer of bogus checks totaling $1,120. Sandegren admitted the charges, police said. Detectives declared that he specialized in defrauding clergymen. Sandegren was seized when he was recognized by an Evanston pastor on whom he called in the morning. The pastor recognized him, he told police, from a circular sent out by the Illinois Conference of the Emanuel Lutheran church. Sandegren confessed writing sixty bogus checks.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE INDUSTRIAL BLIGHT.

A glance at the condition of business in this country reveals the fact that the industries which appear to be suffering most acutely are precisely the industries in which government interference has been most pronounced. Perhaps it would be unfair to conclude that government interference is ruinous to any business, but the coincidence is too striking to be ignored.

To be sure, agriculture was in an unhealthy condition when the government stepped in, but it is now apparent that all that the government has been able to do is make matters worse. Had there been no farm board a year ago the price of wheat and cotton would have dropped until our 1930 wheat and cotton had moved into consumption either here or abroad. There would have been no such surpluses crowding the warehouses to greet the 1931 crops as now exist. With a smaller supply on hand today prices would be higher than they are, and, without a meddlesome government to fear, speculative buying would have been encouraged. Whatever benefits were conferred on the farmers by the farm board's operation a year ago have been more than canceled by the existence of the farm board and its surpluses today. Agriculture is plainly suffering from government interference.

The difficulties of the railroads can also be traced in large part to government regulation. For one thing, it has kept some companies alive which ought to have been liquidated. For another, the government, by controlling the rate making machinery, has effectively prevented the individual railroad managements from solving their own problems and of course discouraged them from attempting to do so.

The meat packing industry almost succumbed, but has shown an improvement roughly coincident with the relaxing of governmental restrictions.

The next time it is proposed to extend the government's regulatory powers over some industry these facts can be recalled with profit.

SHERIFF BENSON'S GENEROSITY.

Milwaukee's sheriff, Al Benson, announces that he will serve no eviction notices on men out of work. A big hearted gesture, but, as is frequently the case, generosity with the property of some one else.

"I will investigate and if the rent is reasonable and the man has tried to find work I'll take my chances with a civil suit of the property owner," the Socialist sheriff is quoted as saying.

His warm hearted sentiments are a credit to him and with election coming on will do him no harm. However, he makes several mistakes in his premises, one of which, it is fair to assume, is that he has a monopoly on the virtues of charity and neighborliness.

Anathema attached to the word landlord is a carryover from days when he was truly lord of the land with great powers over his tenants which too frequently were exercised selfishly. The last two years, we are informed by real estate men, have seen a tenant's market in which owners of rentable houses and apartments have shown rare consideration of their tenants. Good business judgment has dictated this.

Nearly every one is familiar with owners of property who have permitted tenants to drop far behind in the payment of rents and who often are aiding them in other ways, sometimes supplying labor with which the tenants can earn the necessities of life, and often helping with cash or credit at the grocery store.

The popular conception of the rich landlord living in extravagant luxury on the pitiful earnings of oppressed tenants is apt to be completely overdrawn, especially in a city of thrifty home owners like Milwaukee.

Lovers of their own homes, many people of modest means have invested their life savings in one or two cottages or small apartments for renting. The rapid growth of the building and loan idea proves that. In later days real estate bonds have been sold and recommended by responsible bankers as safe investments for savings.

Rents from these investments are the income for their old age. Inability of renters to pay has reduced many worthy elderly people to an income on which they can live only with difficulty and much self-denial.

Too much open-handedness on the part of Sheriff Benson is likely to compel some of these property owners to turn to the county for aid or force them to dispose of their life savings at a fatal and undeserved loss.

Eviction orders are issued only after a court hearing and are court orders. The judges are the ones to determine whether the order is proper, and, also being subject to popular election, they too may be presumed to have proper sentiments for humanity. Being responsible, they will also give some consideration to the rights of the property owners.

The sheriff's sentiments are highly commendable from a political standpoint, but they are not good law and they are not good logic. They are not even good altruism. Maybe they are not even good politics.

HUSH, HUSH.

New York is continuing to reap the consequences of the hush-hush policy which has hid so long the gang rule, crime, and corruption its press has advertised as peculiar belongings of Chicago. With its mayor chasing the spotlight in Europe, revelations of its organized criminality and corrupt officialdom have been coming fast. The latest is a gang murder in a prominent office building in the affairs of a ring of alien smugglers, operating throughout the country with New York as its headquarters. Blackmailing and persecution of obscure women, political perversion of justice, graft and public waste, tardily revealed, have thrown a new light on the myth of Chicago's evil eminence in lawlessness and misgovernment. The hush-hush policy comes high in the long run.

Washington is another city that keeps its dirty linen under a smug covering. Another mysterious murder has now broken through the official complaisancy, but the speakeasies flourishing under the benign shadow of a dry administration and a dry congress will not worry about that. Hush-hush for Washington.

Of course, we too have our hushers. One of them has sent us a protest against the publication of a photograph of Capone at the Cubs-Sox game, with the suggestion that it is evidence of an unscrupulous disregard of the public interest on the part of the newspapers and a bad example for the young. The intelligence of this protest is given special emphasis by the fact that Capone was at this time reported to be the object of vigorous but unavailing search by the police. To our benighted mind this exposure of Capone at the ball game was a public service, but the hushers do not see it that way. Fortunately Chicago is not afraid to face the truth, and the winging fight it is making against crime and corruption is sufficient proof for all but the hushers that its candor and courage pay.

SPEED IN THE AIR.

Lowell Bayles is to be congratulated upon his achievement in raising the American record for land planes to 236.239 miles per hour. But a French airman has the world record with 278.4 miles per hour, and when we turn to the faster seaplanes we find that 236 miles per hour is slow going. Here the British are so far ahead that the rest of us, French, Italians, and Americans, seem to be out of the contest. Two years ago Squadron Leader Orlebar put the record at 357.7 miles per hour, with the Italians trailing at 318. The American record, fixed in 1923, was then only 266.59. But all that will be ancient history soon. Trial flights of British seaplanes are said to have developed a speed of 405 miles an hour. In competition yesterday a British seaplane set a record of 386.1 miles per hour. The French and Italian flyers did not compete.

Apparently nothing so powerful as the Rolls-Royce airplane engine has been developed elsewhere. It sets a standard which challenges the best of our engineering talent. Our air services, army and navy, have not had the help so liberally supplied by the British government for the development of the Rolls-Royce. We shall probably get forward in this costly but important field through private enterprise and patriotic spirit.

It is not well for the American army and navy air service to lag so far behind in the vital factor of speed. American defense is now going through a period of neglect, familiar in past time but always deplorable. There is no lack of devotion in the service and there is no lack of engineering genius in our country. But there is lack of foresight in our policy. Both our politicians and our people fail to realize how difficult it is to catch up and how costly it is to be caught napping. Speed has always been one of the chief elements of victory.

Editorials of the Day

BRITAIN'S DRAMA BEGINS.
[The Sun, Baltimore.]

For all the drama of the next few weeks, England will not really come to grips with the issues the country now faces until parliament is dissolved and a general election called. The coalition government seems to have enough votes to carry through its economy program at this session, no matter how fiery the oratorical attacks of Labor's spokesmen. Unless all signs fail, the necessary measures, including a reduction of the benefits of unemployment insurance, will be enacted into law without serious delay. The budget will be balanced and the pledge which Britain gave the world on the formation of the coalition government will be redeemed. Then the real day of political reckoning will come, when the voters will have to elect a parliament to consider the British industrial and financial problem in its entirety and try to work out some policy of permanent amelioration.

Whether Ramsay MacDonald and the Labor leaders who followed him into the coalition will participate in that later settlement is still a matter of conjecture. Much will depend upon the developments of the present parliamentary session, in which groupings and issues for the electoral campaign will begin to take shape. But no matter what Mr. MacDonald's personal fate, it is clear that his course has invested the issues with a high and serious quality to which political issues do not always attain.

RUBBER TIRED LOCOMOTIVES.
[The Danville Commercial-News.]

Rubber tired locomotives would seem to be pretty much of a dream, but for more than a year they have been running on narrow gauge tracks near Orleans, France. Adhesion is one of the locomotive designer's chief difficulties. When it is too low, wheels spin without moving forward. A rubber tire grips rails better than steel rims. Therefore, a rubber tired locomotive can exert more tractive effort than if it ran on metal wheels.

This reasoning led a French tire manufacturer to experiment with pneumatic tire locomotives. At first the engines were much like those that are seen on French narrow gauge roads. Now they look like our omnibuses, so that they are virtually 24 passenger automobiles running on rails.

These locomotives perform wonders on their pneumatic tires. Ten per cent grades are climbed with a facility that makes the old engineer look twice before believing his eyes. Average speeds of fifty-five miles an hour are easily maintained. Yet the "train" can be brought to a stop in one-tenth the distance that must be covered by a steam locomotive after the brakes are applied. What was at first regarded as a freak turns out to be a valuable contribution to railway engineering.

SOMETHING FOR FAT FOLKS.

THE minutes of a meeting of physicians, where obesity was being discussed, is the source of the following quotations:

Dr. J. C. Elsom said obesity is altogether an undesirable condition. It is the consistent confederate of all the deadly diseases. An obese person is more liable to have trouble with the heart and kidneys, the liver, and the digestive apparatus. He is especially prone to diabetes. In fact, every organ may be affected by obesity. He agreed with Dr. V. E. Levine that we should not grow heavier as we grow older. The normal weight is reached by a normal person at about age 30, and any increase after that is abnormal. It may indicate that eating and nutrition on the one side, and work and exercise on the other, are getting out of relation; or it may mean that some disorder is developing in a ductless gland such as the pituitary, the thyroid, the gonads, or the pancreas.

Drs. Kern and Levine spoke especially of those conditions in which one part of the body tended to put on fat, with no great increase in fat generally. They referred to unduly fat legs; heavy, fat mammary glands; folds of fat around the abdomen and hips. Lack of use of the part in which the fat is deposited is a factor, but a more important cause is a disturbance of some ductless gland. A portion of the pituitary is generally at fault.

Dr. J. H. Hutton spoke of obesity in locomotive engineers. Engineers are promoted firemen. A fireman will work hard and eat heavily for many years, and until his eating habits are fixed. He then becomes an engineer, and as such he has great responsibility and very little work. The combination of a fireman's appetite and an engineer's work generally results in obesity.

Dr. Levine did not think much could be accomplished in reducing by exercising. An ordinary man burns up only about 500 calories in a walk of six or seven miles. Since a person's diet carries several thousand calories, he would have to walk thirty miles a day or more in order to burn up his intake of calories.

The opinion of Dr. Kern and, in fact, of most of those who took part in the discussion, was that regulation of eating was not an efficient method in reducing. Even though it was an effective method, few people had intelligence enough, or persistence and determination enough to carry it out. Many are willing to start, but few have the stick-to-itiveness necessary to carry out the plan. Dr. Elsom thought more highly of dieting than did his confreres.

There was a general agreement that every obese person was, within broad limits, a sick person. He should be thoroughly studied. The method of treatment that could be expected to cure one would be ineffective with another. If a person was not willing to go through with a thorough examination and treatment based on such, he was not likely to go through with any plan of reducing. To start any treatment with a weak willed person was generally a waste of the time of all parties concerned.

DANGER IN LATER LIFE.

L. McD. writes: Is there any danger of a child, whose mother was syphilitic, to inherit the disease in later years, after the blood of the child always showed negative since birth?

REPLY.

There is. Inherited syphilis has a marked tendency toward latent development. If often remains latent throughout infancy, childhood, and adolescence.

NAUSEA ONLY SYMPTOM.

E. H. C. writes: What is the cause and remedy for continued nausea? My heart, lungs, and kidneys all seem to be in normal condition. I haven't any appetite, and all food is repulsive.

REPLY.

Nausea is merely a symptom. It may mean cancer, ulcer, or something else serious. First find what it means in your case. What to do will follow that.

NO SUCH DECISIONS.

Canton, Ill., Sept. 8.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—In a recent issue of your valuable paper in the Friend of the People column on "Joint Tenancy Defined," I find: "If the title is already in one of the parties it should be deeded to a third person who should deed back to the two, using a joint tenancy form." Is it to be understood that where no third person is used to create a joint tenancy there has been none created, as in the following: Title to property is in the name of husband or husband and wife as tenants in common and to create a joint tenancy they draw a new deed reading John Doe and Mary Doe, his wife, to John Doe and Mary Doe as joint tenants and not as tenants in common. Will the surviving joint tenant take title to the exclusion of other heirs? Thanking you for a reply in your legal column. T. J. C.

We have seen no decisions as to the procedure that you suggest. For a party to convey to himself is an anomalous step and we see no reason to invite a lawsuit by such an experiment.

CONDEMNATION PROCEEDINGS.

Joliet, Ill., Sept. 8.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I own a piece of property in Indiana which lies in the path of a proposed state highway. The right-of-way committee has made me an offer which is unreasonably small and I do not choose to accept. 1. What procedure will they take to condemn my property for this purpose? 2. How soon after filing the necessary papers can the contractor commence work upon the property? 3. About how long does this business usually take? A. M. G.

1. They will file a petition to condemn.
2. The speed of the court proceedings depends largely on the condition of the calendar of the judge.
3. See No. 2.

CITIZENSHIP PAPERS.

Chicago, Sept. 8.—[Friend of the People.]—How long does it take to get your final papers after filing for second papers? R. L.

The law requires that at least ninety days must elapse after the date of filing before a hearing may be had.

SWAMP SKETCHES.

III.—THE SCHOOLMASTER.

He dreamed of words to illuminate the last
Recesses of the world, and mounting higher
Kindle the ancient ash to valiant fire,
Shedding new glory on the glorious past;
But life had stopped his mouth, and fate was cast
Against the boy and his unproved desire;
"I've plenty of time to tune my rusty lyre,"
He says, and lights his pipe, his eyes aghast. . . .
But there are certain quiet places where
He cannot hide how fast his treasure flies;
Find him alone, the wind across his hair,
You would say, perhaps, his hope already dies;
You would not like a second time to stare
At the lost heaven in his baffled eyes.

DOROTHY R. KISSLING.

PREMIER RAMSAY MAC DONALD has asked England for dictatorial power. Which proves Ramsay will never become a dictator. A dictator doesn't ask for power; he takes it.

THEY'RE URGING Mr. Hoover to consent to 3 per cent beer, but, shucks, Charlie says there's lots more kick in a brick of wine concentrate. You buy a brick of any kind you want, sherry, claret, port, champagne, sauterne, anything you can think of, take it home and put it in a gallon of water, wait twenty days, and you have as good wine as you can buy at a boulevard restaurant in Paris. Says Charlie. And it's all within the law, strictly legal. Only the directions say you musn't, you positively musn't, stir the stuff each and every day, for that will make it ferment and give it a kick like an army mule. So don't stir it! Oh, please do not do such! And, of course, nobody will. Oh, certainly not.

THE GOVERNOR OF ARKANSAW has had to call out the troops to patrol the streets of Jonesboro with fixed bayonets to keep church members from clawing each other and swatting the mayor and other constituted authorities in the snoot. Tut, tut, isn't there some kind of law much older than even Arkansaw state law that says something like this: "A new commandment I give unto you: That ye love one another"?

GRANDMOTHER SPEAKS.

The love of youth was not so beautiful
For all its vivid ecstasy of May,
Its magic and its golden turbulence
As this which glorifies our autumn way;
As this unfathomable love, the fruit
Of sharing all the problems, all the pain
And disappointment hidden in the years—
And all the joy that canceled these again!
As this unutterable love which dares
Envisage smilingly the fallen leaf
And bravely dreams its own reflowering

ADELAIDE LOVE.

NO MATTER how devilish she may look, there is many a gal with an Empress Eugenie hat pulled down over one eye who still minds her mamma and jumps on a chair with an awful shriek when she sees a mouse. R. H. L.

THE OLD MOTHER HUBBARDS GO TO THE CUPBOARDS

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

SEPTEMBER 14, 1915.

LONDON.—The Germans are proceeding in their efforts to reach Petrograd before the winter sets in. They are now concentrating in an attempt to take Dvinsk, which is 320 miles from the capital, but on a direct line by a trunk railway. By means of a battering offensive Field Marshal von Hindenburg's army has actually reached the railway a few miles below Dvinsk and northwest of Vilna.

NEW YORK.—The present plan of the joint Anglo-French financial commission, it is reported, is to borrow one billion dollars in the United States on straight British and French government bonds without any collateral. The joint commission is now conferring with American financiers on the proposition. The commission is composed of Lord Reading, chief justice of Great Britain; Sir Howard Holden, managing director of London City and Midland bank; Sir Henry Babington Smith, former head of the Bank of Turkey; Octave Homberg of the French foreign office, and Ernest Mallet, regent of the Bank of France.

SEPTEMBER 14, 1901.

BUFFALO.—William McKinley is dead and Theodore Roosevelt is President of the United States. After every resource was exhausted for more than twenty-four hours following the sinking spell early on Friday morning death came to the twenty-fifth President of the United States at 2:15 o'clock this morning. Practically all medicine and all oxygen treatments were abandoned a considerable time before midnight. Just before the President lost consciousness Mrs. McKinley knelt at his side. He knew her, and said: "Good-by all, good-by. It is God's way; it is not our will, but thine be done." And so ended the life of a man who was an example of the best type of American citizenship.

Around the deathbed besides the surgeons in the case were Abner McKinley, Miss Helen McKinley, and Mrs. Duncan, brother and sisters of the President. Downstairs were other members of the family who had arrived during the evening. Others among the watchers were: Senator Hanna, Controller Dawes, Gov. Yates of Illinois, J. H. Milburn, president of the Pan-American exposition, in whose house the President died, and others well known in the political life of the nation.

Vice President Roosevelt was difficult to reach. He had left Milburn house two days ago confident, as was every one else at that time, that the President would live. He had gone to the Adirondacks, out of reach of telegraph, on a hunting trip. It was not until 5 o'clock in the afternoon that he received news of the President's relapse, and to come to Buffalo he has to travel 35 miles over a mountain road made more difficult by a dark and stormy night. His private secretary is awaiting him with a special train at North Creek. This train will take him to Albany, where another special will be waiting to bring him to this city. He was expected to take the oath of office on the train en route to Albany.

Police and military roped off the streets for blocks around the police station where Czolgosz, the assassin, is confined, to keep the crowds away for fear of an attempt to lynch him.

SEPT. 14, 1881.

LONG BRANCH, N. J.—It has been another beautiful day and all has gone well at Alberon cottage, where President Garfield is suffering from the bullet wound inflicted by Charles J. Guiteau. Today the President, at his own request, was placed in his invalid chair and for half an hour looked out upon the sea he loves so well. The reports of all the surgeons were of a very reassuring character.

WASHINGTON. — Gen. Sherman, who is credited with saying that the attempt to kill Guiteau by Sergt. Mason of the army is an inexcusable crime and worthy of severe punishment, does not meet the approbation of a good many of the officers and clerks of the executive department. In some of the departments subscription papers were circulated to raise funds to employ counsel for Mason's defense.

TASKS FOR THE UNEMPLOYED.

Chicago, Sept. 4.—I write to urge that you use your influence to see to it that as many as possible of the unemployed are put to work this fall and winter on work for community benefit.

The citizens who have jobs will gladly contribute the $8,000,000 to provide food, shelter and clothing for the unemployed, but this money should not be given to the able bodied jobless as charity or a dole, if it can be helped.

In order to keep up the morale and self-respect of those who unfortunately have to accept this help, as many as possible should be put to work at tasks which will benefit Chicago and Cook county.

There is no want of such tasks. Thousands could be usefully employed six days a week in cleaning the streets and alleys of waste paper, tin cans, ashes, and other refuse which the financial distress of the city prevents the street cleaning department from handling adequately. Thousands more could be set to cleaning up vacant lots and back yards, either with the consent of the owners or under a city ordinance, if necessary. Thousands more could help in beautifying our city by demolishing and removing the hundreds of useless shacks and ruined buildings which are an eyesore in so many sections of the city. Many other similar jobs of public interest could be found if an earnest search were made.

A small fraction of the public contribution for the jobless would provide them with tools and trucks or wagons with which to do this work.

This work should be done, of course, without throwing out of work any persons at present employed, or reducing their wages.

Why not take advantage of this emergency to tidy up and beautify the city in preparation for the World's Fair?

Let's not condemn the jobless to a winter of demoralizing idleness if any work of a public nature can possibly be found for them! GEORGE G. BOGERT,
Professor of Law, University of Chicago.

GOVERNMENT IN THE CEMETERY.

Chicago, Sept. 2.—Anent the subject of the government in business: The writer merchandizes memorial products, vulgarly termed "tombstones"; the government is now furnishing families of deceased war veterans with grave markers. If the latter were of any intrinsic value the practice, from a trade viewpoint, might be condoned, but these markers take the form of a very small soft marble slab with an actual value of possibly $5.

Such a stone is illegible after 15 years, and but very few of the Chicago cemeteries permit, except for the government stones, the use of such material.

Thus the veteran's family receives free a snide and very inadequate memorial stone, where otherwise it would purchase from a Chicago retailer of such products a standard sized granite marker at a wholesale cost of possibly $25. HUGH A. PRICE.

SMUT.

Evanston, Sept. 7.—Personally I could not sit through one of those so-called lewd shows; not because of the lewdness but because of the usual miserable presentation with reference to acting. But if some persons enjoy it, why let them alone, and avoid being like the woman who called up the police every day and reported that every morning when she woke up at five o'clock and looked down the beach with her telescope she saw a man a half mile away swimming in the nude. MAC D. LASKY.

MARTIAL LAW.

Chicago, Sept. 5.—Your editorial of today laments the calling of martial law in certain cases in three states as something new and fearful. Fearful it may be, but it is not new.

News items of past years show a growing number of cases of law by injunction, either through the power of the federal or state courts. There is little difference in the enforcement of either law. Violation of martial law subjects the offender to apprehension by a uniformed officer with a rifle or revolver and trial by court martial. Violation of contempt of court differs only in that there is no rifle, but there may be a star. In both cases the offender is denied a trial by a jury of his peers.

May I soon see the day when another Theodore Roosevelt arises to restore to us an American principle, namely, trial by jury. RAYMOND P. BOSH.

THE DOLE IN HISTORY.

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 7.—Your correspondent who described the effect of the dole in Roman times seems to have missed an important point. It is true the grants to poor citizens established by the Gracchi in 125 B. C. had to be continued to 410 A. D., but had they not been granted Rome would have ceased to exist about 120 B. C. The citizens had lost their means of living by the introduction of cheap slave labor, the result of successful wars. The French revolution and later the Russian are examples of a governing class putting off the granting of the dole too long. Y. B.

MOTOR DEATHS.

Chicago, Sept. 5.—If the mayor and the commissioner of police are sincere in their desire to cut down the awful toll of deaths due to automobile accidents, why not put the thirty or more new motorcycles that are now lying idle in the police garage to a good use? Certainly the presence of more motorcycle policemen on the streets would cause a noticeable decrease in the number of accidents.

As it is now, there are about seventy men patrolling this city of over 3½ million people. The city has the machines; it certainly should not be hard to get men to ride them. Los Angeles has over 350 motorcycles and considers doubling this number. INTERESTED CITIZEN.

NO PLACE TO SIT.

Downers Grove, Ill., Sept. 7.—On the day of the musical festival I happened to be in the loop entertaining an out of town guest and we went to the aquarium. One of the party has a little heart trouble and wished to sit down while the others made a complete circle of the very interesting display. The guide informed us that the building possessed one chair and I found an elderly lady occupying it. Surely a few attractive benches along the wall would not detract from the building.

How many did James O'Donnell Bennett say visit the aquarium a day? Surely a few of that number would have need of a little rest. M.

A NOISY CELEBRATION.

Chicago, Sept. 6.—I would like to know what is the matter with the police officials that they don't stop this unnecessary noise down in Little Italy. Every year about this time they start in about 12 midnight and it continues for quite a while. It is a shame that the proper authorities don't put a stop to this practice. I have to go to work and am kept awake on account of this celebration. Also the Henrotin hospital is only three blocks away. I feel sorry for the patients. C. W. HOPKINS.

POWERS MURDER FARM EXHIBIT IS BURNED BY MOB

Direct Action Taken as Protests Fail.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Sept. 13.—[Special.]—A band of 300 men early this morning tore down a sheet metal fence surrounding the Quiet Dell murder farm of Harry F. Powers and then burned down a combination "box office" and sleeping quarters, where armed guards have been staying since the farm was opened as a "horror exhibit."

Every trace of the fence was removed. The high barricade was ripped from fence posts by more than a score of men armed with axes, hatchets, and maces. A small fire kept by the six guards outside their shack was the only light. The men worked unhurriedly while a crowd which lined the hillside and roads leading to the farm looked on. A few of the men were partially masked, others wore handkerchiefs about their necks.

Collecting on a near-by hillside, the band swooped down on the shack where the guards were resting on cots. A spokesman knocked on the door of the shack and issued this warning:

"If you value your lives, you lice, run."

Guards Desert Posts.

Without a second's hesitation the guards grabbed their shotguns and ran at full speed down a hillside with the band in pursuit. E. J. Skidmore, former chief of police of Nutterfort, a suburb, and one of the guards, ran into a near-by creek as the crowd closed in on him. He stumbled and fell in the bed of the creek and his shotgun was bent almost dobule. Another guard fell in the cool waters of the creek and his shotgun was accidentally exploded. Neither man paused to recover his gun but fled.

The sheet iron fence, six feet high, was torn down and placed on a large fire which had been kindled. Fence posts added fuel to the fire. When the sheet metal became hot men raked it from the fire and twisted it, then threw it into a nearby creek. The shack where the guards have been sleeping was then set afire. Cots and bed clothing of the guards were thrown into the blaze.

A portly member of the band then took off his hat and half mask and addressed the crowd, which had now swelled to 600 persons:

"Ladies and gentlemen: You can now visit this spot without paying 25 cents."

A roar broke out from the crowd and many applauded. Several persons discharged firearms. The intense heat from the shack, which was constructed by promoters of the horror exhibit, blistered the paint on the now famous murder garage, where Powers is alleged to have killed two widows whom he wooed through matrimonial agencies and three small children.

A sign was posted on the front of the murder garage. It says: "To whom it may concern: Let this be a warning that this fence not be built again. [Signed] Good Citizens of Harrison county."

Several days after the bodies of Mrs. Asta Buick Eicher of Park Ridge, Ill., and her three children and Mrs. Dorothy Pressler Lemke of Northboro, Mass., were uncovered in a shallow grave on the murder farm Powers' wife and sister-in-law, Miss Eva Belle Strother, leased the farm for one year for $50. The promoters first built a high wood fence surrounding the farm, but it was burned to the ground on the night of Sept. 6. A "fireproof" sheet metal fence was built the next day. Dr. F. K. McClure, local veterinarian, appealed to local officers to investigate the first fire, declaring he was a "silent" partner in the venture.

During the last week local newspapers have carried editorials demanding that county officers put an end to the "horror exhibit."

Officers declared they could not stop the exploitation of the farm and tourists from all sections of the country daily have visited the spot. Last Sunday more than 5,000 persons paid admission to see the exhibit. Several days ago the Roy E. Parrish post of the American Legion called upon county officials to put an end to the exhibit, forwarding a resolution to the officials.

Hold Effects for Trial.

Following the first fire, Dr. McClure offered $100 reward for the arrest and conviction of the culprits. No report had been made to county officers tonight of the second fire.

Clarence O. Duckworth, chief of Police, today notified Holbert O. Crews, public administrator of Park Ridge, Ill., that the property of Mrs. Eicher and her children found at the death garage and at Powers' home will be held here as evidence until after Powers' trial. The articles, Duckworth said, formed important links in the chain of circumstantial evidence in the case. They include an electric radio, dishes, pictures, silverware, a fur coat, women's and children's clothing and other articles.

SECRET SIX ACTIVE IN FIGHTING CRIME, RANDOLPH REPORTS

The way for prosecution of members of fifty-one criminal groups was cleared by the Chicago Association of Commerce through its crime fighting committee, popularly known as the "Secret Six," Col. Robert Isiam Randolph, president of the association, declared in a statement yesterday. He revealed that the committee has 21 other investigations, one including 170 defendants, at a stage assuring early transfer to prosecutors, and that 34 newer attacks on the crime ring are progressing toward the prosecution stage.

COL. RANDOLPH.

"The secret service force of the committee has found that practically all the crimes against business are being conducted by nationally organized gangs," Col. Randolph said. "We know that approximately 25 per cent of all daylight bank robberies, involving shootings and large thefts, are being committed by one large body of super criminals. This gang we believe to include as many as 148 killers and was for a long time directed by 'Killer' Fred Burke, recently sentenced to life imprisonment in Michigan."

Among achievements of the committee Col. Randolph lists coöperation with federal authorities in cases against Al Capone, Ralph Capone, and Mops Volpe. He says the committee is chiefly interested in crime affecting business and has been successful against forgers, robbers, business and labor racketeers, bandits, kidnapers, promoters of fake charities, and short weight merchants.

PORTO RICO STILL IN BAD WAY, BUT IS PICKING UP

1st Surplus in 17 Years, Roosevelt Reports.

BY HARWOOD HULL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Sept. 13.—Better than a year ago, but still bad, is the way Gov. Theodore Roosevelt describes conditions in Porto Rico in his annual report to the secretary of war for the second year of his administration. Although showing an improvement, by no stretch of the imagination can island conditions be considered good, the governor states, and further aid alone will keep the island from slipping back. According to the report, there is an improvement in health, but it does not approach the standard in the United States.

Shows Treasury Surplus.

Specific improvements Gov. Roosevelt reports include the first treasury surplus in 17 years as compared with a large deficit the year before. He also predicted another surplus for the insular government in the present year. Porto Rico enjoyed the largest trade balance in ten years, although island exports and imports decreased from $183,000,000 to $175,000,000. On this reduced volume the favorable trade balance increased from $15,600,000 to $21,100,000.

Mr. Roosevelt reports increased employment, greater production of food crops for local consumption, the lowest death rate the island has ever known, and a sounder economic situation with all of the principal banks showing improvement. Even a brighter future is expected because of the better outlook for sugar, the island's chief crop.

Bad Year for Crops.

Discussing agriculture, the governor reports that three major crops had a bad year. The fruit farmers lost money because prices were low and a considerable part of the grapefruit crop was not shipped. Tobacco growers face the same situation and are in a critical condition, the governor states. If their crop is not sold the growers will be unable to finance new plantings. One difficulty, Mr. Roosevelt points out, is that island tobacco is too high priced to be used in cheaper cigars.

The situation of the coffee growers is even more critical, the report continues. Their properties were generally mortgaged before the hurricane of 1928, payments are falling due and it will be five years before the coffee farms are self-supporting.

But, the governor points out that the coffee farms are important to the island both for their product and because they provide the nearest thing the island has to forests, which are needed so badly to sustain all agriculture. New coffee plantings are being freed from taxation for a limited period as "forests," and the growing of new crops is being urged during the rehabilitation period.

Mr. Roosevelt attributes improved health conditions to a large measure on the newly established health units, composed of a doctor, nurses, social workers and inspectors, which are now functioning in 29 municipalities with a total population of over 800,000.

More stress is being given to practical training in the educational program, particularly in the 2,000 rural schools. The governor reports that 30 per cent of the furniture for new schools established during the year were made by school children.

New legislation during the year provided for a reorganization of the municipalities with economies of administration in view, a civil service law comparable to the best model systems in the United States, and new tax laws.

U. S. WHEAT LOSS IS COMPARED TO SILVER PURCHASE

Old Timers Recall Costly Government Scheme.

for through the Sherman act increasing the purchases of silver, but not enough to satisfy them. They got a free coinage bill through the senate twice, but were blocked in the house.

After the panic in 1893, Cleveland, again President, procured the repeal of the Sherman act, which he held had been of benefit to no one but the silver mine owners and incalculably costly to the nation. The experiment ended with the defeat of Bryan and bimetallism in 1896 and the passage of the gold standard act in 1900.

Nearly twenty years passed before another opportunity presented itself to the silver states for inducing the federal government to undertake large scale purchases of silver. The world war was in progress, the price of silver had declined to 40 cents an ounce and the cost of mining had gone up 60 per cent. The silver interests brought pressure to bear on the Washington government to anticipate its purchases of silver for subsidiary coinage for the purpose of "sustaining the silve. industry," as Senator Key Pittman [Dem., Nev.], silverite leader, admitted. The Wilson administration agreed to pay one dollar an ounce.

At this juncture, in the early part of 1918, the silver interests struck a lode of good luck, no less profitable to them as far as it went than the help of the currency inflationists had been to them in the seventies. The British government was faced with the necessity of redeeming silver certificates in India in silver. The British ambassador informed the Wilson administration that the Indians were on the brink of revolution, fearing they were not going to get the silver for their certificates. Britain needed nearly 300 million ounces for the redemption and was unable to buy that much from all the producers combined.

Now, it happened that the American treasury still had in its vaults five hundred million silver dollars left over from the days of the great silver price stabilization experiment. The British wanted to buy and melt as many of those dollars as might be needed to satisfy the Indians of the soundness of British credit and stave off revolution. President Wilson acceded to the request.

This was a windfall for the silver interests. To sell any of the silver dollars in the treasury to the British government required legislation by congress and such legislation could not be passed without the approval of the silver states, which could have delayed it fatally in the senate. Hence the silver interests could dictate terms. Their terms were that all silver dollars sold to Great Britain from the treasury should be replaced by silver purchased of American mines at one dollar an ounce.

When England Buys Silver.

The result was the Pittman act authorizing the sale of 350 million silver dollars to Great Britain at not less than one dollar an ounce and their replacement by purchase from American mines at one dollar an ounce.

Under this act the treasury sold 259,121,554 silver dollars to the British government at one dollar an ounce, receiving therefor $200,032,325. Immediately the price of silver went up. It went so much above one dollar an ounce that the silver mines did not offer any to the treasury for several years for replacement of the dollars sold from the treasury. Not until the price fell below one dollar was the treasury able to make the replacements under the terms of the act. Most of the replacement was made at one dollar an ounce when the price of silver was around 70 cents. The silver interests profited to the extent of 59 million dollars, according to Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon. Senator Pittman pointed out that this profit was at the expense not of the American, but of the British government.

Five or six years ago the silver interests saw another opportunity to pick up a little loose change in Washington. It appeared that the treasury had not purchased all of the silver under the Pittman act that the silver interests contended should have been purchased. They sought legislation compelling the treasury to purchase 14 million ounces more at one dollar an ounce which at the market price would have been tantamount to the federal government giving the silver mines a five million dollar bonus. The silver senators got the bill through the senate in two succeeding congresses, but both times it failed in the house.

WIDOW FACES COURT ON DEATH CHARGE TODAY

Mrs. Margaret Summers, 46 years old, a widow, who is under indictment for the murder of her nephew, Thomas Meyers, 17 years old, is scheduled to face Judge Walter Stanton in the Criminal court today. She pleaded not guilty to the charge of poisoning her nephew for his insurance, and her attorneys, Harold Levy and Emmett Byrne, said that they will demand a jury trial.

MRS. SUMMERS.

The defense attorneys said they expected the case would be continued until next month because the judges have not prepared for any jury trials at this term of court. The complete jury panels will not be called into service until the October term. The defense attorneys said that at the hearing today they will demand that the prosecution furnish them with a complete list of the witnesses to be called by the state.

Mrs. Summers, five of whose husbands died, was held on the murder charge after a coroner's chemist reported that arsenic had been found in her nephew's body. Mrs. Summers has lost 20 pounds since her incarceration last June, her attorneys say.

Explains Law of Osmosis; New Principle in Mouth Hygiene, Don't Miss It!

STOP in today at any Walgreen store and ask for the circular on mouth care which we are distributing free. It contains much valuable information on methods of keeping the teeth, mouth, tongue, and throat clean and healthy, how to avoid and to treat disorders of the mouth. It also describes how Ora-Noid uses the well known physical law of osmosis — a new principle in mouth hygiene.

Flush Out Germs While Brushing Teeth

Ora-Noid is a remarkable new dentifrice that performs six mouth benefits at the same time—a complete oral prophylaxis in itself.

It not only cleans the teeth, but it keeps the mouth clean and healthy as well. No mouth wash is needed. And most important of all, through osmotic force it flushes out those germs which are securely hidden in the crypts of the tongue and mouth tissues which no antiseptic, no matter how strong, can possibly reach.

Help Nature Make Repairs

Ora-Noid draws excess fluids from the tissues. It allays irritation and reduces inflammation. It clears the way for nature to make repairs. Ora-Noid is an important adjunct in the treatment of any disorder of the mouth.

These are highly magnified pictures of a tongue and gland. Note the crypts, many of them actually coming together at their openings. Many thousands of these microscopic crypts exist in the mouth. Each is a hiding place for bacteria which no antiseptic can reach. Ora-Noid flushes them out by osmotic force.

Walgreen's offer Ora-Noid on a money back guarantee. Get a $1 can and if you do not find that it does all that is claimed for it, your money is cheerfully refunded.

Call for the special Ora-Noid Pamphlet on the care of the teeth. Read its interesting and valuable information. Given free to those who call.

U.S. 100,000 TONS BEHIND PROGRAM TO REACH PARITY

200 Million Dollars Under Treaty Limits.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13.—[Special.]—An official navy study, made public today, discloses that at the end of the current calendar year the United States will be 100,000 tons behind the construction schedule which would have to be followed if this country were to build up to the maximum tonnage levels of the London naval treaty by Dec. 31, 1936. To construct these vessels would cost upwards of 200 millions.

The new naval statistics disclosing the status of the various nations' treaty building programs discloses that the United States has by far the most building to do during the next four years if it is to attain parity with Great Britain and have at the expiration of the pact all ships it is entitled to. The United States must complete all ships now building and in addition lay down 327,000 tons of additional vessels in order to have a treaty navy composed of vessels within the age limit by Dec. 31, 1936.

Japan and Britain Nearer Goal.

The figures show Great Britain, in addition to ships now building or appropriated for, can lay down 309,490 tons before the expiration of the treaty, while Japan can build 93,100. A comparatively large tonnage available to Great Britain for new aircraft carriers, a tonnage of 90,000, is due to the fact that three of her carriers aggregating 85,900 tons, completed in 1924-25, are considered as experimental. No naval officials expect Britain, however, to replace them.

To carry out the huge program outlined above, the United States has appropriated for but 16,500 tons of destroyers, vessels whose construction probably will be postponed, due to an impending naval construction holiday conference, until next year. Great Britain has made a real start, appropriating for thirty new cruisers, destroyers and submarines totaling 69,750.

Japanese press reports, according to the navy study, state that Japan's program includes all ships which can be built under the treaty. These include four 8,500 ton light cruisers, twelve 1,400 ton destroyers, nine submarines, one mine layer, three small mine layers, four torpedo boats and five mine sweepers. About twelve new aircraft squadrons are to be added to the fleet.

Japan to Build Outside Treaty.

The French program includes 72,000 tons of battleships, cruisers, submarines and destroyers, while Italy has arranged to build 43,100 tons of cruisers, destroyers and submarines.

One of the features of the naval study is the disclosure that Japan plans to build some vessels in the classes left unlimited by the London naval treaty, thus indicating that loopholes for naval competition still exist despite the protestations of sponsors of the London and Washington treaty. Japan contemplates building four of the torpedo boats in the unlimited classes.

It is understood that Great Britain plans to build a few of these vessels when its other quotas are filled. Studies along this line have been made by the British admiralty. The United States navy would build two of this type for use in the special service squadron in the Caribbean if presidential approval could be secured.

6 Killed, 30 Are Injured in Gasoline Plant Blast

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 13.—(AP)—Six men are dead today and 30 injured, eleven critically, as the result of an explosion in the new $900,000 gasoline recovery still at the Atlantic Refining company's plant at Point Breeze yesterday.

HUNT BOMBERS OF TRAIN; 22 KILLED AND 21 INJURED

Hungarian Police See Communist Plot.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUDAPEST, Sept. 13.—Hungarian police tonight were hunting the wreckers of the Budapest-Vienna express train early this morning in which 22, including an American, were killed and 21 injured.

The disaster was caused by the explosion of a bomb attached to the rails on the viaduct at Biatorbagy, which precipitated the train into a narrow ravine 90 feet below. The police blame communists.

Rudolph Novotny, whose American address could not be learned, is among the dead. His wife was seriously injured.

Bombers Leave Note.

Investigations established a close resemblance with attempts of communists to wreck a train near Cologne several months ago and another one in Rumania. According to the official announcement, a fuse found near the scene of the outrage had attached to it the following message:

"We will repeat the attempt in another month. Let everybody understand we have powerful connections and our people everywhere are at our disposition. If you will give us no work, we will work in this manner."

Train Hurled from Rails.

The explosion took place as the third coach passed over wires attached to the bomb. It shattered windows for miles around, tore a long stretch of rails from their fastenings, and flung the coach a great distance. The fourth coach was derailed and fell into the ravine, dragging with it six other coaches and the locomotive. Three other coaches remained hanging in the air, and the last three stayed on the rails.

Because of the depth of the ravine, the derailed coaches, including the sleeper car, could only be reached with great difficulty. One of the first bodies recovered was that of a beautiful young girl in red silk pajamas. Only 12 of the 22 known dead have been identified.

BODY OF INDIANA MAN IS REMOVED FROM LAKE ERIE

Cleveland, O., Sept. 13.—(AP)—The body of a man believed to be Walter L. Kipp, 58, prominent resident of Indianapolis, was found floating in Lake Erie, 15 miles north of Cleveland harbor, late today. Officials were investigating to determine whether he jumped or was thrown into the water from a passing steamer.

A sash rope was bound around his waist and on the other end of it was tied the handle and metal framework of a traveling bag, which indicated that the body had been weighted before the man jumped or was thrown into the lake. The body had been in the water about three weeks, police believed.

Business cards and a notebook found in the clothing on the body contained the name of Kipp. A stateroom key from the steamer City of Detroit III. of the Detroit and Cleveland Navigation company led to the belief that the man leaped or was thrown from that boat.

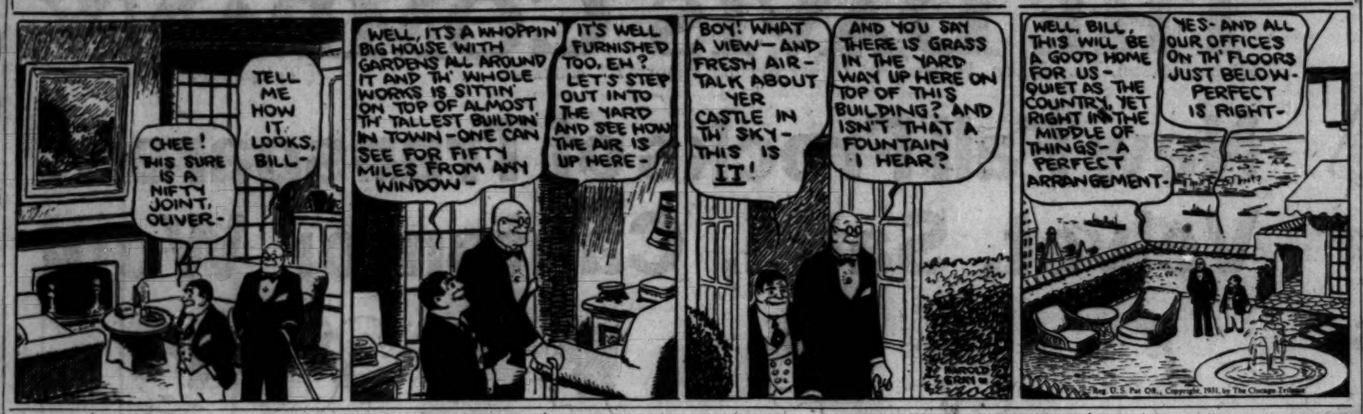
LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: The Castle in the Sky



SAVE 230 FROM A SINKING SHIP IN PACIFIC GALE

Vessel Strikes Reef Off California.

San Pedro, Cal., Sept. 13.—(AP)—After being tossed about by a choppy sea for nearly three hours, 130 passengers and 100 members of the crew of the Panama mail liner Colombia were rescued today from eight lifeboats they entered after the vessel struck a reef during a gale.

Through good fortune no lives were lost in the third seagoing accident in which the Colombia has figured in seven years. The San Mateo, southbound fruit ship, raced to the rescue in response to S O S calls and picked up the drifting lifeboats.

Later the passengers and crew were transferred to the fruit ship La Perla, and tonight were bound for San Pedro, where they expected to arrive Wednesday.

All Take to Lifeboats.

The Colombia, bound for San Francisco from New York, was caught in the gale Saturday night. A few minutes before midnight she struck the reef 670 miles south of here, off Santa Marguerita island.

Two hours later, as Pacific coastwise craft raced to the rescue in response to S O S calls, the Colombia discharged her human cargo into eight lifeboats.

The San Mateo reached the scene at 3:40 a. m., picked up the drifters, and later trans-shipped them to a northbound sister ship, the La Perla, which arrived soon afterward.

The Colombia was believed doomed. The coast guard cutter Tamaroa, under orders from Admiral Jehu V. Chase of the United States fleet, was en route tonight to the scene, which is at Point Tosco, on the southern tip of Santa Marguerita island, which lies close along the coast of the Baja California, Mexican peninsula. Also en route were two salvage tugs.

In Two Other Accidents.

In June of last year the Colombia went aground off Staten Island, New York. She was taken off without loss of life and only small damage to her hull. The Colombia ran aground in June, 1924, off Costa Rica. Passengers were saved then also, with small damage to the boat and cargo. The Colombia was skippered in her latter two accidents by Capt. K. Oaks, veteran officer of the Panama and Pacific lines.

Passengers listed on the Colombia, mostly traveling from east coast points, include Mrs. Bernard Drew and Beverly Drew, wife and daughter of a utilities official of Los Angeles; Dr. and Mrs. R. W. Reynolds of Pasadena; Mrs. Seabury Cook, her son, Robert, and her daughters, Elizabeth and Margaret, wife and children of Commander Seabury Cook of the United States navy; Julia Oakley and Georgetta Burr of Long Island, N. Y. Mrs. Ruth Selforth and Agnes Selforth, New York, and Helen Bird, Bloomington, Ill.

TROOPS WITHDRAWN AS CHURCH DISPUTE BECOMES PEACEFUL

Jonesboro, Ark., Sept. 13.—(AP)—National Guardsmen, called here Thursday when a controversy between factions of the First Baptist church reached alarming proportions, were withdrawn today.

At a conference this morning Capt. Harry Eldridge, in charge of 150 guardsmen, and Mayor H. J. Bosler agreed that there seemed no further need of troops.

The troops were called by local officials, alarmed over strife caused by attempts of the Rev. Joe Jeffers, Baptist evangelist, to oust the Rev. Dow H. Heard from the church pastorate.

Jeffers preached at his tent tabernacle late today on "My Business in Jonesboro," a subject chosen as a result of an anonymous prayer circulated here, reading, "O Lord, help me to keep my nose out of other people's business."

Dr. Heard made no direct reference to the disturbance of the last week in his sermon today, but urged the congregation to consider all actions, so nothing regrettable would be done in haste.

FIND 2 BODIES IN SEA; BOUND AND WEIGHTED

Newark, N. J., Sept. 13.—[Special.]—The bodies of two men, trussed with cord and weighted with sash weights, were found this afternoon several miles apart in waters adjacent to Newark.

The police tonight were working on the theory that they were killed in a gang war over the sale of alconol or beer.

The body of one, identified by his brother Frank as Sam Monaco of East Orange, N. J., was discovered in Newark Bay near Bayonne. Bound in the same way, the second body was discovered near the Kearny shore of the Hackensack river. It was identified as that of Luigi Russo, a partner of Monaco.

The police began working on the theory that there was a connection between the deaths of Monaco and Russo, who had been missing since Thursday, and the shooting last November of John Passell, known as "The Ape," as he lay in Newark General hospital recovering from wounds of a previous shooting.

POLICE SERGEANT KILLED IN FIGHT WITH A GUNMAN

New York, Sept. 14.—[Special.]—A police sergeant was killed and another policeman seriously wounded in a gun battle and chase through Greenwich Village early today. The dead sergeant is Timothy Murphy and the injured man Fred Knocke.

A passerby rushed up to the sergeant patroling his post shortly after 1 o'clock, saying that a holdup was in progress in an alleged speakeasy. Murphy rushed into the building, but before he had time to draw his gun he was shot in the right hand and in the chest and slumped to the floor.

The holdup men ran out, and a minute later Knocke saw eight men running, three on one side of the street and five on the other. He stopped one and asked what was the matter.

"A man has been shot," the man replied.

Suspicious, Knocke started to search him, but without first drawing his gun. In an instant the man fired four shots into the policeman and escaped after the other seven men.

Frank Sullivan of Police Pension Board Is Dead

Frank J. Sullivan, 55 years old, 5334 West Madison street, a retired policeman and trustee of the police pension board, died in the Mercy hospital yesterday after an illness of three weeks. Sullivan, who was unmarried, had been a member of the police department for 25 years before he retired. Funeral services will be held at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning at the chapel at 320 North Central avenue, thence to St. Thomas Aquinas church, Washington boulevard and Leamington avenue. Burial will be in Mount Carmel.

21 MILES OF BOYS IN BLUE DWINDLE TO VALIANT FEW

Time Unable to Daunt Spirit of G. A. R.

Des Moines, Ia., Sept. 13.—(AP)—Sixty-six years ago nearly 2,000,000 boys in blue marched in Washington streets singing a victory song:

"Twenty-one miles of boys in blue,
Fifty abreast in the grand review. . . ."

Tonight about one thousand of that number hoped they might be allowed to march in the 65th grand review Wednesday.

Time has laid a heavy hand on this Grand Army of the Republic, but still has been kind to them, for though legs be infirm, eyes are bright and spirits high.

Most of the 2,000 or so who are expected to attend the annual encampment had arrived here Sunday night, when a memorial and patriotic service was conducted with the affiliated organizations for "those who were not present."

But 38,000 on Muster Roll.

Commander in Chief James E. Jewel of Fort Morgan, Colo., said tonight that of the 102,438 "boys" who were members ten years ago, only slightly more than 38,000 are now on the muster roll.

Last year in Cincinnati, barely 1,000 marched in the most hallowed of their ceremonies, the parade, with an equal number riding in automobiles, and a few hundred more on hand as spectators.

Regarding the number expected this year, John T. Lucas, who calls himself the "kid commander" of the Iowa department, said he could make no accurate estimate yet—"too much can happen at our age between one encampment and the next, and even between one's plan and its fulfillment."

Organized a year after Lee's surrender at Appomattox courthouse in April, 1865, the G. A. R. reached its greatest membership 34 years later in 1890 with an enrollment of 409,487. The first post was organized in Decatur, Ill., April 6, 1866. The first national encampment was in November of that year in Indianapolis.

Parade Routes Grow Shorter.

Since then each year has seen the reenacting of the grand review as the feature of the encampments. Parade routes each year are made shorter.

Commander Jewel, however, vouches for the sturdy spirit of those who remain.

"There may not be so many of us now as there once were," he said, "but we still have the old spirit."

Others here for the encampment uttered much the same thought, and that aside from the pride they feel in defeating time, they find the yearly renewal of comradeship the major event of each year.

CAROLYN ADAMS RITES TOMORROW; FORMER TEACHER

Funeral services for Miss Carolyn G. Adams, for forty-five years a principal in various Chicago public schools, will be held at 3 o'clock tomorrow at the chapel at 2701 North Clark street, with burial in Rosehill cemetery.

Miss Adams was principal at the Polk street, Goodrich, and McLaren elementary schools from 1870 until 1915, when she retired.

She died on Saturday in a hospital at Indianapolis, where she was taken two weeks ago after she fractured her hip in a fall at the home of relatives in Danville, Ill. She had lived alternately in Danville and at the Alexandria hotel, Rush and Ohio streets, since her retirement.

F. J. HIGGINSON, CIVIL WAR NAVY OFFICER, IS DEAD

Kingston, N. Y., Sept. 13.—[Special.]—Rear Admiral Francis J. Higginson, retired, of the U. S. navy, died at his home in Kingston on Saturday after a brief illness. He is survived by his widow. Admiral Higginson had been a resident of Kingston since his retirement in 1905. He was 88 years old.

Admiral Higginson had led a colorful and honorable career both as a sailor and as a private citizen. He graduated from the naval academy when 19 years old, and during the civil war served under Capt. Bailey on the Colorado and the Cayuga, and participated in the capture of New Orleans. He was very proud of his appointment, signed by Abraham Lincoln, as a lieutenant in the navy in August, 1862.

During the Spanish-American war he was in command of the battleship Massachusetts, and arrived late at the battle of Santiago. If his ship had not been sent away to coal it would have been the first vessel to attack the Spanish fleet under Cervera.

Following the Spanish-American war Admiral Higginson was in command of a U. S. fleet that was sent on a three year cruise in Chinese waters.

'Hunt Husband for Hurting Three Neighbors in Fight

Police last night were seeking Charles Parrelli, 40 years old, 523 North Marshfield avenue, on charges of injuring a woman and two children during a fight. The trouble started when Stella Siudut, 14 years old, and Lottie, 9, her sister, of 521 North Marshfield avenue, tried to retrieve their ball which had rolled into the Parrelli yard. Mrs. Parrelli berated them and the girls' mother went to their aid. Parrelli, it was charged, joined the dispute with a poker and knife, hitting Mrs. Siudut on the head with the poker and slashing Stella on the chest with the knife. Philip Tortorici, 15, of 1635 Grand avenue, tried to stop Parrelli and received a broken hand.

GOV. ROOSEVELT'S PLAN ON RELIEF 'LIKE' HOOVER'S

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 13.—[Special.]—With legislative action on Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt's plan for meeting the unemployment emergency imminent, Senator Samuel H. Hofstadter [Rep.] of New York City came out today in vigorous defense of President Hoover's relief program in a statement which gave every evidence of meticulous care in its preparation.

Recalling recent utterances by Gov. Roosevelt, Senator Hofstadter declared that the governor in preparing his own plan had "acted upon the program and formula advanced some time ago by President Hoover."

The inference, drawn from what the governor said at the Dansville [N. Y.] Clara Barton memorial exercises last Wednesday, grew out of a comparison between his remarks and utterances by President Hoover in a radio speech on the same occasion delivered before Mr. Roosevelt spoke.

Finch's Fortune Is Another Book of Noted Series

'Whiteoaks' Family Lives Another Generation.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Finch's Fortune," by Mazo de la Roche. [Little-Brown.]

THE third volume in the saga of the Whiteoak family, which began with "Jalna," adds its four hundred and forty odd pages to that chronicle which was carried on with "Whiteoaks of Jalna." If the birth rate keeps up the Whiteoak family annals never need end, as far as I can see. Miss de la Roche can go on and on like the doormouse's tail, chronicling the affairs of the Whiteoak family. If she goes on as she has been doing the public will be increasingly eager to hear what she has to say.

MAZO DE LA ROCHE.

There are only three small children, and a boy of fourteen in "Finch's Fortune," but the next book is as obvious as if it already were written. The world never is going to be satisfied not to know whether Finch or his young brother, Wakefield, achieved the love of the strange little Pauline Lebraux and what happened when Sarah came to Canada to live with her husband and so near the man she loved.

"Finch's Fortune" tells what happened when grandmother's estate came to Finch at the age of twenty-one. You remember what a scene there was when the will was read and it was discovered that all of the money had been left to Finch, and how he tried to kill himself? When he achieves his majority and the control of the $100,000 which was left to him, "Finch's Fortune" begins. It is the story of Finch and what happened to him when he had [for the first time] money of his own to spend. But it is also the story of what happened to all of the others, the story of Renny's proud refusal to take one cent of it or even to take a gift from Finch, the story of Piers' willingness to accept a new piggery and a new car, the story of the old uncles' trip to England at Finch's expense, and the story of all of the spiritual and mental pullings and snatchings that went on throughout the family. These maneuvers were induced, perhaps, by the money, but were rather the result of human beings living too closely together than due to any inherent cupidity of any individual.

The same vast, baronial atmosphere that Jalna had in the days of the old grandmother still it has in the days of Renny, although money is scarce and times have changed. The domestic tragedies [which never become catastrophies] of the household are little different from the domestic tragedies of other generations. Man and woman do not change in their essential characteristics of possessive love, patriarchal splendor, sensitiveness and fear of human contacts.

The story of Renny and Alayne is the story of every possessive love fighting against circumstances and that lack of comprehension that often is in supermale men. The story of Alayne's battle against the whole household is the old chronicle of an "outsider" battling against those bulwarks of family that clans do somehow manage to throw up against some of the wives or husbands of their members.

Finch's trip to England and his meeting with dark, strange love again is the universal story of a sensitive boy in his first contact with love.

The unusual quality which Miss de la Roche has in her books, it seems to me, is that of making her characters, at the same time, definite individuals and absolutely true to their types. That is what human beings are—highly individualized examples of definite types. Many novelists make their characters types. Many more make them such individualistic creatures that they lose any quality of universality. But Miss de la Roche strikes a happy medium. For that reason her books have a wide human appeal. And she never skimps on either canvas or paint in her portraitures and her panoramas. Thus any reader is likely to say somewhere in one of her books not "There, but for the grace of God, go I," but, "There go I," or "That's Aunt Susie to the button on her high shoes," or to his wife, "Listen to this, dearie, if this doesn't sound exactly like the way you act when you get out of bed on the wrong side," or a wife says to her husband, "Here's another man who cares more for his horses and his dogs than he does for his wife" . . . In a family as big as the Whitecaks as portrayed by Miss de la Roche there always is somebody who is yourself or your sisters or your uncle or the woman next door.

You will miss in "Finch's Fortune" that amazing old harridan who ruled Jalna the way Catherine II. of Russia ruled her subjects, but her spirit lives on, bits of it in all of her numerous sons and grandsons. And so firmly did she put her stamp upon Jalna that it is still "Gran's" and she still rules it from the grave.

Although "Finch's Fortune" is a part of the Jalna saga it is quite independently a full, rounded novel in its own right. There is certainly more enjoyment to the reader who has known the Whiteoak family in its past, and perhaps a slight confusion in the reader's mind when references are made to historic events in the chronicle of the Whiteoaks (set down in the two previous books), but "Finch's Fortune" is not dependent upon its predecessors for its interest to the reader.

HEART-SHAPED TAGS TODAY WILL HELP THE CHILDREN AND AGED

Heart shaped tags will flutter today from thousands of coat lapels, testifying to the fact that the average Chicagoan would never pass by a hungry child in the street, or refuse to help a dependent and appealing elderly person. For though the deserving cases of such types cannot take to the highways to plead their own cause, a volunteer army of women taggers will act for them to secure funds with which to maintain thousands during the ensuing year.

Crippled children, orphans in various homes, inmates of day nurseries utilized by mothers who must work to keep their children fed; the blind, the halt, the lame and the deaf, the aged and abandoned mothers and fathers of scattered families, all depend upon the proceeds of today's sale of tags for their shelter, food and clothing for the next twelve months. Each institution has its own taggers, limited in number, and the amounts collected by each group are turned over to the home for which they are selling the pasteboards.

Radio Aids in Teaching of Handicapped Student.

Through the adoption of new scientific methods of instruction, deaf children in the Chicago public schools have been enabled to keep up with fellow students who are not so handicapped, Dr. Frank G. Bruner, director of special schools, so declared yesterday in a report to Superintendent of Schools William J. Bogan. Under old methods these children required at least twice as much time to complete their grammar school work as do normal children. In addition to the benefit to the children, the report stresses increased economy.

Chief among the innovations has been the substitution of lip reading for the sign language. Lip reading has proved so superior that use of the sign language is being discouraged. Radio and the "teletactor," a device for reception of sound impulses through the finger tips, are also being used to excellent advantage, according to Dr. Bruner. Formerly the children were taught to read before being taught to speak; the process now has been reversed with good results.

Inasmuch as only about 3 per cent of those in the special classes are totally deaf, radio programs are made audible to all but a few through amplification. Because the sounds are amplified to as much as 20 times normal intensity, children who could not hear a clap of thunder are able to hear these special programs.

On the theory that touch is the original sense, the "teletactor" has been developed to a high degree of efficiency by Dr. Robert H. Gault, professor of psychology at Northwestern university. This device is particularly useful in teaching the deaf children to avoid a monotone.

There are nearly 500 deaf children in the public schools. The Parker, Bell and Beidler elementary schools have enrollments of more than 100 each; there are smaller enrollments at the Kozminski, Perry, and Sheridan schools. At Tilden Technical High school there are 24 deaf students; Harrison High school, 10; and Ross Junior High school, 10, and single classes at several of the other high schools.

Classes for these students are necessarily limited to an average of six students per teacher. The cost per pupil of educating these children is consequently much higher than for educating children with normal hearing. The yearly cost per pupil for the deaf children ranges from $229 to $432, as compared with an average of $71.32 for a normal child, according to the report.

A notable achievement in the last four years, Superintendent Bogan points out, is the 400 per cent increase in high school enrollment among these pupils. Seventy-two of these students are attending high school, most of them taking pre-vocational work. They show particular aptitude for printing and draftsmanship, Dr. Bruner's report states.

Education in special classes of handicapped children of the state, to whom the courses offered in the regular curriculum are of little value, amounted last year to approximately $500,000, a report issued yesterday by the Illinois board of public welfare commissioners revealed. The maximum state grant in aid of the cost of educating blind children is set at $250, and for the deaf, at $110 per year.

Results obtained by teaching lip reading to the hard of hearing are especially encouraging, the report states. With this added capacity for understanding, experience has shown, the child can be returned to normal classes, thus saving the cost of special instruction or institutional care and adding to the ability of the child to become economically self-sustaining in the future.

Of the approximately 24,500 children of school age in Illinois, so seriously handicapped that they need special instruction, the state and local communities have school facilities for only 4,800. The need of some action in the matter led to the formation of a state commission for the physically handicapped, which is now making a survey and laying plans for better care of these unfortunates.

Junior Red Cross Call Will Sound Here Soon

Preparations for holding the annual Junior Red Cross roll call will be made this coming week by 600,000 school children, members of the Junior Red Cross. Pennies are already being saved to contribute to the fund and to obtain the Red Cross button, badge of membership in the junior organization. During the last year pennies given by juniors have provided everything from gloom chasers for veterans in hospitals to quilts for their families.

Woman Is Making Bronze Racial Types for Field Museum

New York, Sept. 13.—[Special.]—Malvina Hoffman, sculptor, will leave here tomorrow on a scientific expedition that is believed to be the first of its kind in history. She will start on a tour of a large part of the world to combine art with science and record in bronze for future generations all the types of people living on the earth today.

Miss Hoffman has been commissioned to do this work for the Field museum of Chicago and expects to execute about 120 life size studies for installation in its Hall of Living Man. She told today at her studio, where she is engaged in final preparations for the journey, of the plans for her tour of Asia and the islands of the Pacific.

She has worked on the commission for 19 months, she said, and received an unusual opportunity at the Paris colonial exposition.

'White Devil,' Tolstoi Story, Done as Talkie

"THE WHITE DEVIL."

Produced by UFA.
Directed by Alexander Wolkoff.
Presented at the Castle theater.

THE CAST.

Hadschi Murat.....Ivan Mosjoukine
Nelidowa.....Lil Dagover
Saira.....Betty Amann
Czar.....Fritz Alberty

By Mae Tinée.

Good morning!

"The White Devil," spectacular and gorgeously photographed, is the screenization of Tolstoi's—I imagine, weighty story—"Hadschi Murat." If you like Tolstoi and spectacles the piece probably will please you.

Lil Dagover is not "The White Devil," as I, and probably you, imagined. No, the "devil" is a man, leader of some Caucasian mountain tribes in' 1853, who fights bitterly and well for his people. He is effectively portrayed by the popular Russian actor, Ivan Mosjoukine. [Such queer eyes that man has!]

Miss Dagover, from whom I had the pleasure of a call last week and whom I found charming, plays the czar's favorite. She does beautifully the little she has to do. A slim, darkly pretty, vivacious, intuitive woman! She should go far in Hollywood, whither she is bound to appear in a Warner Brothers' photoplay called "I Spy."

Betty Amann is alluring as a wistful mountain dancing girl, kidnaped for royalty and saved by that firebrand Hadaschi. Other portrayals satisfy.

The story moves slowly and at times clumsily. The continuity is not what it should be. But the grand scenery, extraordinarily fine photography and striking sets and costumes of the period atone for drawbacks.

UFA remarks with pride that "The White Devil" cost a million, took two years' time to make, and boasts a cast of 5,000, of whom 2,000 are Caucasian tribesmen.

See you tomorrow!

New Methods Aid Quick Health Test of Chicago's Pupils

Under a new plan of inspection which was inaugurated with the new school term the superficial examination of pupils for the discovery of contagious diseases was speeded considerably in comparison to past years, according to a report made yesterday by Health Commissioner Bundesen.

During the first four days of school the physicians and nurses of the health department examined 462,112 pupils. The examinations were given in public, private, and parochial schools, in which there are enrolled approximately 600,000 pupils, leaving 140,000 yet to be examined.

The examiners, Dr. Bundesen said, look chiefly for sore throats, indicating a suspicion of diphtheria; peeling hands or feet, showing scarlet fever; the rash of measles, and signs of mumps, whooping cough, or infected heads. It was necessary in the examination, he said, to exclude 345 pupils.

"In our effort to speed the examinations for cases of communicable diseases," said Dr. Bundesen, "we are doing what is now done in most other large cities, namely, assigning either a doctor or a nurse for a daily visit at each school. Formerly only the physicians made the examinations, but by combining the forces of physicians and nurses we have a working staff twice as large as before.

"The great value of the work of excluding the cases of contagious diseases should be reflected during the next two months in a decreased amount of contagion among the school children."

The improved service is being rendered, the report states, without any additional expense for an increase in personnel. Parents can aid in the work, Dr. Bundesen said, by keeping their children away from school if they are not well.

THE STAGE

ALICE BRADY has signed a contract with the Theater Guild under which she will appear as the heroine of Eugene O'Neill's "Mourning Becomes Electra," now in rehearsal. Her engagement completes the cast. The opportunity to act in the O'Neill trilogy caused Miss Brady to abandon her plan to take over a Broadway theater and establish a repertory company. This is not her first association with the Guild. She has already acted in the organization's productions of "Karl and Anna" and "The Game of Life and Death."

Oct. 4, instead of Oct. 11, will be the date for the opening of the Erlanger theater's season with "Private Lives." The engagement is limited to four weeks. This comedy by Noel Coward will have Edith Taliaferro and Donald Brian as stars. There is another company on tour with Madge Kennedy and Otto Kruger in the roles originated by the author and Gertrude Lawrence.

"Poor Little Church Mouse" is the title of a play that William A. Brady will submit to Broadway, in high hopes of a success, late in October. It comes out of central Europe, and from the pen of a certain Ladislaus Fodor. London saw it last season, with Sir Gerald Du Maurier in the cast. Mr. Brady has engaged Ruth Gordon and Bert Lytell for the leading roles.

Pauline Lord, well remembered as the heroine of "Anna Christie," will return to the stage this fall under the management of Guthrie McClintic. He will present her as the star of a play called "Distant Wings," written by Dan Tothero. Mr. McClintic will also produce "Brief Moment," by S. N. Behrman, as a vehicle for Francine Larrimore.

"Meet My Sister," the operetta that was well received in Chicago last spring, has begun an engagement in Boston. Nancy McCord has replaced Bettina Hall as prima donna. Walter Slezak and Harry Welsh continue with the company.

The title of the new musical comedy in which Fred Stone and his younger daughter, Paula, will appear under Shubert management this season is "Smiling Faces." Rehearsals will begin this week. C. C.

Navy pier swarmed yesterday with thousands of Chicagoans of Norwegian descent, come to pay tribute in a varied program of land and water sports to the memory of their navigator ancestor, Leif Ericson. Gay costumes of their mother country were seen in the crowd, and on the boats moored at either side of the pier flew the Norwegian flag, with its crimson field and blue and white cross.

At the eastern edge of the pier rode a craft Leif Ericson himself might have piloted—a Viking ship. This was the Roald Amundsen, sailed 15,000 miles to Chicago from Norway by Capt. Gerhard Folgero. It was a focal point all day for the celebrators, hundreds of whom went aboard to inspect the boat. This week the Amundsen will start on the homeward journey, making the trip by way of Iceland.

Charles S. Peterson and William H. Malone were speakers at the program held at 5 o'clock in the ballroom, the former urging those in attendance to acquaint their friends and relatives across the sea with the attractions of the 1933 World's Fair, and to invite them to come to Chicago at that time. Guests of honor were Capts. Oscar J. W. Hanson, Gerhard Folgero and Arthur Nelson.

In the auditorium the program included selections by an orchestra directed by M. Pederson, by the Norwegian Ladies Singers' league, the Bohemian Workingmen's Singing society, Swedish folk dancers, acrobatic dancers, calisthenic drills by Sokol, a mixed gymnasic team, and exhibitions on the parallel bars.

Water sports preliminary to the indoor events included cutter races participated in by various Norwegian societies of both men and women, over mile and half mile courses.

Bishop Perry Raps Divorce in Denver Talk

Would Keep Churches Out of Economics.

Denver, Colo., Sept. 13.—(AP)—The Rt. Rev. James De Wolf Perry, bishop of Rhode Island and presiding bishop of the Episcopal church, in a sermon today advised the 50th general convention of the church, opening here Wednesday, that the bonds of matrimony are subject only to divine will.

Commenting on another problem expected to come before the convention, Bishop Perry said the church, by posing in its corporate capacity as an arbitrator of civic institutions and economic institutions would be guilty of "something worse than futile interference."

In opening his sermon, Bishop Perry noted the movement for unity of the church.

"The essence of unity in the whole body is the soundness of each of the several units. By the same token, the corporate strength of Christendom is found in singleness of thought and purpose within one household of faith. It is well for a church charged as is our own, with world-wide responsibilities, to consider this on the eve of a momentous legislative session."

Of marriage and divorce, Bishop Perry said that whatever legislation or social custom may be woven around it, giving or withdrawing public sanction, "the bonds between husband and wife, once sealed in the name of God, are subject not to the will of man but to divine will.

"It is in bearing witness to his law that the church as the third party in a marriage contract has its single function to perform, blessing what God has blessed, holding in union those whom he has declared to be one flesh," said Bishop Perry.

"Other disposition of marriage made by the state through divorce or annulment, or the legislation of polygamy in any form, can be viewed by Christians only as an existing fact, admitted as an expedient for the satisfaction of personal desires and of public demand.

"For the church to legislate upon such matters would be to place its seal of consent or disapproval upon procedures which lie beneath its rightful province. Christian marriage rises above consideration of expediency or human desire."

Regarding the church's relations with politics and industry, Bishop Perry said that disregard for the divine principles of justice and unselfishness as revealed in Christ are primarily responsible for every breakdown in the rightful production and distribution of property.

"While the industrial organization within its appointed realm is the constituted agency for the administration and application of these principles, the church, representing Christian conscience, is appointed to interpret and declare them.

"This obligation is not fulfilled," he said, "by an attempt to watch or direct, to censure or to command operations of industry; neither is it wholly satisfied by the alleviation of distress caused by the failure of the economic system."

He pointed out that the world should bear in mind that the present condition demands more than temporary measures of relief of suffering.

"Rather," he said, "it will engage Christian minds in the careful study of the principles of human justice and human brotherhood to which organized Christianity must ever bear witness."

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

More than 1,000 delegates and visitors on their way to the general convention of the Episcopal church, which opens in Denver Wednesday, will be feted by Chicago churchmen today. Caravans of automobiles will escort the delegates on a tour of this city this morning. Special attention will be given to the visit to the 1933 World's Fair buildings under construction.

At 1 o'clock the visitors will be guests at a luncheon at the Hotel Sherman. There the Rt. Rev. Michael B. Furse, lord bishop of St. Alban's, England; former Attorney General George W. Wickersham, Bishop George Craig Stewart, Col. A. A. Sprague, and Mrs. Charles S. Williamson will be principal speakers. The reception is sponsored by the Chicago Church club, under the direction of John D. Allen, president.

As the convention approaches church leaders of all three schools of Episcopalians, high, low, and broad, are preparing for battle on the church's attitude toward remarriage after divorce. While it appears certain to observers that the Episcopal church will commit itself to the most conservative position—that of complete refusal to recognize divorce at all—yet "broad" of liberal churchmen will carry a spirited fight for a more liberal attitude to the floor of the convention.

Observers base this prediction on the understanding that delegations from southern states, ordinarily "low" churchmen, have strong convictions against divorce. The southern group will unite with the "high" churchmen of the north to defeat the liberalizing proposed canon. The proposed canon was drawn up by a special commission appointed at the last general convention. Dean Frederick C. Grant of Western Theological seminary is a member of the special commission. Bishop Herman Page of Michigan, former rector of St. Paul's church, Kenwood, is the chairman.

While the divorce debate probably will command the widest general interest, yet Episcopalians declare that other questions to be considered are even more important to the religious life of the country. The relationship of religion to the economic life of this country will be a subject arising from the consideration of the widespread unemployment situation.

OUR SECRET AMBITION

New Students Are Busy with U. of I. Societies

Urbana, Ill., Sept. 12.—[Special.]—Thousands of students are already here to enter the University of Illinois and the rushing season opened today. This afternoon 431 rushees, a considerably smaller number than a year ago visited the 24 sororities for tea. Monday over 1,000 men or approximately 100 less than a year ago, participate in fraternity rushing.

Fraternity pledging will not start until Thursday, while the sorority silence time, during which the sororities and rushees file preferential lists, begins Thursday night.

Freshman week, an innovation at Illinois, will open Wednesday evening with an address of welcome to freshmen students by President Harry Woodburn Chase. Dr. Chase's welcome will start a week's program of instruction and advice to give the new student the best possible start.

Personal contact between the first year students and faculty members and a friendly attempt to understand their problems and aid them in the selection of courses, are the goal of the week's activities.

In groups of thirty, the freshmen will report Thursday morning for personal conferences with their faculty advisers to whom they have been assigned as they received their permits to enter the university.

The faculty members and their student assistants will assist the freshmen prepare for registration. A "college mixer" will be held Thursday night with all freshmen required to attend. At that time the new students will meet the deans, etc. Freshman registration will be on Friday and Saturday. Psychological tests will be taken the following Monday and Tuesday. Graduate school students also will register Friday and Saturday, while upper class members will register the following Monday and Tuesday and classes will get under way on Wednesday morning, Sept. 23.

The number of first year students enrolling this fall is expected to show a decrease compared with the record enrollment of last year.

Social Service Club.

The Kenwood Social Service club will hold a regular meeting this afternoon at the residence of Mrs. Carl Defebaugh at 1120 East 50th street.

Glamour Supersedes Charm in Chart of Beauty Requirements

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Katherine Albert, who writes of Hollywood doings, cautions the editors of beauty and lovelorn departments that selling charm is now outmoded as smart beauty selling talk. Last year's beauty model may have had charm and found it sufficient. But this year and forecast for the next and next, GLAMOUR is what you must have. It's the new IT of Hollywood beauty circles—and, if of Hollywood, why not of the whole world of women?

Well, it just goes to prove that there's always another world to conquer, speaking in terms of pulchritude. Physically, women are on to all the wiles and lures attuned to hygienic upkeep. They've been shaped and reshaped, moulded and remounded into lines past Grecian perfection. They know their makeup. They know their haircuts. They know their principles of mouth hygiene. So many know all of these things, in fact, that just to be different—there must be something different. And so glamour now becomes the objective.

Now just what is this thing called glamour we must get down to finding out? It seems that you can have beauty and charm; just ooze charm but if you haven't glamour—Hollywood can't use you. And if Hollywood can't use you, what's the boy friend going to do with you around home? Turn you in for a '32 model? Maybe you'd better not tell him anything about this glamour stuff until you've got it completely in hand. You will. You never fail at catching on to the latest beauty wrinkle, do you?

Anyway, to give you an idea of what this G string on the beauty violin is, let's name a few of the ladies of the screen who've already captured it. Some against long odds, even as you and I, it is claimed. There's Dietrich for a start—heavy lidded, inscrutable-eyed. There's Connie Bennett, a girl to stir the imagination. There's Elissa Landi, the mysterious; there's Lilyan Tashman who reminds you of a date with a Paris couturier. There's Garbo, overloaded with the vital commodity beginning with G and ending with R.

We could give a list of screen persons who've passed out of pictures because they didn't have the NEW it. But that wouldn't be kind. We may deduce the fact, however, that you have this thing that supersedes charm if you can inspire the imagination. Tomorrow let's look into the inspiring business.

Woman Fights, Argues 'n' Expresses Herself Under Title 'Patience'

BY DORIS BLAKE.

In the letter before me the signature reads: "Patience." Yet the lady says, "I believe in a woman expressing her rights," the tone of the letter indicating that the rights are expressed. But how!

Fights and arguments! Arguments and fights! And one separation notch in the road to Reno already.

Sure a woman has rights! And they should be expressed! But any woman wanting to get her rights or a good substitute thereof had better lay the boxing gloves down and take up the powder puff, instead.

I'll put my money any time on a powder puff over a boxing glove in a woman's rights challenge. If the powder puff isn't enough, just throw in a few tears. Anything but fighting for your rights—with fighting arguments.

The chief accusation in the letter before me against the other half of the fighting household is that he insists upon having the last word, every time. Of course, that isn't according to Hoyle. The woman should have it once in a while, just because she was born to the ownership.

But Lawdy me, what does it matter at the end of the year who has the last word? Of all the futile causes to strive for that is just about the seroest. Now, fighting for the first word to make up with is something. But the last jes' ain't nuthin'. What can you do with it after you get it? Just spill it right out again.

No, that's just no way of showing yourself a good time in marriage. With all the nice, amiable things you could be doing one for the other, and back again.

I'm not for a lady being put upon and having no rights—no spending money; no time off; no new dresses; no new carpets; no opinions of her own. But most women who are avid in the pursuit of rights expressing are so avid in the pursuit that they just can't see the other fellow has a right or two, also. Beside, they develop a shoulder chip in the natural course of upholding rights and they make every one and anyone who comes in contact with them want to fight 'em. Belligerency breeds belligerency faster 'n guinea pigs.

Playing With Fire

By WILLIAM MAC LEOD RAINE

SYNOPSIS.

Lee Reynolds is the owner of a ranch which drought has almost ruined. She leases a Mexican rancho and moves her starving herd there. She is barely settled when a revolution breaks out. Megares, bogey man of the border, is the leader. Ranse Brennan, a former foreman of Lee's, is his right hand man. Brennan was discharged by Lee and swore revenge. Lee hires a new hand, who is recognized by Dunc Daggett, an old ranch hand, as Jack Hadley, a millionaire oil man of California, whose father owned a mine near Lee's ranch and was murdered by outlaws. Hadley is searching for the murderer of his father. Hadley and Lee call on Megares, who is, apparently, friendly to them. Megares calls at the ranch and is infatuated with Lee's guest, Mrs. Doris Silver. He forces us live at the rancho, to protect them, he says, though they are really his prisoners. Doris is rescued by airplane by her husband. Lee refuses to leave her ranchera—and Jack Hadley, whom she loves. Harold Silver promises to return with an armed plane for their rescue. Lee and Jack are sentenced by a drum courtmartial to be shot at sunset.

INSTALLMENT XXV.

Jack asked one favor. "May we see each other again before——"

Megares shrugged. "Very well. For the last half hour. And be comforted, Mr. Hadley. Your friend will not be alone all the time. Busy though I am, I shall see her. Perhaps I may bring her comfort. Who knows? Life is full of partings, alas! We must make the best of it. Mrs. Silver goes, Miss Reynolds stays. You go, I stay. So the world wags."

"You will not interfere, colonel," his chief told him curtly. "Take away the prisoners."

Brennan glared at him but said no more. Megares was riding a high horse, but soon he would come a cropper—if a certain message he had sent through to Luna reached that officer in time.

"I can't let you go, Jack," Lee sobbed. "I can't. It's too—awful."

He held her for a moment tight, then gently passed her to the waiting guard. When she tried to break away to get back to him he was walking from the room between two armed men.

Jack looked around as the door opened and a man walked into the room. He did not rise. He did not speak. The man was Megares.

He moved forward, raffish and graceful, to take a chair.

"What do you want?" Jack asked.

Megares relaxed in the chair and leaned back, his fingers laced back of his head. "I wonder why I came to see you. I'm devilish busy. And yet my business is not important. The truth is that our game is up, Hadley. We've lost our big throw."

"Didn't you defeat Luna yesterday?"

"We did, and we didn't. He failed to drive us out of Palo Duro and drew back for reinforcements. But that's exactly the point. He can get fresh forces—plenty of troops and ammunition—and we can't. I don't mind telling you because—well, you're not likely to talk about it."

"No," agreed Jack.

"I'm telling you this so that you may understand my position," the rebel purred. "If we were going to win I'd have to walk softly in this little matter of you and your friend. I'd hardly dare to have you shot because, as you mentioned that big bully up north might jump on me. But since the cards have fallen the way they have I don't have to worry about that."

"You're nothing but a dirty greaser murderer."

"It's not your plan to have Miss Reynolds shot?" Jack ventured quietly.

The outlaw brushed his mustache with two fingers. "I think not. I have other uses for the lady. The fact is, I propose to suggest myself as your successor."

"You devil!"

Jack knew the man was taunting him, for the same reason that an Apache might have driven a burning splinter into the flesh of a victim. He wanted to see him writhe. But even as Hadley fought down the rage that boiled in him he was aware of a subconscious amazement at the fellow. He knew that Megares was the son of a wealthy Mexican family, that he had spent many years at school in the United States and abroad. Yet it seemed strange a man who was acquainted with art and literature could have assimilated culture, externally at least, and remain at heart a savage untouched by civilization. Hadley had a proposal to make, and he felt his way toward it carefully.

"I'm going to surprise you, general," he said. "It's in my mind to make you one of my heirs."

The black beady eyes gleamed. Megares relished this.

"I knew you were fond of me, but I hadn't realized your affection went so far," he jeered. "What are you thinking of willing me—in addition to one of your friends?"

"I was thinking of a hundred thousand dollars," Jack said quietly.

"You have the money with you, of course? In your pocketbook?"

"It could be got. A letter to my agents would be sufficient."

"I'm afraid not, Mr. Hadley. There would be a slight difficulty in collecting. The situation would be unusual. If I appeared in person some one would be unkind enough to arrest me and communicate with Luna or some one on this side not quite friendly to me. And explanations by mail would be a little complicated. Perhaps I'm too suspicious, but I fear that when I told him I had been compelled regretfully to terminate your career because you had interfered in my affairs your agent might refuse payment."

"He might. There's an alternative," Jack suggested. "Hold me prisoner for a hundred thousand dollar ransom. Send Miss Reynolds with the order signed by me. After the money comes, if you still feel bloodthirsty, I could be shot as well then as now."

"I don't think so," Jack disagreed. "That's the nub of it—that Miss Reynolds is to go free."

"After which I'm to take my chance of getting the money. No, thank you. Fact is, I've tried this ransom game. It didn't work. I could use a hundred thousand American dollars. But the catch is—as you Yankees say—that I wouldn't get it. For one thing, I expect to be very transitory in my places of residence. A hunted man has to move rapidly and often. Offer declined."

"You wouldn't take my word to go to Los Angeles, get the money, and bring it back to you?"

Megares lifted an inquiring eyebrow. "Miss Reynolds to go with you?"

"Of course."

"Do I look like that particular kind of a tool, Mr. Hadley?"

There was a commotion at the door, the sound of voices in argument. Megares rose and walked to the door. He threw it open, but Jack noticed that his hand was on the butt of his revolver.

"Who is it? What does he want?" the bandit general demanded of the guard.

"He wants to see you, general."

"That's right," Daggett assented. "I want to have a talk with you."

Megares stood aside. "Come in. Talk. But be very brief. What do you want?"

"I got a proposition to make," the old timer said. "Here's its shape. What's the sense in foolin' with this young squirt an' Miss Lee, general? They're just kids. If you've got to stand some one up against a wall what's the matter with me?"

"You would like to be shot?" Megares asked with a polite, cold smile.

"No such a thing. I'd hate it. But sho! I've lived my three score years an' ten, an' then some. Some of these young barbers that ride for me an' claim they're cowpunchers give it out that I'm two years older than God. Well, I ain't. I'm spry as any of them. Fact is, I've kinda took a smile to these young folks. You let them go, an' bump me off instead."

"No."

"But why not?"

"Because I do not choose."

Daggett's voice grew higher and more excited. "You got no business shooting these young folks. Nobody but a devil right straight from hell would do it. Think I don't recognize you, eh? Well, I do. You're the moke that shot me when Francisco killed this boy's dad."

"Get out," ordered the rebel chief.

"You're nothing but a dirty greaser murderer. I've got your number. You figure this boy knows you was in with Francisco an' Brennan on that. You figure this boy knows you was in with Francisco an' Brennan on that. You figure this boy knows you was in with Francisco an' Brennan on that

BASES FULL IN 11TH: HORNSBY'S HOMER WINS

FABER RESCUES BOWLER TO WIN OPENING GAME

Blue Law Breaks Up Second Battle.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., Sept. 13.—Carrying their determined pennant crusade into Beantown, the White Sox began their crucial series with the Red Sox with a bargain bill this afternoon before a mass of 7,000 rabid fans who cheered to the echo. The White Sox won the eye opener, 6 to 5, but in the nightcap or afterpiece of the two ply entertainment the two contenders for the prized gonfalon of baseballdom played 14 sessions to a draw with two tallies apiece.

RED FABER.

This was the third overtime performance for the White Sox in their last four struggles. They battled the Yankees for 13 paraphs in winning their first contest of Saturday's doubleheader and ten periods to a tie in the finale.

Checked Twice by Ties.

The wonder team's sweep toward pennantville has yet to meet a setback in the current swing around the eastern circle, but they have been checked twice in deadlocked embroglios in five starts. Consequently, they tolled 24 innings to no effect whatever, but this waste of motion has had no ill effect on the spirits of the athletes and they remain full of psychology and eager to resume their triumphant if slightly belated march toward the highest pinnacle in the national game, the world series, with the bauble of fame and fortune that goes with it.

Suggestions of calamity croakers continue to be heard from the unthinking element intending to discourage the sterling contenders by affecting their psychological reactions in such a way as to offset their never-say-die courage in the face of adversity which only seems to stimulate them to new heights of uncanny wizardry. But the mental attitude is always an important factor in any aggregation with the true fighting spirit, and the way the White Sox are fighting for the breaks when everything seems to be going against them is enough to absolutely command the admiration of all sportsmen with American sporting blood carousing in their veins, bar none.

Blame Faulty Timing.

On the other hand, of course, it is entirely possible that the present courageous dash to capture the premier titular honors of the junior circuit of baseballdom will be dashed from their hands just in the nick of time and the fans will have to patiently bear in mind that Rome was not built in a day. To face matters fearlessly it will have to be taken into consideration that the Athletics may suddenly enjoy a streak of luck and squeak through to Pennantville somehow, as their margin of 43 games over the pale hose is not to be sneered at if they get the breaks.

But right now the pallid hose are making their own breaks and if they do not win the cherished championship bunting their only fault will be faulty timing. In sport as in every other pursuit timing is an all important factor and it is possible that the Comiskey men delayed their pennant sweep a little too late in the season.

Faber Rescues Bowler.

In today's twin bill Manager Donie Bush's charges took advantage of the breaks to win the initial encounter by the narrow margin of 6 markers to 5. They were leading, 4 to 0, when the Beaneaters tied the score with four in their half of the third. During this rally Red Faber, the ancient moist ball artist, had to relieve Bowler after three runs were in, and another counter was chalked up ere he could relieve the situation created by the young campaigner. They each got one in the fourth, and the Sox finally won in the seventh when Watwood forced Fothergill and came home on Grube's double.

Fothergill starred in the back field during this duel, and his ten yard line plunge with Rothrock's long fly was only the feature of the game. He did most of the way on his face, and the stands gave him nine rahs as he came up.

White Sox Get 4-0 Lead.

The pallid hose started the first game with a run. Blue beat out a hit and went to second on McManus' wild throw. A single by Sullivan and an infield out nudged him across the platter. Kerr rolled the makings for two more Comiskey runs by getting a one baser. Grube smacked one for two sacks and Kerr made the circuit. Rice's infield hit sent Grube to third, and a double steal accounted for the second tally of the session.

Those courageous Sox built up a 4 to 0 lead in the third. Fonseca singled and eventually reached the count-

Greentree 4 Wins in Open Warmup, 12-3

Port Washington, L. I., Sept. 13.—[Special.]—Playing through an easy warmup for their first appearance in the open championship at Meadowbrook on Wednesday, when they meet Santa Paula in a semi-final match, John Hay Whitney's Greentree polo team defeated a twenty-four goal side, 12 to 3, today. The game was largely a chance for men and ponies to limber up and there was not much competition after the opening period.

Greentree rode with its regular line-up of Whitney, Pete Bostwick, Thomas Hitchcock Jr., and Stewart B. Iglehart. Opposed to them were W. Averill Harriman, John Benitz of the Hurlingham team from Argentina, which plays Tuesday in the first semi-final match of the open against the Hurricanes; Charles Schwartz, and Lewis Lacey, the leader of the Hurlingham team.

Harriman rode way from opening toss-in without any one near him to score the first goal of the match, but Sands Point did not score again until the sixth chukker, and by that time Greentree had ended all semblance of a contest and were on the long end of a 10 to 2 score. The summary:

J. H. Whitney, No. 1	W. A. Harriman
G. H. Bostwick, No. 2	John Benitz
T. Hitchcock Jr., No. 3	A. C. Schwartz

Asks Only $250,000 Cash Guarantee.

Jim Londos, claimant of the heavyweight wrestling championship of the world, announced yesterday through his manager, Ed White, that he would accept the challenge of Ed [Strangler] Lewis, former world's champion, for a match for the benefit of Gov. Emmerson's unemployment fund—under certain conditions. The principal condition imposed was a demand for a $250,000 guarantee for Londos' services.

White's statement was made public by Doc Krone, who has promoted matches in which Londos has appeared in Chicago. Krone said that "three organizations of multi-millionaires" were anxious to promote the match and pay Londos a purse of $250,000. He said the match probably would be signed this week, but refused to reveal the names of the charitable organizations which were anxious to pay Londos a quarter of a million dollars to wrestle for charity.

Call Lewis "A Bad Boy."

White's statement was issued as a result of a challenge which Lewis filed with the Illinois state athletic commission. Lewis on several occasions has challenged Londos to a championship match but until now the Londos interests have ignored them.

In a lengthy prelude White explained that Londos had refused to have any dealings with the Lewis group of wrestlers, blaming them for much of the unfavorable criticism which the game has been subject to in recent years.

"Londos is the stumbling block in their way and they want him out," White said. "When I finally brought my boy into the championship and he was so recognized by the commissions, I gave my word to all those concerned that I would not wrestle Lewis or anybody in their group until they had cleaned themselves of all the scandal that surrounded them, until they again won the respect and admiration of the wrestling world.

"Jim and I," Says White.

"Jim and I have packed houses all over the country drawing 100 to every one that Lewis drew. To me that is an indication which man the public wants and until the public speaks and asks me to break my pledge to the commissions and promoters and wrestlers, I will not consider Lewis.

"Charity is a great thing and I believe everybody, especially in these times, should assist, and Jim and myself, more than any others in the athletic or sports world, are, and have been doing more than our share. For over a year past we have been wrestling charity shows, matches which were being staged for this, that, or the other worthy cause and which to date has resulted in raising some $150,000 for charity. Right here in Chicago alone we have turned back to charity over $3,000 for the governor's unemployed and relief fund.

Defeat Would Ruin Jim.

"We are offering the services of Londos. It's a business with us. Wrestling is our way of earning a livelihood and we have something to sell. I cannot see why we should answer yes to Lewis' cry. What has he done for charity? But if the well meaning people of Chicago want us to wrestle him, if those to whom we pledged our word not to have any traffic with Lewis and his gang will relieve us of that pledge, I will demand $250,000 for the services of Londos in a Lewis match.

"Londos is at the peak of his earning power. He can earn that much easily in other matches. Should Lewis win, Jim and I would probably retire from the game at once. That would mean that our earning power would stop. I do not think Lewis can win, but if he did we would be through.

"My cards are on the table. I believe I am fair in my stand. I want to aid charity. But I do not want to aid Lewis. If the match is made at the terms I ask, and they wrestle and Londos wins, I will gladly make a very substantial and satisfactory donation towards the fund for charity from my share."

Cochrane Did Everything but Catch Until Minors Took Him

Boston, Mass., Sept. 13.—Name—Mickey Cochrane.

Age—28.

Occupation—Catcher for the Athletics.

Remarks—

Well, now I tell you.

This boy was an athlete at Boston university, and this school, being close to an old hotel where the major league ball players used to stop in Boston, he used to gaze among the athletes as they sat on the stone front stoop in the evening, reflecting the dying rays of the sun from their gold teeth. He had some faint wish to be a major league ball player himself, but it didn't trouble him much, because so many are called and so few are chosen for the annual openings for bright young men. Besides, he didn't have a gold tooth. At that time this boy reckoned that in the end he would just settle down in some working job, get married, save his wages, live in the suburbs, buy a car, and so forth.

His home was in Bridgewater, near Boston.

On the university ball club he played infield, outfield, and pitched. He was pretty good.

Gets Invitation to Join Portland Club.

He was graduated in 1924 and the Portland, Ore., club sent him a ticket and an invitation to come on out and play some ball for wages. So he went out to Portland and found himself listed as a catcher.

He knew he wasn't a catcher, and it didn't take him long to convince the management, for he was fighting the ball with a small, hard mitt, and if he held one pitch out of three the papers ran off extras. He was one of the worst catchers in the U. S. A. and all choked up with sadness, because he wished to marry a girl, and, of course, he couldn't ask her to do the catching and let him keep house.

There was a first string catcher on the team named Tom Daley, who had been a major leaguer. He came from Cambridge, Mass., also near Boston, and he felt sorry for the boy from Boston who was trying to take his job. So Daly watched him catching in the bullpen one day, and told him to get

That made the difference. He had been a fairly good catcher, after all, and it was just one year from the time he left college that he reported to Connie Mack as a candidate for the job held by Cy Perkins, the most stylish catcher of his time.

Cy was skinny and pale and worn down before his time by years of catching for the rabble that had tried to pitch for the A's when any high school boy could walk into the park, sign articles, and try his outcurve on Sisler and Ruth and Speaker. Cy was still very stylish, but Connie Mack knows athletes, and especially catchers, and he knew he would soon have to retire him.

Mack Feared the Worst for a Time.

"I had spent a lot of money for Cochrane," Connie said later, "and for a little while in 1925 I was afraid some one had taken advantage of my trust. The boy was full of energy and all such as that, but, my goodness, he wasn't a catcher. But there was something in the way he tried that made me think we could do something with him. Besides, he could hit and run and he had the strength to work all day. So we taught him a few things about catching and he came on so fast that it wasn't long until I had to take Perkins out and use a better man. He never will be

SIREN SWEEPS LUTZ Q TROPHY YACHT SERIES

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Siren, the Karas brothers Q boat from the Chicago Yacht club fleet, yesterday won the third and final race in the tenth annual series for the T. C. Lutz trophy off Jackson park and thereby carried off the trophy for the third consecutive year. The victory climaxed another successful season for the Karas brothers, who also piloted Siren to her fourth triumph in the Mackinac race two months ago.

When she rounded the home mark of the twelve mile triangular course yesterday, Siren was attended by only one of her three rivals in the series, and that was Princess, owned by Ed Jedzry-Kowski and Carl Kallgren of the Jackson Park club. Disaster fell upon the O'Rourke brothers' Intruder in the form of a cracked spar, and a torn mainsail eliminated Chaperon, owned by S. B. King, so that neither of them finished.

Fastest of 3 Races.

Siren's time for the final victory was the best of the three race series. It turned the course in 1 hour 41 minutes and 27 seconds, nearly ten minutes better than Princess, which required 1 hour 51 minutes and two seconds. The final point standing for the series gave Siren 12 points as a result of its clean sweep of the three races; Princess eight points for two second places and a third; Intruder five for a second and a third, and Chaperon one.

The four boats were greeted with the most robust weather of the series when they came up to the startling line yesterday, a southwest breeze which occasionally blew from 30 to 35 miles an hour. The start was perfect, all four getting away in perfect alignment. Chaperon dropped back of the others, but Siren, Intruder and Princess ran neck and neck to the first mark, which was sailed on a close reach. The second leg, a broad reach, found Intruder working out a goodly lead, leaving Siren and Princess in a close duel for second.

Intruder Goes to Front.

By the time Intruder had rounded the second mark and was heading for home on the first time around, she had built up a lead of more than a city block. The buttons holding the sail to the track on the spar then commenced to pop out and finally that portion of the stick above the topspreader snapped and Intruder's hopes were ended. Walter Johnson went aloft and applied first aid to the ailing spar until Mark Wade's power cruiser White Heron came along and towed Intruder into the harbor. It was at this point that Chaperon suffered the damage to her mainsail and she too came limping home.

Meanwhile, Siren had gone ahead of Princess, and by the time she turned the home mark she was fully three minutes ahead of the Jedzry-Kowski boat. She increased her advantage to such a point that the race, what remained of it, became a parade.

The winning crew was composed of Skipper Ole Karas, his brother, Al; Paul Blair, Phil Hill and Fred Peterson, all of whom displayed perfect teamwork in handling Siren throughout the series.

Sparta Soccer Team Beats Jugo-Slavs, 3 to 1

The Sparta Soccer club, holder of the Peel cup and National league championship, continued its winning streak by defeating the Jugo-Slavs at Sparta stadium yesterday, 3 to 1. Neither team was able to score in the opening period, but Sparta took the lead after 15 minutes in the second half on a penalty shot by Mrnka.

Chicago Net Title Play Starts Today

The annual tournament for Chicago's singles and doubles tennis championships will begin this morning at the Chicago Town and Tennis club with more than seventy participating. Heading the list is Luke Williams, who won the singles championship last year.

Others who will compete include George Jennings, holder of the national public parks championship; Scott Rexinger, former captain of the University of Chicago tennis team; Jack Harris, and Louis [Red] Thalheimer.

Many of the players participated yesterday in the last team match of the season at the Town and Tennis club when the home team defeated Hamilton Park, five matches to four. Jennings defeated José Alonzo, 6-3, 6-4, in one of the singles matches.

In the feature match, Jack Harris of the Chicago Town and Tennis club won from George O'Connell, Hamilton park, 6-3, 5-7, 12-10. Red Thalheimer and Harris defeated Jennings and Drautt in the doubles, 6-3, 2-6, 6-3.

Play was stopped in the match when Harris, seized with cramps, was unable to continue. Instead of being conceded the victory, Jennings and Drautt informed officials that they would wait until Harris returned. After waiting for 30 minutes play was resumed.

97 Pros Begin Play Today in National Meet

Providence, R. I., Sept. 13.—(AP)—With the exception of Walter Hagen, and Billy Burke, the national open champion, every one of the field in the Professional Golf association championship tournament was out on the course today, practicing for tomorrow's qualifying play in the 1931 championship at Wannamoisett club. Burke was here two days during the last week getting acquainted with the course and evidently saw no reason why he should pass up the sure money he received for playing an exhibition match today for a little added practice. He arrived tonight.

Thus far, 97 have entered, but there may be a few withdrawals or additions by morning.

Many of the pros have been here for several days. Up to date only two have broken par, which is 70. On Wednesday, Leo Diegel, P. G. A. champion in 1928 and 1929, had a 68, and yesterday big Ed Dudley, the western champion, duplicated Diegel's score.

Today's best rounds were 71's made by Tommy Armour, the defending champion, and also the British champion, Wild Bill Mehlhorn. Diegel and Whiffy Cox who, in his first time over the course, came home in 35. This morning Gene Sarazen, who won the event in 1922 and 1923, had a 72.

Audrey Boomer pro at a French club, had been invited to play as a "gesture to international good will." Some of the pros, however, regarded the matter in a different light. After a lengthy discussion it was decided not to permit Boomer to play, although he is here expecting to.

ST. PAUL WINS ITS 7TH PENNANT IN ASSOCIATION

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 13.—(AP)—The 1931 pennant of the American association was won today by the St. Paul club and the Saints therefore will meet the winner of the International league race for the "little world series" championship, starting here Sept. 30. Albert [Lefty] Liefield is the manager who piloted the locals to the top.

St. Paul clinched the association title by defeating Kansas City, 11 to 1, in the second game of today's double header, after losing the first, 4 to 3. It was St. Paul's seventh pennant in the circuit's history.

33,000 CHEER AS CUBS WHIP BRAVES, 11 TO 7

Then Bush Stops 'Em with One Hit, 8-1.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Those Cubs bounced back to life yesterday by triumphing twice over the Braves, but that's not the real story. Manager Rogers Hornsby in person supplied that. With the score tied at 7 all, the bases filled and two out in the eleventh inning of the first battle, he picked himself to break up the game and he did. Before 33,000, some friendly and some not, he sent a homer into the right field seats, thus clinching Charley Root's 16th victory of the season. The score was 11 to 7.

ROGERS HORNSBY.

With that wild struggle safely tucked away, the Cubs came back with Guy Bush leading them to an 8 to 1 win. And how he led them! Supported by some robust hitting on the part of his mates, he made another demand to be admitted to the no hit hall of fame. He failed by one clean single which Earl Sheely, the former White Sox, banged to left in the seventh. It was Bush's second one hit performance of the year. He pitched the first against the Cardinals several weeks ago.

Stage Is Set for Hornsby.

With one out Les Bell crashed a two bagger down the right field line. Barton was passed purposely but when Maguire made a one handed reach for a grounder by D. Taylor, it looked as if a possible rally was going to fade out. Another intentional walk put Grimm on first and filled the bases.

This was where Hornsby put himself on the spot. When Hemsley, the next batter, was summoned back from the plate, necks began to crane in the direction of the Cub dugout. Out came Rogers and the 33,000 were ready for him. Those who wanted to boo did it. Those who wanted to cheer did that. The former were vastly outnumbered. What Hornsby wanted to do and did do was something else.

One Strike, and Then—Bang!

When Cunningham's first pitch to him slipped over for a called strike the sportsmen booed some more. They accepted it as an indication that they would have their wish. They didn't know that one strike, or even two, never could annoy Hornsby.

The next pitch came along. Hornsby caught it with the far end of his bat and away it went. The drive sailed toward right. The ponderous Schulmerich rumbled back to the screen. He leaped as the ball went over his head, but he didn't leap high enough. Bell crossed the plate and then came Barton and Grimm stepping their way through the shower of straw hats which by that time was descending.

Then came Hornsby at a dog trot, not in the least excited over his achievement. But the crowd was. It stood up and yelled to the heavens. Those who might still have wanted to boo didn't dare. Half the team formed a receiving line at the plate to welcome the boss when he arrived. He shook their hands and disappeared, but the rumble of applause continued. Hornsby had given them a demonstration of "heart."

Before Hornsby staged his heroics there had been enough thrillers for one battle. Early in the game the Cubs gave Root a lead and then proceeded to throw part of it away. Finally Root was batted for two runs in the seventh, tying the score. The Cubs grabbed it back in the eighth, only to have Root falter again in the ninth when a pair of Braves crossed the plate to create another tie. All this was done during the régime of Dutch Brandt, the skilled southpaw, but he didn't finish. A collision knocked him out of action in the ninth and brought on Cunningham, who was there when the end came.

FIRST GAME

For the first three innings of the opening game the Cubs' attack was of no importance, but when Cuyler walked to start the fourth they lost no time getting down to a productive basis. Bell singled into center, Cuyler dashing to third. Barton smashed a double to left center, Cuyler scoring and Bell halting at third. An infield popup put an end to D. Taylor. Grimm ran the count down to three and one and picked on the next pitch for a triple to the screen in right center, Bell and Barton scoring. Grimm's chances of getting home vanished when Hemsley popped a foul to Spohrer and Root bounced to Sheely.

Herman's error served to let part of Root's three run lead leak away in the fifth. Maguire opened with a looping single behind short. Spohrer bounced to Herman and a double play was in sight, but in his haste the youngster pegged the ball like a rifle shot

Beats Cleveland, New Pro Loop Member.

Portsmouth, 14; Brooklyn, 0.

Green Bay, Wis., Sept. 13.—[Special.]—The Green Bay Packers opened their 1931 National Football league pennant race today by defeating Cleveland, 26 to 0. Despite a near cloudburst before game time, there were about 6,000 present.

Coach Lambeau used more than 30 players, and every one of his combinations clicked well. The champions were never in trouble and only twice during the game did the Ohioans get inside the Packers' 30 yard line.

In the second quarter Russ Saunders, former Southern California half back, celebrated his pro league début by running 30 yards through a broken field for a touchdown. Hurdis McCrary scored in the third period after a series of passes had taken the ball deep into Cleveland territory. Toward the close of the game Mule Wilson made a sensational run for a touchdown during which Wuert Engleman blocked superbly. Red Dunn kicked the goal. Lineup:

GREEN BAY (26).		CLEVELAND (0).
Baker	L. E.	Lamme
Jansisen	L. T.	Rider
Woodin	L. G.	Gregory
Don Carlos	C.	Pritchfield
Bowdoin	R. G.	Hudson

PORTSMOUTH WINS

Portsmouth, O., Sept. 13.—[Special.]—Portsmouth had little difficulty in stopping Stumpy Thomason and Yablok, Brooklyn's back field aces, and won the opening National Professional football game here today, 14 to 0. The Spartans aerial attack with Presnell worked the ball to Brooklyn's 11 yard line in the first quarter, Brooklyn's line held and the ball exchanged hands.

Early in the second period Schwartz, substituting for McClain, led a series of off tackle thrusts from midfield and finished off with a two yard dive through center for a touchdown. Clark kicked goal.

Mooney, who went in for Watkins, was slow in getting off a punt from behind his goal line a few moments later and Long, Portsmouth end, fell on the ball for a touchdown after four team mates had blocked it. The lineup:

PORTSMOUTH.		BROOKLYN.

SAWYER WINS 3D OUTBOARD TITLE IN EASTERN MEET

Middletown, Conn., Sept. 13.—(AP)—Paul B. Sawyer, 17, of Pocono, Pa., today won another crown as the eastern district championship outboard motorboat races were concluded here.

Despite the triple victory, Sawyer will not be able to compete in the national regatta next month at Oakland, Pa., since he plans to enter Yale university this fall. To the class "B" and "D," division 1, titles which he won yesterday, he today added the class "C," division 1, crown.

Hub Meyers of Petoskey, Mich., was the only other racer to win two district championships. He won the titles in class C, division 2, and class F, division 2, today.

TROOP NO. 3 WINS BOY SCOUT CANOE REGATTA TROPHY

The President Emmet O. Whealan trophy yesterday was won by Troop No. 3 of the Park Ridge suburban council in the second annual Boy Scout canoe regatta, sponsored by the western division of the American Canoe association and the forest preserve board at Maple lake.

The winning squad piled up 44 points, taking the single blade junior, one-eighth mile single blade, two mile single blade and the four man events. Troop No. 377 of Chicago finished second with five points and Troop No. 11, also of Park Ridge, placed third with three points.

BIG TEN STARTS SEASON WITH 18 OLD OFFICIALS

BY WILFRID SMITH.

How are the men chosen who officiate in Western conference football games? It is a tribute to the efficiency and integrity of these officials that their selection never has been questioned by the thousands of fans who each fall watch the important Big Ten contests.

Like officials in any game, baseball, basketball, etc., football officials hold an all important position. Their rulings may directly affect the result of the game, and many of their decisions are matters of judgment, just as it is an umpire's judgment that the pitch is a strike. But where many baseball fans may be in position to judge if the umpire is correct, it is safe to assert that none of the thousands of fans at a football game know if holding has occurred in the line of scrimmage until they see the penalty inflicted.

Coaches Approve Officials.

Four officials, referee, field judge, umpire, and head linesman, are assigned to every Western conference game. They are not, as might be the common supposition, hired by the coaches. However, their selection is approved by the coaches for each year they have opportunity to rate the work of the men.

These officials generally are former players or men who have long been associated with the game. Like arbiters in other sports, they must have a complete knowledge of the rules, must be able to decide instantly and render those decisions in an impartial manner. So closely do these men follow the technical development of a football game that they frequently do not know the score and they fail to thrill at the winning run any more than the baseball umpire cheers when a runner steals home.

Committee Rates Officials.

Prior to 1924 the faculty committee of the Western conference maintained a committee on officials. The work of this committee consisted largely in compiling annually an approved list of officials. The committee, however, did not assign officials to the games.

In 1924 the athletic directors suggested the desirability of having the football officials selected and appointed. Accordingly, the faculty representatives appointed a committee with this power. The arrangement also was approved by the athletic directors.

The 1931 committee consists of Prof. C. C. Williams of Iowa, Prof. W. J. Moenkhaus of Indiana, and Maj. John L. Griffith, commissioner of athletics of the Western conference.

Rated on Seven Points.

This committee annually receives from the coaches the ratings of the officials. The composite decision on the official's value determines his place on the list. The assignment committee proceeds on the following assumptions:

1. A man who works regularly in one capacity should do better work than if he works in two or more capacities such as referee one week and head linesman the next.

2. Officials need practice and consequently those who do the major part of officiating are assigned full schedules if possible.

3. In case of injury or illness other officials sometimes must be used. However, a field judge should be qualified to referee, etc.

Watch Animosities.

4. A man who has played in the line should be better qualified to serve as an umpire or head linesman, and a man who has played in the back field normally should serve better as an umpire or referee.

5. It is not desirable to assign a man to a game in which a team representing the institution from which the official was graduated is competing.

6. Where a bitter personal animosity exists between any official and any coach it is neither fair to the official nor the coach to have this official assigned to games in which the coach in question is interested.

7. One conference game is as important as another, and no other considerations are involved in assignment of officials, such as largest crowds, etc.

The competency of the conference officials is attested by the fact that 18 of the original list of 26 selected in 1924 still are working in Big Ten games. And in most cases replacements have been made only on account of death or removal of residence.

The list of 18 veterans follows:

Head linesmen—L. Gardner, Illinois; Perry Graves, Illinois; J. J. Lipp, Chicago; Hugh Ray, Illinois.

In addition to the regular staff of conference officials there are 75 other men who are selected to work in "B" games, or nonconference games. From this list replacements will be made in the future.

West Section Strongest in Years; Eyes Prep Grid Title

Every team in the west division, with one exception, has at one time or another had its chance to battle for the Chicago Public High School Football league championship in the title playoffs, and although all have failed, this year's representative will be one of the strongest in the history of the section.

Marshall, Austin and Harrison have shared the division honors since 1925, Marshall winning the sectional championship in 1926, 1927 and 1928, reaching the finals in the latter year only to lose to Tilden of the central section in the last few minutes of the game. In 1929, Marshall was defeated by Austin for the sectional title.

Pilney Leads Harrison.

Last year Harrison won the championship in the final west section game against Crane Tech when Andy Pilney raced 65 yards for a touchdown and gave Harrison its first opportunity to play for the league title in eight years. It advanced to the finals by winning from Lane Tech of the north section, but lost to Lindblom.

Bolstered by several promising players, the squad which carried Harrison to victory last year is together again and ready to battle for the 1931 championship.

"It's practically the same squad I had last year," said Coach Bob Daugherty, who is starting his tenth season, "and the few gaps in the line made by boys who left last June will soon be filled."

Marshall Veterans Back.

On Harrison's line will be Jim Harzath and Carl Karris, ends, who are playing their last year. Sophomores who probably will be given regular positions are George McPherson, a 250 pound guard; Kovalchek, Al Shiper, and Rufus Wycik.

Marshall's chances to regain the sectional championship will rest on 11 letter men who have reported to Coach Ernest Wills. In the back field will be Capt. M. Barron, full back; E. Schwartz, half back; Frank Florito, half back, and H. Tucker, quarter back.

The linemen will include H. Miller, guard; M. Bernstein, center; S. Berman, guard; E. Terry, tackle, and H. Block, tackle. Five numeral men have returned. They are Goldstein, end; Wine, end; Phogat, guard, and T. Terry.

Among the new players is Humberg Marcantonio, who last year played at McKinley and joined Marshall last week. Others are Guido Scartelli, who weighs 220 pounds and will play right guard; C. Barron, center, and H. Lipman, half back.

Ninety Report at Crane.

At Crane Tech, which finished in second place last season, more than ninety reported to Coach Bill Heiland. Nine letter men were among the candidates. Back field veterans are Capt. Stanley Mondala, Chester Bolinski, Harold Lewis, and Archie Friedman.

The Crane line will be composed of Ralph Silverstein, Jack Netcham, Martin Strutoff, Sam Pitken, Edward Jones, John Raleigh and Joe Bruels. New players include Merritt Adelman, tackle; S. De Filli, half back; Fossier, end, and Lionel Silverson, tackle.

Crane this season faces one of the heaviest out of town schedules in the league. It will meet Rockford, Ill., High school in a night game on Oct. 16 and will play Allentown, Pa., Nov. 26. From Allentown Crane will travel to Shenandoah, Pa., to meet Shenandoah High school on Nov. 28.

"With six veterans and some of the best material I have ever had, I think Austin has a good chance to win the section title again," said George Ring, who will begin his sixth season as coach since leaving the University of Illinois. "The Austin back field will include Frank Kmet, Al Grattaflore and George Bolos, all of whom were on the 1929 team which won the championship."

Austin Eyes Oak Park.

Linemen on Austin's squad this season are Wilson, McClintock, Kovelsky, Joyce, Cohen, Braverman and Brehrens. Three of the new players who have been selected by Coach Ring for the regular squad are Rakita, center, and Sullivan and Albertz, ends.

Austin's teams are annually judged when they meet oak Park of the Suburban league in one of the traditional inter-league games of the year.

Six veterans have reported to Coach Sam Knowinson at McKinley. They are Capt. Joe Sarraco, Pasquale Battista, William McCurio, Tom Lysiak and Edward Heffern. This will be McKinley's third year of competition, having entered the league in 1928.

Crane at McKinley.
Marshall at Austin.
Harrison bye.

OCT. 17.
Harrison at Austin.
Marshall at McKinley.
Crane bye.

OCT. 24.
Crane at Marshall.
Harrison at McKinley.
Austin bye.

OCT 31.
Marshall at Harrison.
Austin at Crane.
McKinley bye.

NOV. 7.
Harrison at Crane.
Austin at McKinley.
Marshall bye.

N. U. COACHES TO MAP PLANS FOR CAMPAIGN TODAY

Activity at Dyche stadium, home of Northwestern university's football team, will be speeded up today as last minute preparations are made for the opening of practice tomorrow morning.

Upon arrival at the varsity quarters tomorrow each player will find a complete set of equipment in his locker. Carl Erickson, trainer and equipment manager, has been busy for the last several weeks unpacking the new uniforms and other grid paraphernalia with which the Wildcats will be equipped this fall.

Although the players are not permitted to start proceedings until tomorrow there is no such restriction upon the coaching staff. So Dick Hanley has called a meeting of his staff for this morning. The only change for this fall is the addition of Bob Clark, last year's center, as one of the freshmen coaches.

Most of the players counted on for this year's squad arrived in Evanston over the week end. Capt. Dal Marvil, husky tackle, who spent the summer working on a fruit farm near his home in Wilmington, Del., has checked in and appears in fine shape. Reb Russell, full back, kept himself in condition by working on a north shore golf course during the summer.

Others already on hand are Pug Rentner, half back; Will Lewis, quarter back; Al Moore, half back; Jack Riley, tackle; Jimmy Evans and George Dilley, guards, and Ralph Eylar, end.

Berger's single to left opened the sixth and put the Braves on the trail of two runs. After Sheely had hoisted to left Berger started to steal second, and nobody covered the bag on Hemsley's throw. That induced Berger to go to third. Just as he arrived there Cuyler's return peg bounced over Bell and into the stand, so the runner continued to the plate. Urbanski singled and scored on Maguire's triple.

Cubs Score Two in Eighth.

Two were out in the seventh before the Braves moved toward the pair of runs which put them out in front by 5 to 4. Maranville slipped a single past Herman. Berger lifted a fall one over short, but the wind carried it back just far enough to keep it from English and not far enough to let D. Taylor reach it. It fell for a double, Maranville scoring. Sheely walked, after which Schulmerich singled to score Berger.

The Cubs got back on even terms in their half on a two bagger to center by English and Cuyler's single past Sheely.

Hemsley walked with two out in the eighth, and this started the two runs the Cubs thought would be sufficient for victory. Root singled through short, putting Hemsley on third. Brandt let loose a wild pitch, on which Hemsley scored and Root took second. English was hit by a pitched ball. Herman followed with a single to drive Root home.

Moore, batting for Maranville, was responsible for the jam that put the Braves back in a tie in the ninth. He doubled to center with one out. Berger flied out, but Sheely hit a two bagger into the left field corner and Moore scored. Neun ran for Sheely and crossed the plate with the tying run when Schulmerich singled to right.

Then the Cubs almost won it in their half. Bell doubled and Barton was passed. D. Taylor bunted on the fly, and both Brandt and Spohrer tried to grab it. Spohrer with his armor crashed into Brandt and knocked him cold. The ball fell to the ground, but Neun picked it up and threw to Moore to force Bell at third. Brandt was relieved by Cunningham. The relief man nailed Grimm on a fly to center and personally threw out Hemsley. But the eleventh brought better luck and Hornsby.

SECOND GAME

The Cubs jumped away impressively in the first inning of the second game because Bell was still making good use of his bat. Herman doubled past third base and scored when Bell drove a homer into the bleacher in right. Another long hit made it 3 to 0 in the third. English led off with a triple to right center and came home on Herman's fly to left.

A parade of four Cubs across the plate in the sixth opened when Barton singled to center. D. Taylor beat out a bunt past Frankhouse and Grimm filled the bases by bunting safely in Sheely's direction. Hartnett doubled to left, Barton and D. Taylor scoring. Frankhouse was replaced by Haid. After Bush had been thrown out English singled to center to score Grimm. Hartnett brought in the fourth run when Herman beat out a bunt to Sheely.

Braves Get One in Eighth.

The Cubs picked up another run in the seventh on a pass to Barton, a couple of outs and Hartnett's single. Then they grew generous and let the Braves enjoy a run in the eighth. Bell made a two base wild throw on Urbanski. Maguire was thrown out, but Neun, who batted for Cronin, walked. Moore, swinging for Haid, survived when Herman fumbled on what should have been a double play. This filled the bases. Urbanski scored while Herman was throwing out Richbourg.

GIANTS LOSE TO REDS, 1 TO 0; GET 9 TO 4 REVENGE

Benton Bests Walker in Pitching Duel.

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 13.—(AP)—The New York Giants divided a double header with the Cincinnati Reds here today, dropping the first game, 1 to 0, and winning the second, 9 to 4. Larry Benton held the Giants to five scattered hits in the first game, while Bill Walker, McGraw's star lefthander, yielded seven. The Giants hopped on Bennie Frey in the second game, scoring six runs in the first three innings. Scores:

Cards Take Double Bill from Phils

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 13.—(AP)—Defeating the Phillies in a double header today, 6 to 2 and 7 to 2, the St. Louis Cardinals increased their National league lead to nine games and need only five victories in the remaining 13 games to clinch the pennant.

Robins Score 3 in Ninth to Beat Pittsburgh, 6 to 5

Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 13.—(AP)—Glenn Wright's double, scoring O'Doul and Bissonette, was the climax of a three-run ninth inning rally that enabled the Dodgers to defeat the Pittsburgh Pirates, 6 to 5, in a one day stand here today.

Hartford Senators Win Eastern League Pennant

New York, Sept. 13.—(AP)—The Eastern league ended its season today with the Hartford Senators, the club which Brooklyn transferred almost intact from Macon, Ga., this year far out ahead. Hartford was ahead by a wide margin in both halves of the split season. The Senators won 47 games and lost 17 up to July 3, then completed the second half with a record of 54 victories and 22 defeats.

Cochrane Did Anything but Catch Until—

Mickey's ears came in for some comment from Burleigh Grimes during the world series of 1930. Grimes not only passed remarks but publicly placed his thumbs in his ears and wagged his hands at Mickey. Well, they are uncommonly prominent ears, but by now they have become a mark of identification like Hans Wagner's bow legs and Hughie Jennings' freckles.

Mickey is the roommate of George Earnshaw, the pitcher, when the club is on the road, and Earnshaw has stiffened his sales resistance against people who pursue well paid ball players. For several years Mickey's sales resistance was rather low, but it takes a champion salesman to win a decision over him now.

He has worked harder than most ball players and I suspect that some other young catcher will be coming along from Portland or somewhere in two or three years to prosecute him under the Law of Tooth and Fang. Well, they can come. That is what he did to Perkins and they got along together as friends for several years.

Mickey also plays the saxophone and might make a living out of that in years to come. Not that any one would pay him to play the thing. Quite the reverse.

P. S.—He married that girl.

WHITE SOX WIN, 6 TO 5; THEN PLAY 14 INNING TIE

Then young Bowler lost his grip on the situation and his lead as well. Russell beat out a bunt, Rothrock doubled, Sweeney singled, and McManus doubled. All this effort accounted for three runs and excused the young pitcher for the day. Faber came in and put out the fire, but not before McManus sneaked home with the tying run.

Jolley's single drove in Faber, who had walked, to present the visiting hosiery with a marker in the fourth, but the home Sox bounced right back with a counter. Jolley let Rothrock's fly fall for a double. The Bostonian then stole third and registered on McManus' fly after Sullivan missed a chance to retire the batter on a foul.

Appling's Double Helps.

By the time the seventh had rolled around Fatty Fothergill had replaced the limping Jolley. He inaugurated the winning White Sox offensive with a single. Watwood forced him. Then Appling sailed a double off the left field wall and Watwood scared with the run that brought home the bacon for old Red Faber.

The closing performance was terminated at the end of the fourteenth so that the pastime would not keep anybody from evening church services. Furthermore it was too dark for the athletes to see the old apple by this time.

John Moore started this game for the Chicago crew, but gave way to Bowler after the count was knotted in the sixth. Manager Bush, the grand old man of the rampaging wonder team, was taking no chances, to use a slang phrase, and relieved Bowler with Caraway in the ninth.

Fonseca Starts Scoring.

Fonseca carried in the first Pale Hose tally in the nightcap. He singled, pilfered second as Watwood fanned, and made the rest of the journey on Kerr's one bagger. The Beaneaters waited until the third to knot the count. Rhyne tore off a single, went to second when Storie was handed free transportation to first, and scored on a hit by Sweeney.

That deadlock lasted until Boston's turn at bat in the sixth. Rothrock knocked a single, filched the middle bag, and romped across the platter on Olson's one base drive. In the eighth the Comiskey employés brought about a tie that endured to the finish. Kerr doubled and counted on two infield outs, the last by Jolley, who batted for Moore.

Bowler took over the pitching burden in the eighth, but Caraway was rushed in to face Webb after Bowler had passed Olson in the ninth. Cecil Pat got himself into a jam in the 14th, but escaped disaster after two singles and a base on balls had populated the sacks.

BURNING BLAZE, HYGRO OFF TO EASTERN MEETS

Western Stars Seek Title Prestige.

BY FRENCH LANE.

There's no lack of nerve on the part of our two best western 2 year olds, Hygro, from the Nevada Stock Farm stable, and Burning Blaze, owned by Dick and Pat Nash of Chicago—when it comes to seeking championship honors.

The two youngsters, after capturing most of the best 2 year old stakes run here this season, will say good-by to their Chicago admirers early this week and will go east in search of more gold and additional championship prestige.

They will not invade New York, since neither is eligible for the $100,000 Futurity to be run at Belmont Park next Saturday afternoon. Their first stop will be Maryland, and during the autumn and fall racing at Havre de Grace, Laurel and Pimlico they hope to meet the champions of their age from the east. During the campaign they will hop back into Kentucky to try for the Kentucky Jockey Club stakes.

Whipped Many Easterners.

Burning Blaze already has whipped a majority of the easterners. He did it in the rich Post and Paddock Stakes at Arlington Park. Tick On, the winner of Saratoga's $50,000 Hopeful, trailed him home that day.

Then a little later Hygro became a sensation. He beat Burning Blaze in the Hawthorne Juvenile handicap and repeated the licking in the Joliet stakes at Lincoln Fields. Both have been tested under weight; they have raced under all sorts of conditions and the west never sent two more formidable stalwarts into the east in search of championship honors. It is too bad neither is eligible for the Futurity at Belmont. If they could run in that famous stake the easterners would likely be convinced that all good race horses do not hail from along the Atlantic seaboard.

Top Flight Would Retire.

Top Flight, the Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney 2 year old filly, which seems to have the Futurity next Saturday at her mercy, is the one the westerners want to meet. But should Top Flight win the Futurity they may not get a chance to race against her, for it is the policy of the Whitney stable to retire any Futurity winner they might own immediately after the $100,000 race is run.

But if Top Flight should be beaten in the Futurity there is a good chance her conqueror will line up at the barrier in the Pimlico Futurity against the bold and fleet footed westerners.

Clears Field Here.

The departure of Hygro and Burning Blaze for Maryland will leave the remaining 2 year old stakes at Lincoln Fields very wide open affairs. But out of them may come another fleet youngster that will beat Hygro and Burning Blaze later on in their racing careers. For you never can tell what 2 year old race horses will do.

The seven furlongs fifth race, an allowance affair, is the best race on the Lincoln Fields program today. In it the fleet Infinity will step up out of the selling plater ranks and attempt to beat such good horses as Sister Zoe, Listo, Martha Jones, Fiddler, Kinscen, Eskimo, Double Heart, and half a dozen others.

Infinity at one time was a stake star, but drifted down into the plater class when his speed began to wane.

Calumet Farm Quits Racing for Breeding

Lexington, Ky., Sept. 13.—(AP)—The famed Calumet farm of the late William Monroe Wright, baking powder manufacturer, will be retired from trotting and limit its activities to breeding and training trotters for the market. The new policy was announced by Warren Wright, Chicago, new master of Calumet, who was bequeathed the farm by his father.

Eighty of the 200 brood mares at the farm will be retained and the remainder sold at auction. All horses in training also will be disposed of. Calumet's five noted stallions will be kept as part of the breeding establishment.

The 120 mares will be sold in installments, the first lot at the Kentucky Sale company auction at Lexington the latter part of this month; another lot at the Indianapolis November sale, and the remainder at the Old Glory sale in New York. The entire racing stable of trotters and pacers will be auctioned without reserve at the Old Glory sale.

Mr. Wright, who died two weeks ago, spent $2,000,000 developing Calumet farm after he retired from business. This year Calumet Butler won the rich Hambletonian stake, most sought after trotting prize, but his owner never did know of the victory. Mr. Wright was on his death bed at the time.

Start Annual Chicago Open Meet Today

The second annual Chicago District Golf association pro-amateur best ball championship will be played at the Casa del Mar Country club, one and a half miles south of Dyer, Ind., today. The event is open to all professionals and amateurs in the Chicago district, which now takes in a territory of some 200 miles from Chicago. Pros will make their own pairings for the play, which will be at 36 holes from scratch.

An additional cash prize of $100 will be awarded any professional who breaks par. There also will be three cash prizes of $100, $50, and $25 for the professionals, while the amateur winners will receive awards in merchandise or silver.

Last year's event at the Sunset Ridge Country club was won by Jack Westland, amateur of Sunset Ridge, and Al Lesperance, professional at Westmoreland, who had a best ball score of 102 for 27 holes.

The event has been increased to 36 holes this year.

Fall Is Best Time to Get Black Bass

BY BOB BECKER.

The black bass have been moving out of their "cyclone" cellars where they went to escape the hot days of summer and now they are cruising around in shallower water where the September angler can again connect with them with artificial lures. This is the usual "migration" for the bass every autumn, but the first actual report on the situation reached us a few days ago.

Walt Hasting, Michigan's well known wild life photographer, who lives on Leelanau lake above Traverse City, wrote us that the small mouths were "up" again after being "down" for the summer. Moreover, they are striking artificial lures in the shallower water whereas during July and August one had to dig them out of deep water.

September Best Month.

September is one of the best months of the year for work with rod and line on northern lakes although comparatively few fishermen take advantage of the month. When we were at Three Lakes, Wis., last week one of the guides said that a few dyed in the wool fishermen came up in September after all the vacationists had gone home, but throughout the north country September finds a surprisingly small number of rod and line enthusiasts on the job.

This situation prevails in spite of the fact that warm days and cool, snappy nights do for fishing just what Hastings has reported and what we have found on September trips; the bass come out of the deep water and soon acquire the striking habit.

No Limit on Perch.

Although Michigan keeps a size limit on most of the game fish in the state, restrictions have been taken off on perch and rock bass. Probably many fishermen have been puzzled by this ruling, which seems anti-conservation.

When we trailed through Kalkaska county this summer in company with Dr. Carl L. Hubbs, of the Bureau of Fisheries institute, he showed us why it was desirable to permit fishermen to take small sized perch and rock bass.

In many of the lakes which he surveyed he found thousands of perch and rock bass but—all of them stunted. He showed us adult perch in some lakes which never would get more than five inches long and small rock bass which were mature at four inches. Therefore, it was a good move to take off the size limit on these species so that the overproduction of small fish problem could be solved.

HOPPE, COCHRAN HERE TODAY FOR 3 CUSHION MEET

Willie Hoppe and Welker Cochran will arrive in Chicago today to prepare for the opening of a three-cornered three cushion match which will start at the Kieckhefer Recreation tomorrow [Tuesday] afternoon. Augie Kieckhefer of Chicago, a nine time holder of the world's championship, will complete the field. The draw for the opening day games will be made today.

Hoppe was the winner of the last three cornered tournament, which was played here last May. Hoppe was first, Kieckhefer second and Cochran third. All games will be at 50 points and the tournament will be a double round robin, with each player meeting each of the others twice. The schedule calls for twelve games.

FIELDS, TERRY MEET THIS WEEK IN RING FEATURE

Former Champ Returns to New York.

New York, Sept. 13.—(AP)—Jackie Fields of Los Angeles, former world's welterweight champion, comes to New York this week for the second time in his career to headline the first important boxing card of Madison Square Garden's 1931-'32 indoor season.

Fields, who made his first and only appearance in New York in February, 1929, when he defeated Baby Joe Gans, meets the young and rugged Trenton, N. J., slugger, Young Terry, in a ten round bout Thursday night.

Walker Meets Hambright.

Another Trentonian, Paulie Walker, meets Vincent Hambright, Cincinnati middleweight, in the ten round semi-final and My Sullivan, veteran St. Paul middleweight, tackles Solly Krieger of New York in the first ten.

Metropolitan district fans will be offered two other big-time cards with Charley Retzlaff, Duluth, Minn., and Steve Hamas, Passaic, N. J., on Tuesday night at the Queensboro stadium. Retzlaff, whose sensational winning streak recently was stopped by Joe Sekyra, veteran Dayton heavyweight, will meet Gene Stanton, a newcomer from Cleveland. Hamas, who has been bowling over the lesser heavyweights with reckless abandon, tangles with Pat Hayward of Philadelphia.

Shea vs. Battalino.

Of the other boxing centers, Los Angeles, Philadelphia, and Hartford, Conn., have the leading offerings. At Los Angeles Ace Hudkins, erstwhile Nebraska wildcat, continues his campaign among the heavyweights in a ten rounder with Dynamite Jackson of Santa Monica, Cal., Tuesday night.

At Hartford, Tuesday, Christopher [Bat] Battalino, world's featherweight titleholder, encounters the Chicago veteran, Eddie Shea, in a ten round nontitle bout. Bouts on the national schedule include:

MONDAY.

TUESDAY.

At Los Angeles—Ace Hudkins vs. Dynamite Jackson, 10.

At Portland, Ore.—George Dixon vs. Wesley Ketchell, 10.

At Indianapolis—Muggs Kerr vs. Chuck Burns, 10.

At Canton, O.—Meyer [K. O.] Christner vs. Emmett Rocco, 10.

THURSDAY.

At New York—Jackie Fields vs. Young Terry; Paulie Walker vs. Vincent Hambright, and My Sullivan vs. Solly Krieger, each 10.

WALL ST. BANKS EXPECT INQUIRY BY CONGRESS

Foreign Credits Are Under Attack.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 13.—Wall street is faced with the most searching investigation of its methods and policies witnessed in many years when congress reopens next December. Leading bankers here feel that there is nothing to fear from these projected inquiries, but they are concerned over the possibility of radical proposals for altering existing banking regulations.

A few important Wall street bankers take the stand that the banking community should prepare itself now to meet the charges to be brought against it. They have urged their colleagues to prepare in advance their answers to questions that are sure to be asked. The majority, however, feels sufficiently secure in its sense of rectitude and refuses to take alarm at the prospect of congressional probes. This apathy may prove unfortunate, several bankers have suggested.

Request Information.

A clue to the lines which may be followed by coming congressional investigations has already been provided by requests for information that have reached Wall street bankers and their legal representatives from Senator Carter Glass and Congressman Louis T. McFadden, the chairmen, respectively of the senate and the house committees on banking and currency.

Wall street anticipates two main avenues of banking inquiry to develop in Washington this winter. The first will be an investigation of the federal reserve system and the second will probe into the conduct of private banks. There is already clear indication that the federal reserve authorities will be asked to justify their course of action in extending a credit of $25,000,000 to Germany and one of $125,000,000 to England.

The fact that both these credits have become frozen, tying up $150,000,000 of the federal reserve's funds for an undetermined length of time will probably provoke a good many questions as to whether or not the reserve has departed from the original intentions of the framers of the federal reserve act.

Under Different Circumstances.

The action of the Federal Reserve bank in 1925 in extending a $200,000,000 gold credit to the Bank of England has repeatedly evoked criticism in the past. But that credit was never even used. The present credits were extended under very different circumstances and open up a far reaching question of central banking policy. What the investigators will want to know is whether the federal reserve, as the repository of the reserves of the country's banking system, is justified in lending its money abroad when there is a strong indication that such loan will not be liquid.

Another question the congressional investigators are expected to ask the federal reserve officials is what they have done to guard against bank failures and to help restore business. During 1930 more than 5 per cent of all the banks in the country failed, a total of 1,345 having been forced to close their doors. This year the record may be worse for already 1,098 banks have been forced to the wall, according to records compiled by the American Banker. During the last six days 44 banking institutions have failed and in the previous week 54 were forced to suspend payments. Since Jan. 1 deposits of $764,000,954 have been tied up in bank closings.

Foreign Acceptance Credits.

A line of inquiry expected to be followed by the two congressional committees which will concern both the federal reserve banks and the commercial banks is the question of foreign acceptance credits. The difficulties of central Europe, resulting in the "freezing" of more than $300,000,000 of acceptance credits extended by American banks to Germany, have brought into the open a condition that has long been the subject of vague accusations and denials. This is the existence of "finance paper," in other words, bills not backed by actual self-liquidating commercial transactions.

Under the law Federal Reserve bank is forbidden to purchase such paper, but the methods followed here in conducting acceptance business have been such that finance paper has found its way into the banks without their knowledge and some of this paper may easily have been taken to the reserve banks.

Takes Word of Banks.

The investigators are expected to ask the officials of the Federal Reserve bank whether it is true that the bank holds some finance bills. Bankers are interested and a little concerned as to how this question will be answered for the reserve does not itself demand proof that the paper it buys is self-liquidating. It takes the word of the banks for that and sometimes the banks have only the word of their foreign correspondents to go on.

Unless the banks themselves are prepared to forestall the possibility of onerous regulations by taking the whole question in hand at an early date, the question of foreign bill financing may prove an unhappy one. A few bankers are already warning their associates.

Eye Bank Affiliates.

The problem of why banks have failed in such great numbers during the last two years, despite the bulwark of strength provided by the federal reserve and the regulations drawn up by the state and national governments for safeguarding depositors will undoubtedly occupy the congressional banking committees. This question may in turn lead to a further inquiry into investment affiliates.

See Railways as Bellwethers of Mart Trend

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 12.—Increasing importance is attached by market students to the action of the railroad stocks, which, it now is asserted, have been fairly consistent bell wethers of general market trends.

An analysis shows that is only partially true, for while the railroad stocks generally start downward about two weeks before the general runs of stocks, they do not lead the upward swings.

Verification of the facts begins in 1929, shortly before the great market crash. THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S railroad average reached its highest recorded mark on Sept. 3, 1929, when it was 158.71, and thereafter a steady decline began in railroad stocks. The industrials continued upward two weeks longer, reaching their highest record, 469.49, on Sept. 19, sixteen days later.

First to Start Down.

Again, in 1930, after stocks had rallied from the November lows for several months almost uninterruptedly, the railroad average touched a year's high of 136 on March 29, while the industrials reached a high mark of 358.16 on April 10, twelve days later. Once more the railroads started downward before the general list.

In the current year, a signal of the approaching decline was given when the railroad average sagged after reaching 94.58 on Feb. 10. Unfortunately for full consistency, there was a "false rally" in the rails, caused in part by widespread publicity relating to railroad electrification plans of a leading system and reports that other roads also were to conduct similar operations and a slightly higher level was touched on Feb. 24 at 94.58. On the same day the industrials reached the 1931 high mark of 251.22 and rails and industrials broke simultaneously from that time on.

Cite Minor Swings.

Aside from the broader swings described the fluctuations have ran abreast in the minor swings, industrial and railroad averages having touched their latest high marks together on June 27 at 73.81 and 215.76, respectively. Action of the rails during the mid-August rally indicated that the improvement was not equally ratified by the railroad group. While industrials rallied from 183.18 on Aug. 6, to 199.18 on Aug. 15, up 16 points, or 8.7 per cent, the rails advanced only from 56.06 on Aug. 11 to 59.51 on Aug. 15, a gain of 3.45 points or 6.1 per cent.

In the latest minor movement the railroad and industrial averages fluctuated together. The former rallied from 55.65 on Aug. 26 to 57.21 on Aug. 29 and thence declined practically without interruption to a low of 48.39 Saturday, a decline of 8.82 points or 15.4 per cent.

WHOLESALE MARKET PROVES BRIGHT SPOT IN CHICAGO BUSINESS

One bright spot on the Chicago business horizon is the wholesale field, according to Claude A. Welles, general manager of the Chicago Merchandise Mart. A survey of the thousands of lines represented by the manufacturers, wholesale distributors, and importers in the world's biggest building shows that there is a very encouraging increase in seasonal trade. This, coupled with the apparent trend toward better business conditions, was the basis for Mr. Welles' optimistic statement.

"The autumn stimulus to trade appears to have been a little tardy," said Mr. Welles, "but business, from the index of the Merchandise Mart, seems to be taking the attitude of better late than never, and traces of cheer appear in reports that come to me in our great central market.

"These encouraging reports indicate a definite upturn in business, with the chief strength coming from rural retailers of the middle west rather than city merchants. Blankets, wool dress goods, and silks proved the best selling items, and silk yardage sales were said to be considerably ahead of the amount bought during the same period last year."

A daily average of 3,000 buyers has kept sales totals up to most hopeful expectations during August and the first week of September, according to Mr. Welles.

CARPET CONCERN SEEKS LISTING ON BIG BOARD

New York, Sept. 13.—The Bigelow-Sanford Carpet Co., Inc., has made application to list the capital stock of the company on the New York Stock Exchange. The stock is now traded in on the Boston Stock Exchange and the New York Curb Exchange.

Alpha Portland Cement company has notified the New York Stock Exchange of its intention to decrease its common stock to $18,486,000 from $24,134,500. The stated value of the no par common will be reduced to $26 a share from $33.94, as at present, to have a larger part of the book value of the stock represented in surplus.

New York Bank Stocks Make New Low Records

New York City bank stock market, in sympathy with the trend of securities markets in general, established new low records last week, according to the dollar index figures compiled by Holt, Rose & Troster. Based upon Sept. 10 prices, the sixteen leading bank and trust company shares were selling at 16.2 times known earnings, and the average yield was 5.307 per cent as of Sept. 12.

$1,792,000 Fort Worth Bond Issue Is Offered

Offering is being made of a new issue of $1,792,000 City of Fort Worth, Tex., 4½ per cent bonds, dated Oct. 1, 1931 and due Sept. 1, 1932 to 1951 inclusive, priced to yield 2.85 to 4.25 per cent, by Eldredge and Co.

BETTER FEELING IS OBSERVED IN GRAIN MARKETS

Hold Stock Prices Key to Future.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

A turn for the better came to the grain markets last week, and, while the best prices were not maintained at the last, the feeling in all markets was more constructive than of late.

Prices moved higher within a fair range and September wheat gained 1⅝c and other deliveries ⅞@⅞c. September corn was under pressure from liquidators and lost 3c, and other deliveries were off 1⅞@2⅛c. Oats gained ¼@⅜c and rye 1⅜@3⅛c.

Improvement was overdue and traders are more inclined to favor the constructive side of the market. A few leaders express the belief that lowest prices have been reached, yet they do not expect that the market will score a liberal advance in prices unless there is a permanent improvement in the New York stock market.

Much attention has been given to the improvement in the foreign markets due to unfavorable harvest, while the reverse was expected a month ago. Even Russia reports crop damage with a reduced estimated exportable surplus. Pressure from the southern hemisphere is lighter, and Argentina, while having a liberal exportable surplus, has comparatively little high grade wheat. France will have to import more wheat than expected early in the season because of crop losses. Losses in other countries are said to be sufficient to change the general foreign conditions.

Cash Situation Improved.

Foreigners are more disposed to buy American hard winters, which are extremely low priced, but they are not buying in a way to excite American and Canadian traders into advancing prices sharply.

Business conditions have improved moderately, but have not reached the stage that would insure or create a decidedly bullish sentiment. There have been many false starts in the wheat market within the last few months and traders have lost money in buying wheat even below the 60c level. Ordinarily 50c and 60c wheat would be cheap, but so far purchases even under 50c have not resulted in substantial profits.

A most important factor, and one largely responsible for an upturn in values, has been the steady and decided improvement in the cash situation, with a good advance in premiums in all markets. Offerings from the country have not been large and the cash wheat has been more strongly held. Millers and elevators in the northwest are not getting enough good wheat, and Minneapolis September is congested. It is said to be held largely by a leading cash interest and closed the week 18⅛c above Chicago, while December in Minneapolis is 12c premium over Chicago.

The shortest spring wheat crop in the American northwest since 1894 is responsible for the premiums at Minneapolis and Chicago and it would be no surprise to see them widen. The four northwestern states raised only 77,000,000 bu of bread and durum wheat this year as compared with 192,000,000 bu in 1930. In 1894 they raised 88,000,000 bu and prices were around the 50c level late in that year, only to advance around 20@35c in later months. Cash wheat in Chicago in July, 1894, was 50¾@60½c, in September 50@55c, and December 52⅝@63⅝c.

Must Have Sound Basis.

Those who have studied the wheat situation closely in the last two years say that there can be no permanent and material advance in prices until liquidation in grains and commodities is completed, and they do not believe that that period has been reached. When a substantial foundation has been firmly established and the farm board is out of the way, they look for an advance of 15@20c a bu within a few months. Until then choppy markets are to be expected.

September wheat in Chicago closed Saturday at 48¾c, December 50@50¼c, March 52⅞c, and May 54⅝@54⅝c. Prices for the week follow:

Pressure on September Corn.

September corn acted in a way that mystified the trade for a time, and while it advanced over 2c a bu, it broke sharply and rallied to the highest of the week on Saturday, although finishing at a net loss of 3c for the week. Several million bushels of December corn were sold presumably for a large holder, although most of the trade thought it was a short sale.

The government crop report was slightly bullish, but had no effect. It estimated the crop in eleven states at 1,896,000,000 bu, compared with 1,953,286,000 bu in August, 1,547,000,000 bu in 1930 and a five year average of 1,980,000,000 bu. Total crop of the country was cut down 60,000,000 bu in August to 2,715,000,000 bu, compared with 2,094,000,000 harvested last year, and 2,760,000,000 bu as the five year average.

Average Prices of Sixty Bond Issues at New Lows

New York, Sept. 2.—(AP)—The bond market continued to decline last week and the average price of sixty leading corporate issues reached successive new low levels on the last four days of that period.

The sale of $25,000,000 of 4½ per cent bonds of the Canadian National Railway company on Wednesday, however, was a development that received favorable comment. Subscriptions to this issue were so heavy that the underwriting syndicate was able to sell an additional offering of equal amount on the succeeding day. Completion of such a transaction at a time when the market as a whole was declining depended on the character of the issue, which in this case was guaranteed unconditionally both as to principal and interest by the Canadian government.

Not So Popular.

On the other hand, the new issue of 3 per cent United States treasury bonds, which trading started in the over the counter market on Tuesday, promptly declined and sold for a short time as low as 99½. That this issue had not proved as popular as various other treasury offerings was apparent from the fact that the oversubscription was relatively much smaller than for several of its predecessors.

It seems probable that some subscribers, having received much less than their subscriptions in previous offerings, increased the quantities of their bids, expecting them to be scaled down, and then found themselves with more bonds than they really desired.

Consequently a number of subscribers were disposed to sell portions of their allotments. The upturn in government obligations on Friday was ascribed in part to the end of this pressure and to covering of short commitments made when the market was declining.

All of High Grade.

The character of the new issues showed no essential change from other recent fluctuations. In a word, they were all high grade obligations. Aside from the $20,000,000 of short term issues of the federal intermediate credit banks and the Canadian railway bonds the offerings were principally municipal bonds of moderate amounts.

With the exception of gilt edge bonds, which continued steady to firm, the market as a whole continued to decline. A number of railroad and industrial issues reached further new low levels and some of them touched the lowest prices in several years.

$27,124,941 IN U. S. CASH AVAILABLE FOR ROAD WORK

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13.—(AP)—A balance of $27,124,941 is available in federal aid highway funds for new projects.

In announcing this, the bureau of public roads said $170,924,029 in federal aid had been allotted for roads under construction and that an additional $18,584,139 had been allotted on projects approved for construction.

New York led all states with $14,006,619 allotted for federal highways under construction and $1,325,975 for roads approved for construction. The balance available for new projects, however, was only $61,650.24. The funds must be matched from the state treasuries.

State, Municipal Issues Will Total $62,343,260

New York, Sept. 13.—New state and municipal bond offerings scheduled by 59 communities this week total $62,343,260, compared with $34,575,666 last week. The weekly average for the year to date is $37,048,826. Almost two-thirds of the amount for this week is accounted for by the $40,000,000 New York state loan scheduled for Tuesday.

London Ills Likened to Run on Bank.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 13.—The particular phase of economic depression through which we are now passing is partly a result of accumulated disappointments in the course of finance and trade, but very largely also a matter of psychology.

Absence of extensive business revival, the succession of expected but none the less discouraging reductions or omissions of company dividends, the continuing fall in prices, and, still more important as an influence, the summer's extraordinary occurences in the external finance of Germany and England, have combined to create in many quarters a judgment of the whole situation such as itself contributes necessarily to the deepening of depression.

An Economic Chapter.

The diagnosis, which has now become familiar, that this is an economic chapter which not only surpasses in disquieting phenomena all other previous episodes of the kind but which perhaps threatens the downfall of what is termed the "capitalistic system," shows the effect of these recent experiences on the community's mental attitude.

Unfortunately, this vague and formless apprehension has translated itself into action which aggravates the unfavorable aspects of the situation. The first London conference on German affairs expressed its opinion that the exchange market crisis of July "was not justified by the economic situation of the country," and the Wiggin committee at Basle indorsed the judgment. But the instantaneous recall by foreign lenders of their capital from the heavily indebted Berlin market occurred nevertheless; it occurred virtually without warning and with explosive violence.

Sudden, Contagious Fright.

The rush to snatch away foreign capital from the certainly not insolvent London market occurred with the same precipitancy. Each resembled a sudden and contagious fright of bank depositors, culminating in a run on the bank which, unless outside help was offered, would break the most solvent institution. Neither was caused by actual and alarming developments in the two countries. Both were impulsive in their origin; both were conducted not with deliberation but with panicky excitement. Each was cause as well as consequence of the excessively pessimistic

MERCHANTS ARE ENCOURAGED BY MILD TRADE GAIN

Heavy Industries Remain in Doldrums.

New York, Sept. 13.—(AP)—Merchants, having spread canvas to catch the seasonal trade winds which usually come with autumn, were generally encouraged by such mild breezes as developed during the last week.

Heavy industries remain for the most part in the doldrums, but reports of some pickup in lighter lines of manufacturing continues to accumulate, and both wholesale and retail buying, while still cautious and at rather unsatisfactory prices, show a fair degree of stimulation. The movement of fall merchandise at retail was checked somewhat by hot weather late in the week.

Notable in reports from leading centers during the last week was mention of some gains in employment here and there. The automobile industry is recalling some workers, as preparations are made for introduction of new models, and some of the lighter lines such as radio manufactruring are feeling the approach of their best selling season.

Stimulus Tardy and Mild.

On the whole, however, commentators generally acknowledge that seasonal stimulus to general business activity is tardy and mild. Such important barometers as the weekly reports of freight car loadings remain but mildly encouraging.

The latest weekly report of loadings showed a gain over the previous week of roughly 15,000 cars, the largest in some time, but this was under the usual gain reported at this time, and was largely accounted for by increased movement of coal. Such classifications as less than carload lots and miscellaneous freight, which depict the movement of general merchandise, showed gains over the previous week of only 617 and 1,612 cars, respectively.

The steel industry, one of the most thoroughly depressed of the major lines, has shown a gratifying comeback after some slackening over the Labor day week-end. Some observers feel that the seasonal pickup in this industry, hopes of which had been all but abandoned, has at last started. Orders for pipe and structural steel still predominate in such new business as has developed.

Sees Crisis About Over.

The American Institute of Steel Construction has sent a statement to steel contractors indicating that the crisis in the steel industry has about passed, and that the volume of projected heavy construction promises substantial improvement once the orders for material are placed. As yet, however, buying remains extremely cautious.

In nonferrous metals the copper industry remains extremely gloomy. August statistics were unsatisfactory, showing a further gain of about 15,000 tons in stocks of refined metal on hand, which are now in excess of 485,000 tons, the largest on record. The export price was cut to a record low of 7¾ cents a pound, bringing down to the basis of the 7¼ cent domestic price. There is considerable talk of a conference to be held here next month to consider further curtailment of output. The success of such a conference is believed to hinge largely on the attitude of the South African producers.

Somewhat Unsettled.

The petroleum situation is somewhat unsettled by the uncertainties surrounding the effects of the resumption of east Texas production, under control, and apparently at about half the output preceding the shutdown.

Textile and shoe production continue to maintain their generally improved position. The progress of the movement to curtail the cotton crop drastically next year appears to have made mills a little more willing to build up stocks at present low prices for raw cotton.

REVIEW DISCUSSES FACTORS FAVORING MARKET FOR BONDS

"Money rates remain at extraordinarily low levels," the review states. "Business inactivity has left a great deal of money for investment which in ordinary times would be required in the conduct of business. The supply of fixed income bearing obligations has been added to only moderately; and, because of the extremely conservative attitude adopted by the majority of investors, new bond offerings have consisted almost entirely of issues combining security and liquidity to a high degree."

Public utility bonds offered during the first eight months of 1931 led all other classifications in aggregate amount, the review points out, and these issues continue to enjoy higher favor among all classes of investors than practically any other of the major divisions of the bond market. This popularity is a direct reflection of the comparative stability in earnings which the utility division, considered as a whole, has been able to show in the face of the severe and protracted depression in business.

The review then discusses the present attitude of investors, saying:

"Reflecting the prevailing overcaution, a distinct cleavage has continued between glit edge bonds and issues of the less widely recognized variety—in fact, has even further widened. Investors have been demanding high quality, and have not hesitated to pay the price. Consequently, glit edge issues have alone enjoyed ready acceptance and, because of some preponderance of demand over supply, have shown well sustained strength during the greater part of the year.

"Many opportunities to obtain unusually liberal income exist in the present market among sound but less widely recognized issues. To avail himself of these opportunities by no means signifies that undue concessions must be made by the investor from the standpoint of security, but he should be willing to study the issues offered."

STEEL OUTPUT IS REPORTED AT DEPRESSION LOW

New York, Sept. 13.—(AP)—Developments in the steel trade continued unfavorable, with current rate of operations estimated between 28 and 30 per cent of capacity, the lowest since inception of the business depression.

August unfilled steel tonnage report of the U. S. Steel corporation dropped 235,359 tons on the lowest levels since 1927, and ingot production receded to a new low since 1921.

Trade opinions were mixed, some quarters contending both prices and production have reached resistance levels and that some natural rebound is likely from the holiday dullness incident to Labor day.

Note Slight Gain.

Other quarters contend expectations for improvement are based more on hope rather than an actual evidence of important improvement in demand. Some slight gain was noted in rail buying, and automobile manufacturers have ordered more steel for 1932 models to be in production in October-November, but structural steel orders, recently one of the major supports of the market, have shown a falling off.

Easiness featured the export copper situation, the price receding to 7¾ cents, c. i. f., a new all time low, with a fair business reported at that level. Domestic demand was slack, with buyers cautious because of disturbed price situation. Rumors of a world copper curtailment conference in New York this month, have so far lacked confirmation.

Watch Developments.

Tin was slightly easier. Buyers and sellers were holding off, watching developments in copper and the British political situation. Tin plate operations held between 45 and 50 per cent.

Demand for lead has shown no abatement and buying for September-October needs continues at substantial rate. Some of the large consumers also have been buying supplemental tonnages. Prices are unchanged.

Prompt shipment zinc has been in better demand at unchanged prices. A further broadening of demand is expected in view of small stocks in consumers' hands. Antimony was quiet and slightly lower, with dealers and consumers showing a little more buying interest.

Postal Telegraph and Cable.

Will you kindly give me the latest financial condition of Postal Telegraph and Cable company and any information you can on the collateral 5 per cent bonds due July 1, 1953? Thank you.—W. W.

Postal Telegraph and Cable corporation is controlled by International Telephone and Telegraph corporation. Its network of telegraph lines extends throughout the United States and its 37,000 nautical miles of cables connect the United States and Canada with Great Britain, France, Asia, and through All-America Cables, Inc., with South America. It also maintains ship to shore radio telegraph service. In 1930 the company closed a contract with various Standard Oil companies by which their filling stations throughout the country handle Postal service.

Gross earnings for 1930 were $37,923,357, against $40,258,363 for 1929 and $39,119,376 for 1928. Interest was earned 1.04 times in 1930, 2.17 times in 1929 and 2.01 times in 1928, a three year average of 1.74.

In the first quarter of 1931 only 55 per cent of bond interest was earned. In the like period of 1930 bond interest was earned 1.23 times.

On July 4, 1931, a press dispatch stated that the company's business was running about 7 per cent below that of 1930. This compares with a drop of about 10 per cent for the country as a whole. The 1930 earnings were adversely influenced by lowered business activity and expenses resulting from damages to cables by earthquakes.

At the close of 1930 current assets were $21,344,857 and current liabilities were $5,625,081. Cash and marketable securities alone were approximately $13,881,000. Working capital was $15,719,776, against $14,243,360 on Dec. 31, 1929.

Funded debt consists solely of $50,670,210 collateral trust 5s due July 1, 1953. They are secured by pledge of 413,020 shares of common and 421,588 shares of preferred stock of the Mackay company and a 4 per cent Commercial Cable company note of $19,990,500, due July 1, 1953.

They are somewhat speculative.

Southern United Ice.

Will you kindly let me have your opinion on Southern United Ice company first 6s, due 1947?—Miss M. C.

Southern United Ice company is controlled by United Public Service company. It has 28 ice manufacturing plants and 27 storage and distributing substations. Its product is distributed to a population estimated at 732,000.

Charges were earned 2.31 times in 1930, 2.82 times fin 1929 [before depreciation], 3.32 times in 1928, and 4.38 times [before depreciation] in 1927.

The first 6s, due 1947, are speculative.

Fritz Thyssen to Address Major Industry Meeting

Fritz Thyssen, German industrial leader and chairman of the United Steel Works of Germany, has accepted an invitation to address the eighth conference of major industries, which will be held Oct. 21 in New York under the joint auspices of Columbia university and the Institute of American Meat Packers.

PERMANENT JOBS

WITH A FUTURE.

We are hiring 15 more men for our Chicago and surrounding territory, a radius of 50 miles, to represent us. This is an old established middle western company, rated in the millions, with a new product—the Air-Way.

These men must be of good character, neat appearance and willing workers, between the ages of 25 and 50; capable of managing themselves after they have been thoroughly instructed in our business by experts. We have a very high paid organization and the opportunity for good men is not limited. You won't be asked to put up or invest any money. We finance this business.

If you feel you would qualify for one of these jobs, come in Monday. We will have a talk and you can see our wonderful product. Then if we are both satisfied we will start you in training at once, so you can enjoy the real money a lot of our men are making.

Call Monday, 9 to 12 and 1 to 4:30, ask for Mr. Smith 10th floor Mather Tower Bldg., 75 E. Wacker-dr., Chicago. Or Averill, Travis-at, Hampton, Ill., and Mr. Sims, 1140 W. Lake-st., Oak
